Bro, go get some help. I'm not sure how it works there but visit a psychiatrist or something. Ending your life won't make things easier.

Don't do it fam, you're just passing that feeling onto others. People do care about you, there are better ways than just ending it. Life is great when you stop caring about bs. Took me a long time to get out of some phases but now that it's in the past, things are much better.

Time heals everything g

Nice of you say but its done. Down the hatch. No return.

Brother reach out immediately to someone you trust. A friend, a family member or a crisis hotline. It would be the best thing to do...call them right away.

Your life matters brother. Even if things feel overwhelming, it can get better, especially with support from your love ones. May God gives you strength and wisdom.

I hope you are either not serious or you are given a second chance. You can't pursue more knowledge if you're dead.

If you come back and want to talk, I'm here. Don't do something stupid and pursue permanent solutions for temporary problems.

Be well, my friend.

Hungry for knowledge and flew a little too close to the sun.

I hope you come out of this okay, but I can also see what brought you to this way of thinking.

Think about your mum -- she'll be pretty sad to not be able to make you your favorite foods on your birthday anymore.

Hey Hungry4Knowledge

Man, please hang in there. I know life can hit hard — like unbearably hard sometimes — but this isn't the end of your story. You've contributed a lot here. People know your name. People see you. And right now, a lot of us are hoping you're still with us.

If you're reading this, reach out. Message anyone here. You don't have to go through it alone.

You're not alone in this, brother. Come back and talk to us.

Please rethink taking your life. You need to talk to someone close to you immediately.. Suicide hurts everyone involved, you, your friends, and your family that have to live with that decision forever.
