what dyu think gta6 will retail at?

Parks - March 18, 2025, 8:42 pm

Hmm probably $80. Don't think it'll be anything too much out of standard. Probably $80 base and then like 3 or 4 different other versions $100, $120.

Pr0m3th3us - March 18, 2025, 9:20 pm

$1,000,000.00 easy. All day.

Sam - March 23, 2025, 7:34 am

Most likely $70-$100 for the standard edition, with deluxe editions potentially reaching $100 or more.

I can't believe the JFK files were released before we even get to see GTA 6.

Bankie - March 24, 2025, 1:43 pm

Probably a few hundred dollars because people will buy it almost no matter what i think the "excitement" is just to much and the memories of gta5 people hold to dear

Agree , and it will not sell good if requirements are too high

No way GTA 6 will be below 125$. They charge 70-80$ for trash games like Assassin's Creed Shadows already and all of the Ubisoft shit. This game costed 2B $ to be created, it will cost something.

Keeping it at $70 or close to it would maximize sales volume, especially given GTA 5's 205 million copies. Too much speculation in regards of what the price will be.

Exactly, but I also think even if they price it at $100 or $125 it will be justified (Hopefully)

Meh. All their true money comes from the in game purchases. They would never mess that up from what they learned on GTA 5.

Lower initial buy in probably leads to more longterm in-game purchases.

Seen a lot of posts around saying $100 and speculating on GaaS model. Be surprised if it's less than $100

Plasmasmog - March 27, 2025, 3:28 pm

I think 70-80€, something like that.

Mercury - March 27, 2025, 4:08 pm

I'm going to take an educated guess and go with $69.99. Seems to be the common starting point anymore.

This is the problem, people will do anything for clicks and views so creating a false narrative grants them that. Rockstar hasn't announced anything in regards of the pricing as of yet so the individual fans who are incredibly hyped start to make up their own pricing.

Yeah, and if memory serves, GTA5 was £40 or thereabouts and I swear I remember they made $1 Billion in a month.

As long as it's priced fairly I'll buy games, but there's a lot of gouging and greed in the market atm. It's why I play so many Indie games, plus they tend to be more innovative.

HOMODIN - March 30, 2025, 5:14 am

80 bucks and my bet is that for some extra cash you'll get some "starter pack" or "deluxe crap" or perhaps even "pre-purchase exclusives"... I just hope that the game will be good and not ruined by some damn flying bikes n cars.

Ducky44 - March 30, 2025, 4:29 pm

70-80€ but Never 100 i wouldnt buy it for 100 xD

ovy8power - March 31, 2025, 12:33 pm

I also think itll be under 100$, yes they can be greedy at times but they're also aware that its a massive volume game with their unconditional fanbase
