Thread: British Columbia to ban Republican/red liquor

I think this is fantastic news.

49.9% of the voters voted for Trump.

50.1% of us did not.

The electoral college was won by Trump, but the majority of the popular vote was not.

He received a bit more than Kamala, but did not win more than all other candidates combined.

In other words: over half of us didn't want Trump.

For this reason alone, I think this is great.

B.C. liquor bans will specifically target Republican red-state alcohol.

Cry me a river if that makes me upset, it wasn't my state that ignored every single economist and voted in this monkey to implement tariffs.

Red states did, so let them have what they want.

Red states want isolation? Go for it.

The blue states will continue to stay woke, smart, wealthier statistically, and happier.

I've said it before, but I'll say it again:

> Blue states will fight against the bullshit from Trump

> Red states will accept it and welcome it

Guess who gets fucked from Trump's policies?

Those who accept them and don't even try to defend against them.

I hope everyone gets exactly what they voted for, on a personal level.

Extremely based in my opinion. I saw a picture the other day from a Canadian liquor store, with signs over all the USA imported products saying "buy local".

Play with fire, you get burned.

Yep!

Let the red states get rid of their climate data analysis.
Let them get rid of hurricane storm warnings.
Let them get rid of their public education funds.
Let them get rid of trade agreements with other countries.
Let them have it all.

But us blue states will be hard at work doing what we do best:
-> being some of the most profitable states in the country.

It makes me chuckle when they diss on California like it's some irrelevant blue state.
It's like the 5th or 6th largest economy in the world. lol

This whole shitshow is based on fake news too.
They act like blue states are commies that want to give away money.

Stats don't lie though

We're dealing with so much misinformation that red states don't even realize they ARE the fuckin' welfare.

They are the government spending they want to desperately cut...
So yeah, give em what they want. Cut the funds.
