With the recent change in encryption in the Uk for Apple users what should users do if they are worried about their privacy but don't want to fully move away from their iPhone.

From my understanding (I don't actually have an iPhone) it's removal/modification of ADB and it's relation to iCloud. I think migrating as much as you can off iCloud would be the first step.

Quote:For UK Apple users, some data can still be encrypted. iCloud Keychain and Health, iMessage, and FaceTime will remain end-to-end encrypted by default. But other iCloud services will not be encrypted, effective immediately, including iCloud Backup, iCloud Drive, Photos, Notes, Reminders, Safari Bookmarks, Siri Shortcuts, Voice memos, Wallet passes, and Freeform

The usual also applies, VPN, good web browser habits, private email providers, etc. etc.

I think if your data is truly sensitive, then an iPhone (especially iCloud) most likely isn't the place for it anyway. See my other reply below for some more of my thoughts.

I am a huge advocate for privacy, security, and freedom. This affects all three. So this news is important to me, despite it not directly affecting me.

Do you have any recommendations for private email providers?

I like Tuta and Proton for personal use. I hear people talk about onion mail before too but I haven't used it.

Proton Drive, local storage, and DIY solutions will be your best options IMHO.
