

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Disney employee jailed for hacking park menu system to remove nut allergies

The Pact - May 8, 2025, 8:43 am

Michael Scheuer hacked into Disney's menu creation servers multiple times to manipulate the menus. Some of the changes made included changing the prices of items and adding profane language.

Disney employee Michael Scheuer jailed for hacking park menu system to remove nut allergies. The complaint stated that the damages from Scheuer's actions exceeded $150,000.

"Michael Scheuer had a medical event that resulted in him being suspended," his defense lawyer said. "Disney then failed to respond to his inquiries about why he was suspended, and then his suspension was inexplicably changed to a termination. Disney refused to provide a response as to why he was fired and made no accommodations for him.

In an attempt at revenge he removed all the nut allergy warnings from the menus across Disney restaurants and then Scheuer additionally altered various wine origin locations to reflect locations of recent mass shootings and launched "denial of service" attacks which would lock certain employees out of their accounts, according to officials.

He also reportedly altered allergen information on the menus to indicate that certain items were safe for customers with food allergies when in fact they were not.

Michael Scheuer has now recently been sentenced to three years in prison, according to authorities. Scheuer is required to pay nearly $690,000 in restitution, with most of that going to Disney. He was also ordered to surrender the computer he used to commit the crimes.

<https://www.kktv.com/2025/04/29/fired-disney-world-employee-sentenced-prison-hacking-system-changing-menus/>

Rsynced - May 8, 2025, 9:08 am

That is just totally weird behavior. Wonder what drove him to do all these things?

The Pact - May 8, 2025, 9:15 am

(May 8, 2025 09:08 AM)Rsynced Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That is just totally weird behavior. Wonder what drove him to do all these things?

Revenge because they fired him for getting sick and taking too much time off work. He wanted to make them look bad to customers I guess. But could have even caused deaths and apparently he didn't care, or he basically wanted that so it would be in the news that someone died because of eating Disney food, and he thought there was no way he could be caught.

Rsynced - May 8, 2025, 9:16 am

(May 8, 2025 09:15 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Revenge because they fired him for getting sick and taking too much time off work. He wanted to make them look bad to customers I guess. But could have even caused deaths and apparently he didn't care, or he basically wanted that so it would be in the news that someone died because of eating Disney food, and he thought there was no way he could be caught.

crazy shit

The Pact - May 10, 2025, 4:01 am

Scheuer's job in Florida was to create and publish menus for Disney's restaurants. Scheuer pleaded guilty to one count of computer fraud and one count of aggravated identity theft.

XtremeDiscount - May 16, 2025, 6:35 pm

(May 8, 2025 09:15 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Revenge because they fired him for getting sick and taking too much time off work. He wanted to make them look bad to customers I guess. But could have even caused deaths and apparently he didn't care, or he basically wanted that so it would be in the news that someone died because of eating Disney food, and he thought there was no way he could be caught.

lol he was looking to get back at them and really didn't mind causing a bunch of collateral damage haha

Phantom_NiNja - May 16, 2025, 10:56 pm

(May 8, 2025 08:43 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Michael Scheuer hacked into Disney's menu creation servers multiple times to manipulate the menus. Some of the changes made included changing the prices of items and adding profane language.

Disney employee Michael Scheuer jailed for hacking park menu system to remove nut allergies. The complaint stated that the damages from Scheuer's actions exceeded $150,000.

"Michael Scheuer had a medical event that resulted in him being suspended," his defense lawyer said. "Disney then failed to respond to his inquiries about why he was suspended, and then his suspension was inexplicably changed to a termination. Disney refused to provide a response as to why he was fired and made no accommodations for him.

In an attempt at revenge he removed all the nut allergy warnings from the menus across Disney restaurants and then Scheuer additionally altered various wine origin locations to reflect locations of recent mass shootings and launched "denial of service" attacks which would lock certain employees out of their accounts, according to officials.

He also reportedly altered allergen information on the menus to indicate that certain items were safe for customers with food allergies when in fact they were not.

Michael Scheuer has now recently been sentenced to three years in prison, according to authorities. Scheuer is required to pay nearly $690,000 in restitution, with most of that going to Disney. He was also ordered to surrender the computer he used to commit the crimes.

<https://www.kktv.com/2025/04/29/fired-disney-world-employee-sentenced-prison-hacking-system-changing-menus/>

How did they catch him? Don't tell me that they went on the premise and Disney was like we think it's this guy that we fired.

The cops show up at the dudes crib.. Asking did you do this? He replies of course I did it... why wouldn't I ... as if it's normal behavior.

Doesn't everyone just like to get revenge on their employer when they fire them? Cops then go... WE GOT HIM!!!.

lol

Omniscient - May 18, 2025, 4:52 pm

Reads like an HF member that I banned and then harasses me and attacks HF for months.

