Let's see who are the top 3 H4CK3R$ on HF.

_VOX - April 22, 2025, 5:18 am

Nice feature! Best of luck to those who play.

It's great to see a group being innovative by allowing members to participate in activities while being rewarded. You don't often see that nowadays on this forum. Well done!

PercevalFox - April 22, 2025, 6:59 am

Ohhhh ! It'll be fun tonight ?

I'm in :D

Money- - April 22, 2025, 7:18 am

Lol , is basic mission lvl 9 bugged out? I found the pass but the page returns 404 , intentional huh?

Edit : nvm i got it.

Hint hint, no one found a secret mission yet ?

A issue some users had with Basic 6, was that there was a invalid character ? in the encrypted password, making it very much more difficult to crack it.

This has now been resolved, thanks for reporting the issue @7@

Just one question!!!

Know that I will probably sound annoying af but will there be explanations out after the first month for tasks???

Like I genuinely gave hard ones a shot and stood no chance so I just wanted to ask if there will be any??

I don't plan on giving away the results directly, as the fun part is learning. But maybe we should have some discussions here on HF, towards how to solve missions, without directly giving away the solution.

First thing, is somewhat hidden. You first step would be to find what's hidden. So where could something be hidden on a deface page?

Info for all: Realistic 2 has some database issues, if you have issues with it, then that might be why. I'll have it resolved in the morning.

Already found what is hidden even submitted stuff to overwrite the defaced page , I will keep trying.

I'll be updating it, so it's also about timing, first to the amount of points will stick there until someone has more points.

Right now the lower user ID gets first if they have the same amount ? Which seems unfair

HTB is fine , boot2root style is fun too. But avoid those unrealistic boxes though. Sometimes too much guessing work involved etc.

OSCP Style boxes are the best , realistic and logical.

Something like CVE style boxes or just general owasp top 10 web exploit boxes , than those you know finding flags inside an image file or some stuff.

I am glad I dint see anything or just guess work on this challenge.

Avoid guessing stuff. Make it logical and make sense and stick to real world even better.

Sadly to say at least like 80% of HTB stuff aren't that realistic. I don't know how they are now. Its been years since I played them.

Sometimes their easy boxes are also slight harder and then when u found out the solution, its some random exploit or some weird guessing stuff you never thought off lol.

Or maybe I just suck / ain't googling hard enough lol.

Of cause, it all has to be relevant somehow. Guesswork is not hacking or penetrating, so such challenges are not my style.

Our plan with later real boxes, are to stick to known or common CVE. Most likely these will give it away with a quick CVE scan, but we will see once we actually get to these boxes, still a lot of development to do before they are ready for a beta test.

I think that a hacker scans and guesses known vulnerabilities, i think that the directions before a mission are enough.

I think there should be more types of hints for each mission, cheap ones and expensive ones.

Once I finish the dashboard for us to manage, we can look into the hint prices again. And the hints themself to see if they make sense or not.

If you want to add hints, I recommend that they deduct points from the respective challenge upon completion.

Small hints remove 20% of the points the challenge gives, medium hints 30% and so on, otherwise people with a large number of bytes can simply buy solutions left and right and be on the first place.

I am not a fan of hints in CTFs, but if you decide to add them, please consider this.

Thanks again for providing us with this platform. It's a really cool addition to HF, and you deserve all the good words everyone is saying.

After this great response from members, we are very happy as this was all an experiment and how it has worked out it has made clear that we still have so many hackers on HF

Nevertheless expect an update later today with more difficult missions.

4 new missions uploaded. Becomes automatically available each 6 hour from now.

So in 6 hours is Basic 11, in 12 hours is Basic 12, in 18 hours is Basic 13, and in 24 hours is Realistic 5.

I'm making a countdown, hope to have that countdown among many more scheduled missions ready tomorrow.

Scheduled missions are meant to keep the engagement, with new content to be automatically released every 6 hour (4 times a day).

In my opinion "Basics" should have entry level challs for each category. I made 2 easy reverse as well for it and one pwn (which requires updates to infra to support docker so idk if it will come up).

I made one a little bit harder for realistic (web+rev), skull is still working to implement it! I also suggested splitting points on harder challs (2 or more flags) to add more depth to them.

ttbr0 - April 24, 2025, 12:30 am finished basic 11 but im not a fan of contrived "for the sake of having a challenge" and misc category challenges. didnt seem very practical or related to hacking at all. looking forward to rev and pwn.

I hear you. Might remake it, or remove it.

We now have a official countdown that shows all new missions in the release queue.

We did not anticipate that there will be a tie, next month we will change the formula so that the score will be dynamic and based on time spent on each mission rather than just having a single score for each mission.

This month since it is a tie, will have to split the bytes but i will see if we can do something better.

HackHF is an awesome project, and it is clear that a lot of hard work went into making it.
Big respect to everyone involved — especially the H4CK3R$ group — for bringing this to life.

The basic missions are perfect for beginners as they provide a solid starting point without being overwhelming.

The realistic missions provide a deeper, more tactical experience for experienced users.

Scoring each challenge with points gives a great sense of progress and the rankings push you to come back and leveling up.

Regardless of your background, HackHF invites you to step up and show your skills in action.

I'm loving the updated thread design skull

Very fitting for H4CK3R$ group. The dynamic gif you have in the OP is a nice touch as well.

So happy to see that this was/is such a success. Reminds me of some certain events from the old days.

Thanks. And yes the old days here was great!

Soon we will have much new content on this one.

I was asked this but I don't know what to read. Since there are already many users, I will try to enter.

I've done the first 3 basic challenges and it looks like a cool platform. Nice work! I'll try and jump back into it and do all the challenges when I have time. Excited to see how this evolves over time!

Where can I start, spooky scary

Arc Reeve - May 12, 2025, 7:02 am

Im currently trying it out and stuck at Basic 7 mission

Actually a lot of fun doing these! If you're someone who is new into Cybersecurity and want to get the handle of some beginner techniques, I heavily suggest HackHF.

For those who have made a decent bit of progress:

? BORKEN FIREWALL 9000 ?
