Yeah, you're right that is how services like this work. Grass turns your unused internet connection into part of a residential proxy network. Companies use that to do things like ad verification, price tracking, or accessing content from different regions.

It's not for everyone, but it's transparent about what it does. They don't touch your personal data or files just the IP and bandwidth you allow. You can stop anytime.

Yeah I get that, but honestly it's been worth it for me. I don't even run it 24/7 and it still covers my PC's power bill plus some extra on top. I make over 100 a month just letting it run while I chill, and I've got an unlimited plan so it doesn't cost me anything extra. So maybe they're not paying 7 per GB, but it definitely adds up.

So I just have to download it and let it work its 'magic'? Maybe it's not much, but it could make around $80 a month? That would definitely help me pay my rent, hehe. (By using your link, am I already supporting you or do I need to enter something else?) :3

I've downloaded it and it looks nice. How I can withdraw the money, I can't find the button.
