Good luck with sales, looks like I have to make some price adjustments to keep up with the new competition.

Would like to know one thing, as I always love to buy even though I know all this information in case there is something I can use for myself that I did not know. Do you have a revenue report from your own shop/traffic report ? If getting some insane numbers, would be interested myself for some extra marketing/ad methods (assuming those are provided in the guide). Let me know!

Don't you already own a similar store, been running it for quite a while if I'm right. ?

Just seeing if the user has actual experience with an upgrade store and the marketing/advertisements or is just selling a compilation of stuff he found online about upgrade services. Always keen to learn more if there is something I missed ?

Ah that makes sense. ?

I bought and read through the guide. To clarify, I am not a seller and I bought this guide so I can start upgrading Netflix for family and friends especially.

As I read through the guide, it is clear the guide is directed towards beginners and I did find a lot of sources that I already know about. I do like that you provide good sources off of the bat. Most of them are publicly accessible and you outline many great ways to jumpstart an upgrading service, multiple other business policies to follow especially highlighting social media marketing through other platforms to boost business growth.

As stated in the thread design this is more directed towards those who are currently not upgrading, don't understand how upgrading works, or where to get started. It includes detailed steps and directions on how the services work, starting your service, obtaining the tools you need, and fulfilling your first order among other valuable information all enclosed. There may be information in it applicable to you that you did not know or consider but you are not the target demographic as someone who is already running an upgrade store, sells upgrade methods, and knows the process.

I'll pretend like "compilation of stuff he found online" is not sales trashing but to answer your question, no it is not a $400 .txt file that gets sent alongside some "method" documents and yes this is based widely on my experience with running an upgrade service in the past. This is a well-written 40+ page guide on starting an upgrade service or store such as your own and was created to fill the gaps between upgrade method sellers like yourself and beginners who are wanting to start their own service and start making money online with little to no overhead and operating cost.

Thanks!

I bought this e-book a couple of hours ago and here is my review.

The product: The product it self is very, very detailed. Anybody even with a small english knowledge can understand this. You can see how much time and effort Envy has put into learning from him and also make it look good. This is not a 1 page .txt file like somebody else is selling but 40 pages of detailed guide that anyone can understand and setup within 1-2 hours. This guide is seriously the first e-book where the money is worth it and actually not outdated.

The support: The support is top quality as well. Envy replies fast and is very patient with all kind of questions. He stayed with me until everything was setup and didnt leave before. I can only vouch for this guy. He is so great and im waiting to buy more of his products in the future because his so legit Methods for different services vary unless you're literally just carding. Which services are you providing methods for if any?
