Thread: BTC under 90k!

Chrome - February 25, 2025, 12:17 am

So btc has dropped under 90k since 15th of November.

Do you think this has anything to do with this?

<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2025-02-24/bybit-cryptocurrency-hack-what-we-know/104974512>

I understand that it's not btc but it seems when one major crypto goes down, so does several others.

The whole market is down currently.

Sui is down 15.12%

SOL is down 12.88%

ETH is down 11.39%

XRP is down 10.99%

LTC is down 8.73%

bitcoin is down...LOTS.

Wallets are hurting now, I will be HODLing.

Is time to buy more bro. Is time to load up! Market will take a break in 2025 after trump's pump.

All these tariff news and bybit hack news are all giving discounts to entire market other than crypto.

Yeah I have taken a heap of profit for the reno in our yard and I will be looking at buying more soon. I am just holding the 4k that I currently have and then I'll make a decision in the next month if I buy more or look at another way of investing.

Yes, following the recent billion dollar hack, Bybit experienced a significant surge in withdrawal requests.

Chrome - February 25, 2025, 12:30 am

The other thing will be big panick sellers in the market.

Money - February 25, 2025, 12:31 am

Pretty much all those. It will recover back especially stock market but for crypto, it was supposed to be good new you know before trump's tarrif and all but all the bad news coming in and ruin the market even more.

Gona wait for some time or long time again for it to pump. But still BTC will always be the main coin to invest serious money anyways.

Yanix - February 25, 2025, 12:46 am

If only I got more funds I will buy more LTC and SUI!

Not gonna lie, I'm feeling uneasy about this whole situation. If I was buying long-term, say several years, I would have just hodl and buy even more. But ever since I started DCA in Feb 2024 it was for the purpose of doubling my money to buy a car in early spring. I'm still in profit ofcourse, but I don't know what's next - a big crash, moving sideways for weeks/months, or a surge. I'm seriously considering selling today.

But can you blame me? I'm a first time investor to crypto and have been only in this for a year.

Anyway, I don't blame you for wanting to sell. There is going to be a lot of panic selling over the next few weeks which will continue to make the price fall even further.

What's your situation with funding the car? Are you at the point where your car is in crypto?

Is Crypto your only form of investing?

I only want the best for your Eran.

I have also been watching the price and seeing it under 90k isn't a good look. I remember seeing it at 108 thinking, shit I need to do some renos, do i hold or sell? If I sell ill miss the spike. I held a bit longer and ended up selling some of my crypto at around 97k. It sucked but I needed to use the money.

I think you would regret selling under 90k just to see it it maybe back up to 120k by mid year.

What's your thoughts?

It's due to Trump's tariffs announcement. We'd need to see the following:

- SBR approved in any state (not nationwide)
- FED Rate cuts
- Russia-Ukraine peace
- ETH ETF Staking amend approval by SEC

Until these things have happened, and they need to happen within a short time of eachother, we're going to be in some deep state of disbelief.

If you believe the market is driven by news, you're wrong.

I don't think that it will be news, its more events.

I'll be honest, i bought alot of SOL at 190 and it jumped up to 280 and I didn't sell like a dumbass (my crypto friend stopped me). Now i'm pissed at myself because this is my savings for taking time off work for a few months to travel. Thinking of panick selling but i'm new to this world.

Can you elaborate on this? The price is determined by what people are willing to pay, people get influenced by the news

Well, you might not travel this year, but hang on to it. Or swap.

I am actually surprised how LTC is still holding 115-120$. Usually it's the 1st one going to shit generally when BTC takes a hit.

Today we saw some BTC Dominance shift and ALTs showed some strong support.

The crash a couple of days ago that made the alt market bleed:

BTC fell to $91k

ETH fell to $2125

NEAR fell to $2.7

SUI fell to $2.39

Today when we saw BTC falling down to $85,400:

ETH fell only to $2300

NEAR fell only to $2.75

SUI fell only to $2.63

So there is some bottom forming for the ALTs, and they might go little bit lower if BTC tests the $80,000 support zone.

I can see BTC even retesting at 60k. That's honestly the worse case scenario. I doubt it'll go that low, maybe 75k is the lowest for my prediction.

Noble - February 26, 2025, 1:15 pm

I would love to see what BTC does when it touches low 70k.

from 109k to 60k.

Not necessarily. The BTC uptrend is way overextended and needs some proper retracing.

truePi - March 8, 2025, 4:40 pm

Lol, people panic every time BTC dips, but this is just another day in crypto. Whales are shaking out weak hands before the next leg up.

Unless something crazy happens, BTC breaking $90K is just a matter of time. The halving cycle is still in play, institutional demand is growing, and macro trends are favoring Bitcoin long-term.

If you're scared now, maybe zoom out—BTC was under $20K not too long ago. Stay strong, stack sats, and enjoy the ride.
