Thread: Lawmaker gets daughter drunk on her 21st birthday, rapes her after strip club night

The Pact - May 5, 2025, 10:02 pm

On her 21st birthday Rachel described a chilling night out with her father where he plied her with alcohol and continually told her to catch up with his drinking and told her : 'What happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas.'

Jessup was a Hancock County Commissioner and councilman who was forced to step down over his depravity.

Prosecutors asked for 8 to 20 years But he's only been jailed for 6 to 15 years for the depraved act of incest and rape, and will serve a minimum of six years behind bars.

Rachel said the sexual assault came after she and her father went out drinking the night before at Harrah's Hotel and Casino on the Vegas strip, where Jessup urged his daughter to 'keep up' with him as he continually ordered her more and more drinks.

After he plied her with several Long Island ice teas, she said she told Jessup she wanted to take a break, but he kept pressuring her to keep up with him to the point where he dragged her to a strip club.

At the club, Jessup ordered himself a private dance while leaving his daughter sitting at the bar, and she said they only returned to their hotel after she began throwing up from the alcohol.

Rachel said she woke up in a hotel bedroom naked with her father touching her, which she said 'shattered' her life

Jessup told detectives it was just a f-up drunk night', prosecutors said. He will serve a minimum of six years.

Death penalty by organ extraction — that way, we can save the lives of people waiting for transplants, who sometimes die because no organ is found. It gives back the real meaning to the word 'justice'.

He's blaming it on alcohol, but how can alcohol make you do that? And he wanted to take her to the strip club for her 21st? Beautiful girl. She declined the usual offer of keeping her identity hidden since just the fact he was an alleged rapist didn't stop him being elected, so she thought people knowing it was his actual daughter might at least make them think twice. ?

Her mother's husband, her step father adopted her as soon as he could after, so she could change her last name.

a similar incident happened here when one of my closest relatives went out drinking with her male friends.

i received a call from my aunt, she told me what happened .

then i quickly grabbed my firearm and headed straight to the suspect's home but i can't find him anywhere.

it was actually one of the suspect's friends who alerted him when they saw me entered their village riding a motorcycle.

the day after the incident, we filed the case and the culprit is now in prison.

But how was it a similar experience? What happened?

Sounds awful to say, but she's so lucky to have the witnesses. Rape is the world's most underreported and under successful at getting convictions in the world.

A woman in the country I live in was murdered and the police never managed to get enough evidence to to arrest anyone. My late husband saw her three days before her death and reported that to the police. He did not know her.

But the amazing thing a man outed himself to the media as a suspect when the police had never revealed that information. The police then pushed forward on a rape case against him that had been dropped by Jane's friend after Jane's murder.

The extraordinary thing was that Jane's diary was used as evidence in the rape case of her friend and they managed to put the guy away for a while for rape using the evidence of Jane's memories of her friend being raped while she stood outside the bedroom banging on the door and the perp had blocked the door with furniture.

the sad thing is the police here are very lazy .

the one who handled the case even asked me to message the suspect's relatives to ask his real name and age hence the reason why i got multiple death threats from them.

also they did not served the warrant even tho it's almost 2 weeks since it was released by the court. (i knew it since i regularly called the court for updates).

so i asked the chief from another station and gladly they helped me.

Yup, going to another station because there were lazy, arrogant cops at the first station you tried is something that you have to do. And white women victims are treated like complete trash by some cops too.

Days after winning elected office he has pled guilty to trying to sexually assault his own daughter in Las Vegas and now must resign his position.

"It's been my greatest honor serving the people of Hancock county and I'm deeply, deeply ashamed and profoundly sorry for the shame that I brought to the county," Jessup told the Daily Reporter.

At least he is going to jail for his crime, a lot of these predators don't get into trouble because trying to persecute it requires getting past the police's willingness to do it and the prosecutor's desire to bring it to court.

If the prosecutor's don't want to invest time and public money into persecuting a lot of them, the officers won't be so willing to care.

A lot of times, it's gets put on the victim for allowing the rape to happen, putting herself in that situation as if that stops the rapist.

It doesn't, so it's an irrelevant argument. Just used to demotivate the victim.

That happens all over the world and it is what feminists mean by "rape culture". Rape culture is the tendency in society to blame women for being raped.
