Keeping it simple, I'm looking ideally for at least one experienced developer to partner with me. I have a large, established code base which will act as the foundational framework for the project. I will also fund all initial start up and operational costs.

Appropriate person(s) must be experienced full-stack Java developers

Expertise with Discord, web and payment provider integrations

Security focused

Previous experience with game cheating, automation and scripting

Ideally plays and is very familiar with OSRS

EU time zone desirable

Serious adults

I could just hire a developer by the hour, or stick this on Fiverr for example, but I would prefer to establish a partnership so that we can collectively share in our mutual efforts.

With that being said, no one wants to work for free and I am open to flexible agreements regarding compensation, whether that's a straight forward hourly rate, profit share or a split of the two. But to be clear, my preference is that we share in the profits together, rather than my continual personal outlay over the long term.

DM me and we can arrange a discussion.

Good luck! I know a few owners of providers... as they call them. I used to run betas for a specific big one before he pushed updates..

Sounds cool. Hope you find your partner.

I am also very familiar with osrs botting, if you ever need a hand with testing! Hehe... lol.
