

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: [\[METHOD\] How I Generate \$100+ a Day Using Fake News & Social Proof](#)

earnsmartly - February 17, 2025, 12:07 am

Black Hat Reddit Affiliate Method

In this black hat method, I'll be discussing how I gamed the Reddit algorithm to generate affiliate commissions on the highest viewed subreddits and gained the trust of people which helped increase upvotes, clicks to my website, and sales.

This method will involve a lot of constant rotations between making new affiliate sites, as Reddit accounts may be banned, some domains may be blacklisted from being posted on Reddit etc. However, when you have a system in place for this method, you'll be able to scale and make $100+ per day easily.

So, what is the method?

Well to make it short, this method is where you'll create an affiliate website disguised as a news style website with generic news articles posted to make it look legitimate. You'll then post on certain subreddits to gain leads, and then you'll convert this traffic into affiliate sales or ad clicks depending on your goals.

Some of my buddies still use this method to this day for AdSense monetisation and it works insanely well, when scaled.

To do this method properly with scale, you'll need:

- ? A handful of aged/bought Reddit accounts where you can post
- ? $10-$20 for upvotes and fake comments
- ? A few domains to test different landers

The Black Hat affiliate $$$ method

So, the concept here is to have a news website with articles populated. You can either do this manually which can take a while since you have to find random news articles and post them on your website. Or you could hire someone on BHW to do it.

Once you have a website populated with news articles, you simply need to start finding niches, and products to target. There are a few ways to go about this, but this is the best way I recommend as it has worked for me in the past with great success.

You go on Clickbank/Offer vault, target by country, either USA, UK or CA and find products within the price range of $20-$50 commission. This is the goldilocks zone where you can expect higher sales. The main niches I would target are sports, health, supplements, make money online and spirituality.

These are evergreen niches which you can find hundreds of decent products for and can start raking in sales.

OK so when you have dialled down your niches and have found some products you want to promote on your website, what's the next step?

The next step is to reverse engineer how you'll get sales for this product you found. You don't want to have the typical approach of mass blasting links on Reddit hoping to get clicks, you'll need to be smart about it.

The way to get impressions, clicks and sales from the Reddit approach is to target the "facts" market of Reddit. This is done through the Today I learned Subreddit.

This subreddit has over 28.7M users, with over 10k visitors at any given moment. Your goal is to create a clickbait title based around your product that you want to promote and write a fake/misleading TIL post about it.

For example, if you have found a niche in supplements about a pill that can induce vivid dreams or better quality sleep, you can always fake the title to get them to click on to the news article you have just wrote about the product.

Some examples for this without sending too farfetched are:

? TIL that this ancient ingredient in supplements can cause intense lucid dreams that you can control

? TIL that this FDA approved supplement increases testosterone by XX% after causing better sleep regulation.

These types of titles would gain interest and people would click to read about it.

It's your goal to generate sales from these visitors by having a high converting article piece about the product on your news website and link it to the TIL post.

Here are a few ways to increase conversions on the news article piece:

? Include buttons for CTR on the affiliate link

? Include scientific reference/journal links if applicable for your niche as it helps improve trust and authority

? Give it a news article format to look nonbiased (not blatantly looking to sell the products but giving an informed review)

These will make your article very interesting to read and the visitors are more likely to click through to the buttons and buy the product or at least add the cookie to their device so you can receive a commission 30-60 days later.

Once you have the article written, uploaded on your website and have a TIL Reddit post submitted on Reddit, it's time to unload the dogshit.

You need to start buying Reddit upvotes and comments to start trending on the New section, build some fake social proof so others instinctively believe the article is legitimate, and will click to the website and buy the products.

There's tonnes of sites out there where you can purchase these upvotes and comments which you can Google. Some are a little more expensive and some are dirt cheap, make sure you use the ones that cater to your budgets and campaigns.

I wouldn't spend much on this, I recommend a budget of at least $15-$25 per post you submit. These will be hit and miss, some posts may gain traction, some may fall flat but the overall trend should be going up as visitors visit your website and start purchasing affiliate products/completing CPA offers.

The issue with this black hat method as stated above is the constant rotation of domains, posts, etc. You'll need to keep buying new Reddit accounts, buying new domains and cloning your old news website, adding new product reviews, and rinse and repeating the process.

It may be tedious at work, but I'll show you how to easily scale this Reddit operation and becoming a king pin in the process, by simply outsourcing everything and having a system in place where people are doing all the work for you.

The Black Hat Reddit SEO $$$ method [GOLDMINE METHOD FOR EASY RANKINGS AND SALES]

If you've been in the SEO game in the last few years, you know just how hard it is to rank for keywords with buyer intent. You want to rank for keywords for your health website, your make money online website, your sports website etc, but you realise you're competing with big authority sites with deep pockets that ensure they stay at the top of the SERPS.

What if I told you there's a way to rank for your highly competitive niches and generate easy leads and sales by simply tweaking the way you do your SEO.

This method is completely black hat and should not directly be used for your money websites. Keep the dirty spammy links away from your website, it will not help you in ranking. However, this method will allow you to go balls deep with your SEO link building and still generate sales with your money site.

So, what is it?

Well, here is where it gets clever.

Most people including SEO gurus tend to only believe that if your website is about "how to lose weight", you should spend lots of money ranking high competition weight loss keywords OR spend tonnes of time and research finding low competition weight loss keywords with minimal monthly searches.

Both of these ways are counterproductive to your success due to the effort and money required.

There's a better way to still use high competition keywords like "how to lose weight", "how to make money", "how to gain 30lbs of muscle" etc by simply making one tweak to your SEO strategy.

If you've guessed by the title, well done.

You simply add the word "Reddit" after it!

Reddit has over 400m+ monthly users visiting each and every month, and with over 100,000 active communities, there's tonnes of niches and communities for you to infiltrate. Not only that, but Reddit is a POWERFUL parasite website.

As you can see from the weight loss niche, there's hundreds of monthly searches using the "reddit" phrase at the end of the keyword. This alone drives tonnes more traffic and results in more sales to your affiliate website.

It can take an absolute beating when it comes to black hat link building, and this will help it rank for almost any high competition keyword.

So, if your website is about “weight loss” and your keyword you want to rank for are:

“How to lose fat in 2 weeks”

Simply add Reddit to the end of the keyword phrase and now you have thousands of indexed Reddit pages answering these questions.

Your goal is to create a new Reddit thread for your keyword and manipulate your way to the top of the SERPS for the Google Reddit results.

To do this, it's simple.

- ? You create a post in the subreddit closely related to your niche
- ? Answer the questions with multiple alt accounts
- ? Blast upvotes to one answer (which contains a “non-biased” link to your affiliate website)
- ? Send black hat links to the Reddit thread using a parasite SEO link building campaign
- ? Rank and profit!!

This is a simple yet effective strategy on ranking Reddit parasite pages on Google with very low competition keywords. These “Reddit” style phrases have a ton of search volume despite showing up as 0 on most keyword tools. Most keyword tools do not show the full extent of the keyword competition and volume, but I can assure you, they indeed do.

If you want a full strategy and run down on how to do this, comment below and I will explain. However, the list above should be more than enough for you to understand what needs doing for your niche.

For the link building campaign of the Black Hat SEO links, I recommend a handful of link packages you can purchase dirt cheap on the BST section.