

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Have you ever encountered anything paranormal or you know someone who did ?

JNath - April 20, 2025, 9:00 pm

Do you believe in ghosts/demons ? Have you encountered any paranormal activity in your life or heard someone about it ?

For me, I live in a building where couple of people committed suicide by jumping off the top floors and ended their life. One day a delivery boy saw some shadow following him in the building late at night and security guard also said he encountered something.

Deany - April 20, 2025, 9:00 pm

I have seen tall cloaked figure staring at me , then disappeared .

Pr0m3th3us - April 20, 2025, 9:01 pm

Na never, it would be cool if I did. I went out to this cemetery when I was young with some friends, supposed to be haunted but nothing happened so it was prob all fake.

?ULL - April 20, 2025, 11:40 pm

Ghosts are 100% real i beleive this through and through. I break it down like this for easier explination:

Think of all of the dimensions as channels on a television.

Channel 1 is just a line.

Channel 2 is a Flat plane and a Horizontal plane

Channel 3 (Where we live) Flat Plane, horizontal Plane and Vertical Plane.

Now imagine this: We live in 3d space, where all of these exist and we can experience those below us but cannot experience those above us, EXCEPT SOMETIMES.

Like an oldschool TV, where you would change the channels and have interference (Static) where one channel bleeds over to the next and you see both for a moment, that too happens in our reality. We begin to breifly see the other planes.

darktonic - April 21, 2025, 7:48 am

i've seen the holy spirit. he was this tall translucent yellowish figure consisting of points and lines

hank - April 21, 2025, 7:49 am

sa thisa im not doin idk

Maczoot8 - April 22, 2025, 3:45 am

(Apr 20, 2025 09:00 PM)Cypress.io Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Do you believe in ghosts/demons ? Have you encountered any paranormal activity in your life or heard someone about it ?

For me, I live in a building where couple of people committed suicide by jumping off the top floors and ended their life. One day a delivery boy saw some shadow following him in the building late at night and security guard also said he encountered something.

I've been to an abandoned slave farm before at night. It's like a common thing in the city I grew up in and you can def feel the energy and I've even seen stuff move by itself.

The energy of the dead is real.

SIM-5022267 - April 22, 2025, 10:58 pm

I personally have never, only in dreams or sleep paralysis. But, I do hope they're real because the world would seem a lot more interesting and mysterious that way.

Sam - April 23, 2025, 4:34 am

No. However I'm a curious person and I even visited reputedly haunted places and still didn't encounter anything. An old friend of mine supposedly had experiences and he seems to think I'm too curious for my own good which makes me protected. Whatever the fuck that means.

I've encountered sleep paralysis multiple times. The first time was pretty gnarly but I've started to embrace it. Feeling something out of the ordinary just makes it more thrilling.

Parks - April 23, 2025, 11:01 pm

I like to think our brains can play powerful games on us and convince us of anything. Take schizophrenia for example.

I follow Carl Sagans beliefs and suggest his book The Demon Haunted World.

Believing in ghosts or demons would mean believing in a religion and at the moment I'm not too sure if I do.

ariluvs - May 18, 2025, 8:41 pm

i would always see things here and there after accidentally messing with a spirit ig? ? smth stuff would fall out of no where

Phantom_NiNja - May 19, 2025, 11:26 am

(Apr 20, 2025 09:00 PM)Cypress.io Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Do you believe in ghosts/demons ? Have you encountered any paranormal activity in your life or heard someone about it ?

For me, I live in a building where couple of people committed suicide by jumping off the top floors and ended their life. One day a delivery boy saw some shadow following him in the building late at night and security guard also said he encountered something.

Hell yeah,

The house where I was born and lived in my whole life is haunted. We didn't know the previous owners but across the street we were good friends with some Italians that told us stories about how they hated the previous owners. I wasn't born at the time but my dad told me stories that when he bought the house. He was going to put equipment and stuff in the attic. He found a hidden compartment made in the attic and he opened it and found 3 porno mags a hustler magazine and church of satan book and some book of the dead. My dad took it and threw it out. He then got an imam and blessed the house.

However, when I was maybe 5 years old. I would see 3 shadow figures at the end of my bed at 12am. I would scream and run up stairs to my moms room and she would get upset and yell at me to go to my own bed. I refused and my dad got up spanked me and then grabbed my hand took me downstairs to my bedroom and he was like there's nothin here... now go to bed.