Deranged people. Hope he gets about 2 years to think on his actions.

ariluvs - May 18, 2025, 6:39 pm

NAH ?? thats genuinely wild

The Pact - May 19, 2025, 12:43 am

(May 16, 2025 10:56 PM)Phantom_NiNja Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How did they catch him? Don't tell me that they went on the premise and Disney was like we think it's this guy that we fired.

The cops show up at the dudes crib.. Asking did you do this? He replies of course I did it... why wouldn't I ... as if it's normal behavior.

Doesn't everyone just like to get revenge on their employer when they fire them? Cops then go... WE GOT HIM!!!.

lol

Scheuer allegedly disabled employee accounts during his hacking campaigns. He locked at least 14 Disney employees out of their accounts by continually attempting to log on to their accounts with incorrect passwords. He also used a bot to attempt over 100,000 logins to their accounts, rendering them unusable.

I imagine at this point Disney asked the police if they could get their police cyber team onto it?

Moookie - May 19, 2025, 1:41 am

(May 8, 2025 08:43 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) In an attempt at revenge he removed all the nut allergy warnings from the menus across Disney restaurants and then Scheuer additionally altered various wine origin locations to reflect locations of recent mass shootings and launched "denial of service" attacks which would lock certain employees out of their accounts, according to officials.

He also reportedly altered allergen information on the menus to indicate that certain items were safe for customers with food allergers when in fact they were not.

What a dick.. he could of easily caused someone to die, or get extremely ill. I have a niece that has a nut allergy, and I've seen how her body reacts from eating something that has nuts in it, and shes gets violently ill depending on the amount she has come in contact with. One time her dad are something that contained nuts in it earlier in the day, and he went to give her a kiss goodnight not realizing he hadn't washed his mouth since eating.. him merely kissing her goodnight, caused a huge rash on the side of her face, and ultimately had to use her EpiPen to reverse the effects of the allergic reaction. Not something to be played around with.

They need to put this guy under the prison.

Pr0m3th3us - May 19, 2025, 1:51 am

Disney is trash and they deserve it. A literal shit stain on this country.

The Pact - May 19, 2025, 4:39 am

(May 18, 2025 04:52 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Reads like an HF member that I banned and then harasses me and attacks HF for months.

Deranged people. Hope he gets about 2 years to think on his actions.

I'll bet you have had more than one of those over the years. The man was sentenced to three years in prison for hacking into a menu-creating system used by the park's restaurants to falsely say foods were safe from certain allergies, when they were not. An adult or child could have died as a result of his chillingly selfish revenge plot. He also put profanity on the menus and changed the names of wine regions to the names of towns where recent mass murders occurred.

Omniscient - May 19, 2025, 9:18 am

(May 19, 2025 04:39 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'll bet you have had more than one of those over the years. The man was sentenced to three years in prison for hacking into a menu-creating system used by the park's restaurants to falsely say foods were safe from certain allergies, when they were not. An adult or child could have died as a result of his chillingly selfish revenge plot. He also put profanity on the menus and changed the names of wine regions to the names of towns where recent mass murders occurred.

Yeah, read all that when I posted my response. Deranged. Mentally ill.

Prepper - May 19, 2025, 12:01 pm

(May 18, 2025 04:52 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Reads like an HF member that I banned and then harasses me and attacks HF for months.

Deranged people. Hope he gets about 2 years to think on his actions.

2 years is lenient in my opinion.

Removing nut allergen listings could have been fatal to innocent people, 5 years to think about his actions would be better suited.

The Pact - May 19, 2025, 12:33 pm

(May 19, 2025 12:01 PM)Prepper Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 2 years is lenient in my opinion.

Removing nut allergen listings could have been fatal to innocent people, 5 years to think about his actions would be better suited.

He actually got the three year prison sentence recently. He's a stone cold psychopath. Which hasn't actually been a term used in the DSM since the DSM 2, but is still a popular term amongst regular people today. But what it means by today's criteria he must have Antisocial Personality Disorder to do this which as far as mental illness goes...personality disorder are not considered criteria to get any leniency regarding mental illness.

plops - May 19, 2025, 6:17 pm

Well ngl, changing prices and adding profane language to a Disney menu is pretty funny. But removal of allergies is too far. Attempted manslaughter and 5 years at least

The Pact - May 20, 2025, 2:42 am

(May 19, 2025 06:17 PM)plops Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well ngl, changing prices and adding profane language to a Disney menu is pretty funny. But removal of allergies is too far. Attempted manslaughter and 5 years at least

He got three years prison. I have to wonder what profanity he put where. He also changed all the wine locations to recent mass murder towns which....hopefully they don't let him out early.

