

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: I am a complete loser!

hackersiddd - April 29, 2025, 9:54 pm

I have spent years on the internet, searching for a way to make money. I am from a third world country and even $1000 a month would go a long way to help. I have explored different forums related to making money online, tried dropshipping, affiliate marketing, freelancing, read "ebook methods" and what not. Hell, I even tried ewhoring back in the days.

It seems no matter what I do, I am unable to make a buck online. I started when I was in high school and now I am doing a job professionally but still I can't seem to get it right. I feel such a loser when I see people making shitload of cash just from their side hustle. I have seen people less educated and less versed in tech, making money online. I don't know where I went wrong. I am a hardworker (I spend 12 hours on my job including commute and 4-5 hours on computer trying to figure out something) and at the very least an average on intelligence scale. Nowadays, chicks are driving lambos and ferraris with their OF money and kids are partying with their crypto millions. Not hating on them but why can't I be successful? just enough to own a small house and a car? have some damn stability in my life? Is that too much to ask?

I don't know why I am posting this but its not for pity. I just wanted to rant I guess.

The Joker - April 29, 2025, 9:59 pm

(Apr 29, 2025 09:54 PM)hackersiddd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have spent years on the internet, searching for a way to make money. I am from a third world country and even $1000 a month would go a long way to help. I have explored different forums related to making money online, tried dropshipping, affiliate marketing, freelancing, read "ebook methods" and what not. Hell, I even tried ewhoring back in the days.

It seems no matter what I do, I am unable to make a buck online. I started when I was in high school and now I am doing a job professionally but still I can't seem to get it right. I feel such a loser when I see people making shitload of cash just from their side hustle. I have seen people less educated and less versed in tech, making money online. I don't know where I went wrong. I am a hardworker (I spend 12 hours on my job including commute and 4-5 hours on computer trying to figure out something) and at the very least an average on intelligence scale. Nowadays, chicks are driving lambos and ferraris with their OF money and kids are partying with their crypto millions. Not hating on them but why can't I be successful? just enough to own a small house and a car? have some damn stability in my life? Is that too much to ask?

I don't know why I am posting this but its not for pity. I just wanted to rant I guess.

When it comes to making money, either offline or online, it doesn't really matter if you are educated or skilled.

What really matters is hard work, interest in learning, adapting, grinding and most importantly, network building.

Good luck in your future endeavours!

Jamika - April 29, 2025, 10:23 pm

(Apr 29, 2025 09:54 PM)hackersiddd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have spent years on the internet, searching for a way to make money. I am from a third world country and even $1000 a month would go a long way to help. I have explored different forums related to making money online, tried dropshipping, affiliate marketing, freelancing, read "ebook methods" and what not. Hell, I even tried ewhoring back in the days.

It seems no matter what I do, I am unable to make a buck online. I started when I was in high school and now I am doing a job professionally but still I can't seem to get it right. I feel such a loser when I see people making shitload of cash just from their side hustle. I have seen people less educated and less versed in tech, making money online. I don't know where I went wrong. I am a hardworker (I spend 12 hours on my job including commute and 4-5 hours on computer trying to figure out something) and at the very least an average on intelligence scale. Nowadays, chicks are driving lambos and ferraris with their OF money and kids are partying with their crypto millions. Not hating on them but why can't I be successful? just enough to own a small house and a car? have some damn stability in my life? Is that too much to ask?

I don't know why I am posting this but its not for pity. I just wanted to rant I guess.
Dont feel that bro , may be the suitable method is there but u didnt reach it yet , iam like u too , keep trying and learning, and u will reach one day

Syndicate - April 29, 2025, 10:26 pm

Don't worry bro, we're all jealous of the OF girls making millions ?

Nostre - April 30, 2025, 4:42 am

Have you tried investing in an actual course or a mentor in the niche you're interested in? Both can go a long way.

plops - April 30, 2025, 5:05 am

Step 1.

Get off social media.

You are comparing yourself to people who have found a way to monetize, most likely, fake wealth.

Step 2.

Realize women have a cheat code: pussy. Men are still a bunch of Neanderthals who just want to satisfy their primal goal.

They fall for Nigerian men posing as women. They pay them for pictures that they think are sent to them only.

Step 3.

Just focus on yourself. Seriously, thats it. You will be marginally happier when you are not comparing yourself to others. Start small.

3rd world country or not, $1000 extra a month goes a long way for most folks. Shit, I'm trying to just get a couple hundred extra a month.

Phantom_NiNja - April 30, 2025, 5:19 pm

(Apr 29, 2025 09:54 PM)hackersiddd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have spent years on the internet, searching for a way to make money. I am from a third world country and even $1000 a month would go a long way to help. I have explored different forums related to making money online, tried dropshipping, affiliate marketing, freelancing, read "ebook methods" and what not. Hell, I even tried ewhoring back in the days.

It seems no matter what I do, I am unable to make a buck online. I started when I was in high school and now I am doing a job professionally but still I can't seem to get it right. I feel such a loser when I see people making shitload of cash just from their side hustle. I have seen people less educated and less versed in tech, making money online. I don't know where I went wrong. I am a hardworker (I spend 12 hours on my job including commute and 4-5 hours on computer trying to figure out something) and at the very least an average on intelligence scale. Nowadays, chicks are driving lambos and ferraris with their OF money and kids are partying with their crypto millions. Not hating on them but why can't I be successful? just enough to own a small house and a car? have some damn stability in my life? Is that too much to ask?

I don't know why I am posting this but its not for pity. I just wanted to rant I guess.
What kind of job do you currently have that is professional? Maybe focus on that and try and get raises?

If you want to start a business it needs a lot of resources and time to make an honest living off of it.

Don't keep looking at the OF models most of them are fake. It's not a real reality for people like us. You have to work hard to earn it.

soportedepirata - May 1, 2025, 7:18 am

Many times those who know how to earn money do not manage to do it, and not for lack of knowledge, but for being slower trying to do things correctly and without suffering collateral damage such as jail, or the betrayal of other users to betray you to the police, instead inexperienced people get to generate more money, because they are exposed, work with all kinds of people, show their face by staying with other internet users, and the police just send them to jail.

It is better to slow down, and be free forever.

Dennis - May 1, 2025, 10:44 am

- 1) Stop comparing yourself. Especially stop comparing yourself to OF sluts. Also keep in mind you are thinking of the top 1% and not your average Jane.
- 2) Stop hanging around the money guide sections. You are wasting time.
- 3) Do something that has substance. Get internships or something. Figure out what you know and what you are capable of. Get some experience in a niche and build something yourself or get a decent job. But stop wasting time on forums. That won't get you anywhere.

Cryptify - May 1, 2025, 12:45 pm

keep trying and when you try put 100% effort not half baked efforts, you can fail 50 times, is enough to succeed once

ubas - May 1, 2025, 2:18 pm

(Apr 30, 2025 05:05 AM)plops Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Step 1.

Get off social media.

You are comparing yourself to people who have found a way to monetize, most likely, fake wealth. this. they rent lambos and 911s and bentleys, and their mansions are also rentals. their girls aren't real and they cannot live without ozempic. focus on yourself.