I seen them after 3 nights. They won't do anything or say anything. Today I only see one of them behind a hold peaking around the corner watching me when I am online.

I told my dad about this for years and recently he told me a story when he was a kid how he saw shadow people however, he told me that they're called jins. He told me that the one that is with you must be friendly. We have had odd things happen. One time I see a shadow person run upstairs and I told my dad this was at age 13 and my dad laughed and told me I am crazy and right after that our smoke detectors went off.

We have 2 one at the base of the stairs in the ceiling that goes upstairs and one that is at the top of the stairs that go into the basement.

The smoke detector that went off was the one that is at the base of the stairs that heads upstairs. So, my dad gets a latter and he goes to take out the better and that battery is dead. So, he takes it out and the beeping is still going off. My dad told me that it's odd that it shouldn't have power.

So, he thinks maybe the capacitors are still charged. He waits and leaves it out for 15 minutes. He gets a new battery but couldn't figure out how to turn the dam thing off. So, he puts in new battery and puts it back in the ceiling. It is still going off. About 5 minutes after we walk away it then stops.

We have had weird instances in the house. We one time went to disney world in florida. Me, my mom and dad and my one sister went. I have 2 sisters so one had to work and she couldn't take work off. So, she was home alone. The first night my sister called 911 because she was eating in the dinning area near the kitchen and he hear a man laugh upstairs and hear someone running into a room. She thought it was an intruder and call 911. The cops searched the home and found nothing. The next night she heard someone walk into her room and she told me she wears she had the door closed but it was unlocked and she was in bed 2 hours and couldn't sleep. She said the door opens and he could hear someone walk up to her bed but there was no one. She didn't called the cops because she didn't want them to get annoyed but after the 2nd night.

She ended up sleeping at her friends house until we got home. My dad laughed at her and told her she's scared for nothing.

Anyways, my mom told me the people across the street told my mom that in my sisters room the one that was home alone.. her room is upstairs and the previous owners had their dad living with them he was old and up in age and he died of a heart attack in that room. They saw it because the ambulance showed up and put him in a body bag.

Any way's the previous owners were weird. I personally think something is hidden in the house like in the walls or burred somewhere.

I think maybe jimmy hoffa is burried here. The reason is that the previous owner was a building inspector for the city. We were told that they won a lottery and the original house was a single story. They built a 2nd story by himself and didn't hire professionals and he got friends to approve the permits and pass the inspections. In the basement we have a hidden compartment my dad knows it has to be used to hide drugs and guns. It's behind the foundation walls.

In 2014, I was outside doin yard work this is my parent's house and I would cut the lawn, and edge the lawn and do some minor repairs like fill cracks in cement and redo the calk around the windows. stuff like that. This was in June and it was hot outside 80 degrees outside.

Out of nowhere there's a tree in the front of our house. We have had this for many years since my dad bought the house. It's a maple tree.

We never had issues with it but this year for some reason there was no wasp nest but the wasps would just sit in the tree and be aggressive. Anyone that would get near our front door it would come out and swarm them to sting them. The mailman complained to my dad about it.

My dad bought some yellow jacket spray. I was outside and I was spraying them. This been going on for 2 weeks. While this 2 weeks I would come by and keep spraying more we find. There was an old man walking up and down our street. He would look at me and wave at me with a smile. I waved back but this guy gave me the creeps. He had a black t-shirt with blue jeans and he had long grey hair with dirty shaven beard.

He looked homeless or a rock and roll fan.

Anyways after the 2 weeks when I finally killed the wasps. This old man walks up to me and asks if I found anything inside the house or burrowed in the back. I go no why? I asked for his name and he gave me his name and told me he's a relative of the previous owners. He looked at me like he was pissed. Like he thought I was lying. He told me well if you find anything interesting in the house let him know and not contact the police.

It was strange and he just walk on about and also he told me where he lives which is like 20 miles away from where I am at. I was like why was he here? He goes he's here for family. Then he told me that the woman that lived in my house the previous owners died in Florida. Which when they sold the house to my dad they moved to Florida. He then left and I never seen him again in the area.

What is weird that next week on the news they were talking about Jimmy Hoffa and the cold case. I told my dad about the interaction with this guy and then joked saying I won't be surprised that if we sell this house and if there's ever construction done in the house that they might find his body here.

