Crippin' ain't just some thang to claim, cuh—it's a way of life, a code we live and die by. From day one, we push that line, stay solid, and never switch up on the set. This Crip shit deeper than just blue rags and throwin' up the C—it's 'bout loyalty, respect, and puttin' on for yo' day ones. Ain't no fakin', ain't no snitchin', ain't no foldin'—we stay ten toes, ridin' for the set and makin' sure the homies eat. From the hood to the pen, real Crips hold it down, standin' on business and never breakin' the code. It's 'bout keepin' the marathon goin', teachin' the lil homies how to move smart so the set stay strong.

But real Crippin' ain't just 'bout bangin'—it's 'bout elevation, stackin' up, and puttin' the hood in a better position. Real C'z know it's more than just turf wars—it's 'bout buildin' somethin' solid, flippin' the hustle, and keepin' the money in the set. Whether it's rappin', trappin', or business moves, we gotta boss up and make sure the set eat. Crippin' is life 'cause it teach you discipline, loyalty, and how to stay dangerous in a world that don't wanna see us win. But we ain't never gon' let up—on Crip, we keep it pushin', keep it solid, and keep it Crip!

On dead homies, if you ain't Crippin' with ya whole chest, go fade yourself in the nearest alley. Internet steppas throwin' up signs from they momma couch—y'all ain't even field-tested. Talkin' 'bout 'big homie this, big homie that' when you ain't never banged a mission in yo life. Go play in traffic, goofy. ???