Prepper - May 20, 2025, 9:36 am

(May 20, 2025 02:42 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He got three years prison. I have to wonder what profanity he put where. He also changed all the wine locations to recent mass murder towns which....hopefully they don't let him out early.

Removing nut allergens from the menu potentially resulting in the death of people, potentially a lot because nut allergies are pretty common.

Plus doing that in regards to the towns.

Yea that is some major red flags.

P??sonl?af - May 20, 2025, 10:45 am

No one has said it yet so I have to do it. I'm sorry but this guy is nuts.

Joel - May 20, 2025, 6:23 pm

(May 8, 2025 09:08 AM)Rsynced Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That is just totally weird behavior. Wonder what drove him to do all these things?

You should have your posting privileges removed permanently for this post. You give zero shits, only farming bytes worth $0.003 ?

The Pact - May 21, 2025, 12:01 am

(May 16, 2025 10:56 PM)Phantom_NiNja Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How did they catch him? Don't tell me that they went on the premise and Disney was like we think it's this guy that we fired.

The cops show up at the dudes crib.. Asking did you do this? He replies of course I did it.. why wouldn't I ... as if it's normal behavior.

Doesn't everyone just like to get revenge on their employer when they fire them? Cops then go... WE GOT HIM!!!!

lol

Ha maybe. I can't find the story of how they ACTUALLY got him unfortunately. They are calling this "hacking" and in fact he has now been convicted of "hacking," but he had the responsibility of putting all the menus for all the restaurants in the whole of Disneyland online, cool job, they gave him the password, but then they fired him for taking too many unauthorised sick days and some other unknown "misconduct."

So, I think he just had the passwords, lol but he also used bots to try to bruteforce other people's passwords, but all it did was lock people out of their accounts he couldn't get their passwords because all the bot logins just locked people out so they couldn't work, so Disney would have called police about that and then the police cyber team probably just tracked the location of where all the attempted logins came from? He's just a dopey script kiddie who now has a three year conviction for

"hacking"? He used a bruteforcing tool that didn't actually work because the days when that worked are mostly gone I think??? Companies now just lock you out with all the logins I think?

I don't think Disney guessed who it was I think cyber police team just tracked the location all the weird activity was coming from and he probably wasn't even using a VPN? lol

I'll bet if it was some small business complaining that someone was locking their people out with Bruteforce attacks the police probably wouldn't even help them.

TheNaturalBoy - May 21, 2025, 1:31 am

I understand the anger, the rage and the helplessness of being fired without justification or for health reasons and that the company in question has no consideration, but hey, this could have been terrible, the target audience of these parks are children, nobody wants a poor little one suffering an anaphylactic shock, I feel that this guy didn't think it through enough and was too idiotic and impulsive, and he also directed his hatred towards strangers, wasn't it easier to bother his main bosses for a while and annoy them? I hope the guy reflects

The Pact - May 21, 2025, 2:02 am

(May 21, 2025 01:31 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I understand the anger, the rage and the helplessness of being fired without justification or for health reasons and that the company in question has no consideration, but hey, this could have been terrible, the target audience of these parks are children, nobody wants a poor little one suffering an anaphylactic shock, I feel that this guy didn't think it through enough and was too idiotic and impulsive, and he also directed his hatred towards strangers, wasn't it easier to bother his main bosses for a while and annoy them? I hope the guy reflects

I really like your compassion, and willingness to give people the benefit of the doubt. That's rare to see on the internet, and I really respect it.

However, sadly I suspect that this guy must have something like Antisocial Personality Disorder because as you said he appears to have been literally willing for some five year old enjoying Disneyland to possibly die. He'd have to be intellectually handicapped to not realise that's a possible result, and I doubt he is IHC because to get a job like that I would think Disney would be hiring people with IT qualifications? Maybe impressive ones considering how hard people have to fight these days to even get jobs against all the competition out there.

Also one article I read said he was fired for taking too many sick days, but others said "misconduct". What kind of misconduct is never mentioned, unless just taking bulk sick days is considered "misconduct" which I suppose it could be.

Even doing the profanity is funny, until you think some little kid is going to read it on the menu. They don't need that on their Disneyland trip either, trivial as it is it's pretty gross when you think of the kids. Should have stuck to just messing up the wine list which he also did. Anyway he got three years. It's practically attempted murder, so three years is minimal.

TheNaturalBoy - May 21, 2025, 4:55 am

(May 21, 2025 02:02 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I really like your compassion, and willingness to give people the benefit of the doubt. That's rare to see on the internet, and I really respect it.