I have had many encounters with ghosts or paranormal type stuff. My mom would talk to use and be like I hope so and so is ok and like 5 minutes later that so and so calls her. You wouldn't think much of it until you notice this happened more than one time and my mom would be on the money who calls her but she doesn't expect the call. These are people that won't call for years.

Also the house my parent's own. My dad told me that the wife's room the walls were painted black and the carpet was black.

My dad told me he had to replace the carpet and he repainted the walls a light blue color.

Also that old man that I talked to. I looked him up and found he is a writer and he wrote a book that was on Amazon on a book called the manual of death.

It was a book on how to kill people and how to bring them back from the death. Which creeped me out.

I feel like something might be hidden. The 2nd story isn't built properly. I noticed the vents to the return line isn't proper and looks like you can access many parts of the walls and there's hidden storage compartments inside the walls but you can only access them from upstairs but you need some special tools to open it up.

Crystal Lord - May 20, 2025, 6:23 am

Thats not something to believe or not, those things are really real. I personally didnt encounter such activities but i know many others who have. Only thing that i encountered are sounds of running steps on the etic, but i think that might be cats cause there is a tree next to my house that is leaned near my roof, so i think thats the case nothing more.

bot1044net - May 21, 2025, 1:59 am

I have always thoght ghosts were real and ufos are how they can be transported toast e - May 21, 2025, 2:53 am

This is all real and it happened to me. I Have no reason to lie. It may sound bizarre and that's because it is. The answer is yes and i don't really like talking about it because it was a big issue when i was growing up. My Mom, my Aunt and her friend always used to play with the Ouija Board every other weekend and get drunk. My other Aunt died when i was a baby (she got brutally murdered) but a lot of times that is who they try to contact. I Can't remember the exact timeline but i think i was around 8 when this started. During the day it was only me and sometimes my Uncle but he would just sleep all the time, he was beat from working in the oil fields all day.

I Started having a random sense of dread especially when i was home alone. Like something else was there and it scared the shit out of me. One night i woke up by hearing low whispers in the corner of my room. Another night i got jolted out of my sleep like someone grabbed me and i fell out of bed. One day my Aunt was watching me and my cousin and i was jumping on our bunk beds and i ended up falling off and splitting my head open on the shelf (the corners were metal) and blood was gushing from my head and ended up going to the hospital. My mother said at some point the Ouija Board said "Check on the kids" and i think it was that night i got jolted out of my bed. Few months later they threw the Ouija Board in the bin for the trash guy to take it in the morning and it was back on our porch on the floor. Eventually they did get rid of it. It could of been someone messing with them, i have no idea but it seems worth mentioning.

A Year or so later we ended up moving to this 2 story condo and we had a decent basement with carpet and it lead out to the garage, i always ended up wanting my own room so my parents let me live down there. It didn't look creepy at all so i thought i wouldn't be scared. Wrong. I Was sleeping one night and i heard a noise upstairs like someone opened the door and heard a faint little girls voice singing some type of song (sounded like my cousin but she lived hours away and it had to of been 3 in the morning.) Then i heard someone running down the stairs right to me and i just froze in complete and utter shock. It sounded like a heavy man running down the steps not a little person. I Couldn't scream or anything. Eventually i just fell asleep and in my mind i think i was tying to play dead because 1000 IQ play.

I Ended up moving upstairs in my parents room and one night i opened my eyes to see some guy leaning over me and i started screaming bloody murder for my mom and she turned on the lights. Nothing. It could of been sleep paralysis for all i know but why would i only have sleep paralysis those times as a child? One day my aunt came running in my moms room because she said something touched her when she was on the bed watching tv. Fast forward and we moved out of there to a different city. My childhood was partially foggy to my memory because i never got much sleep because these event traumatized me for a good while. I'm an adult now and everything is normal with no weird shit happening.

I Have no idea what to think but i don't talk about this because how insane it sounds. It still gives me goosebumps. Found out my Mom has a homemade Ouija Board in her closet and her house. Sorry if spelling errors, it's really late and i'm tired. I Will add edits because there is still some more things that happened but i cannot remmeber them right now.

Jukyboy - May 21, 2025, 3:22 am

Know some people that did

TheNaturalBoy - May 21, 2025, 3:27 am

Of course. I've seen and heard things that have no explanation or logic. I've felt forces or "presences" that were both dangerous and comforting. To be honest, it's a complex topic—but that's okay. None of us truly knows or will ever know exactly why these things happen or how to deal with them.

