Thread: Looking for: Old historical hacking tools \(RATs, JDBs, etc\)

banana51 - April 4, 2025, 7:15 am

Yes, most of the tools were made a decade ago but I am looking for them regardless for a collection.

I am looking for the following:

Code [] Blackshades Stealth (aka. RAT, not to be confused with the popular Blackshades NET), which was the Java client that had a corresponding C stub/server generated on the Blackshades website: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=XTp9E6NgIXo>

[] Blackshades HTTP

[] Blackshades VPN

[] Blackshades Stealer

[] Epic Java (EpicKit, Java Drive by)

[] Foxy Java (Java Drive by)

[] GalaxyJDB (Java Drive by)

[] Voltrex JDB (Java Drive by)

[] uJDB (Java Drive by)

[] BitBot (linux bot)

[] Storm.bot (linux bot with web interface, sold by Vinnie and on exploit.in)

[] Exploit kits/packs (Angler, Sweet Orange, ...)

Most download links for these are dead and quite hard to find but I am certain people here still have some of the items on the list stored on old drives. If you have any of the items on the list or any other historical tools that are not present in collections from before please post of PM me and I will add to the collection.

List will be updated once a list item has been obtained.