Personally, I'm a believer, and I entrust myself to Almighty God to help protect and guide me spiritually. I'm also grateful that my family (who are very far away) pray for me. I understand that some people, even after experiencing such things, might not believe in anything—or might start believing after it happens to them.

I would simply recommend taking care of yourselves. If you're not into spirituality, you could explore other areas, such as Theology with a rigorous scientific approach, Parapsychology, or even Ghost Hunting. Either way, take care—and may God bless you all. :3

Phantom_NiNja - May 25, 2025, 10:35 pm

(May 21, 2025 03:27 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Of course. I've seen and heard things that have no explanation or logic. I've felt forces or "presences" that were both dangerous and comforting. To be honest, it's a complex topic—but that's okay. None of us truly knows or will ever know exactly why these things happen or how to deal with them.

Personally, I'm a believer, and I entrust myself to Almighty God to help protect and guide me spiritually. I'm also grateful that my family (who are very far away) pray for me. I understand that some people, even after experiencing such things, might not believe in anything—or might start believing after it happens to them.

I would simply recommend taking care of yourselves. If you're not into spirituality, you could explore other areas, such as Theology with a rigorous scientific approach, Parapsychology, or even Ghost Hunting. Either way, take care—and may God bless you all. :3

Do you do ghost hunting? What are your experiences?

Gianwins - May 26, 2025, 3:03 am

Yes I do believe, there are supranatural activity exist but most of us ignored it.

TheNaturalBoy - May 26, 2025, 10:02 am

(May 25, 2025 10:35 PM)Phantom_NiNja Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Do you do ghost hunting? What are your experiences?

Oh no, I was just recommending that people do their own research—especially those who still don't believe in this and want a more scientific approach. Personally, I have no experience hunting or contacting specters or strange forces. In my culture, we didn't really use the word "ghost" much; usually, an ambiguous term was used to refer to "that," whether it was a force, spirit, or entity. I wasn't very involved in those things, but my family used to go to people who did them—either to perform a spiritual cleansing or to offer a prayer or invocation (sometimes nothing related to Christianity was involved; sometimes it was. Most of the time, they dealt with or turned to the forces or gods of this land before Christianity arrived). I only know a few things and have experienced some events that could be called paranormal—whether involving forces, beings, or strange occurrences—but nothing extreme. Damn, I wish I knew even more, but unfortunately that information died out long ago with the elders and those who practiced these things. Nowadays, all I see are guys scamming people or turning this knowledge into a spiritual business—information that usually gets turned into a joke or made into a spectacle. I also feel sad for my indigenous brothers from nearby lands, who are even more exploited and poorer than mine. :’3

Phantom_NiNja - May 26, 2025, 4:47 pm

(May 26, 2025 10:02 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh no, I was just recommending that people do their own research—especially those who still don’t believe in this and want a more scientific approach. Personally, I have no experience hunting or contacting specters or strange forces. In my culture, we didn’t really use the word “ghost” much; usually, an ambiguous term was used to refer to “that,” whether it was a force, spirit, or entity. I wasn’t very involved in those things, but my family used to go to people who did them—either to perform a spiritual cleansing or to offer a prayer or invocation (sometimes nothing related to Christianity was involved; sometimes it was. Most of the time, they dealt with or turned to the forces or gods of this land before Christianity arrived). I only know a few things and have experienced some events that could be called paranormal—whether involving forces, beings, or strange occurrences—but nothing extreme. Damn, I wish I knew even more, but unfortunately that information died out long ago with the elders and those who practiced these things. Nowadays, all I see are guys scamming people or turning this knowledge into a spiritual business—information that usually gets turned into a joke or made into a spectacle. I also feel sad for my indigenous brothers from nearby lands, who are even more exploited and poorer than mine. :’3

I met real psychics and other people that have different gifts. The real ones don't do it for the money and if they do they will charge a single fixed fee and would arrange a day when to do it and they won't put you on a time clock.

The when you're talking about are just flat out fakers and scammers. They lie cheat and steal and there's a lot of that goes on this this field.

The real ones are like 1% of all the people that do this type of work. It's not like they pick to do this. the real ones didn't choose to do it. The fake ones always have an interest in it but they feel and think it's all fake so they think all that does it is fake so why not joint them.