However, sadly I suspect that this guy must have something like Antisocial Personality Disorder because as you said he appears to have been literally willing for some five year old enjoying Disneyland to possibly die. He'd have to be intellectually handicapped to not realise that's a possible result, and I doubt he is IHC because to get a job like that I would think Disney would be hiring people with IT qualifications? Maybe impressive ones considering how hard people have to fight these days to even get jobs against all the competition out there.

Also one article I read said he was fired for taking too many sick days, but others said "misconduct". What kind of misconduct is never mentioned, unless just taking bulk sick days is considered "misconduct" which I suppose it could be.

Even doing the profanity is funny, until you think some little kid is going to read it on the menu. They don't need that on their Disneyland trip either, trivial as it is it's pretty gross when you think of the kids. Should have stuck to just messing up the wine list which he also did. Anyway he got three years. It's practically attempted murder, so three years is minimal.

Oh, thank you so much for the compliment! :3

But you know, even though I do slightly give him the benefit of the doubt, I don't really suspect a serious mental disorder or condition. I tend to lean more toward the little I've read about human behavior—that many people, if not the majority, are impulsive, especially when it comes to controlling their emotions. A lot of them have outbursts of anger or desperation.

That alone is why I can somewhat understand his actions. (Because if he really did have some sort of mental illness, it would be hard to imagine how he got a job at Disney in the first place, considering they supposedly don't tolerate those kinds of behaviors—or at least that's what I've read.)

It could've just been a stupid impulse to get back at his bosses. I can believe he didn't think it through even for a second, which is why he altered the menus. For that, I'd give a punishment of at least a year and a half, along with some kind of workshop or treatment focused on impulsive behavior and decision-making—for the stupidity and lack of awareness he showed in that moment.

Now, if this guy is actually a problematic, unpleasant person—someone who fakes illnesses to avoid working and is fully aware of his actions but just doesn't care—then I'd think of at least five years, plus mandatory treatment to help him manage that.

You can take all the revenge you want on your bosses, throw tantrums if you must—but messing with little kids and innocent families is extremely serious. I'm not a parent and I don't have a family of my own, but I've taken care of children and spent time around many families, and I know how it feels when a child gets hurt, falls, chokes, or can't breathe.

Of course I can imagine the immense fear and pain a mother, father, or whole family would feel seeing their little baby—or even a teenager—struggling to breathe, having seizures, or swelling up because of someone like that. People like him should face proper consequences and correction.

I just hope he reflects while in prison, learns from this, and stops messing with innocent people—especially children. I don't wish him harm; I just hope he realizes he was wrong, never does it again, and if he truly has health problems, I hope he gets better. >:3

I hope my message and idea make sense and are understandable. Sometimes it's hard for me to write long messages that make sense because I still use a translator :':3 hehe

The Pact - May 21, 2025, 5:16 am

(May 21, 2025 04:55 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh, thank you so much for the compliment! :3 But you know, even though I do slightly give him the benefit of the doubt, I don't really suspect a serious mental disorder or condition. I tend to lean more toward the little I've read about human behavior—that many people, if not the majority, are impulsive, especially when it comes to controlling their emotions. A lot of them have outbursts of anger or desperation.

That alone is why I can somewhat understand his actions. (Because if he really did have some sort of mental illness, it would be hard to imagine how he got a job at Disney in the first place, considering they supposedly don't tolerate those kinds of behaviors—or at least that's what I've read.)

It could've just been a stupid impulse to get back at his bosses. I can believe he didn't think it through even for a second, which is why he altered the menus. For that, I'd give a punishment of at least a year and a half, along with some kind of workshop or treatment focused on impulsive behavior and decision-making—for the stupidity and lack of awareness he showed in that moment.

Now, if this guy is actually a problematic, unpleasant person—someone who fakes illnesses to avoid working and is fully aware of his actions but just doesn't care—then I'd think of at least five years, plus mandatory treatment to help him manage that.

You can take all the revenge you want on your bosses, throw tantrums if you must—but messing with little kids and innocent families is extremely serious. I'm not a parent and I don't have a family of my own, but I've taken care of children and spent time around many families, and I know how it feels when a child gets hurt, falls, chokes, or can't breathe.

Of course I can imagine the immense fear and pain a mother, father, or whole family would feel seeing their little baby—or even a teenager—struggling to breathe, having seizures, or swelling up because of someone like that. People like him should face proper consequences and correction.

I just hope he reflects while in prison, learns from this, and stops messing with innocent people—especially children. I don't wish him harm; I just hope he realizes he was wrong, never does it again, and if he truly has health problems, I hope he gets better. >:3

I hope my message and idea make sense and are understandable. Sometimes it's hard for me to write long messages that make sense because I still use a translator : '3 hehe

Anti-social Personality Disorder is a personality disorder, so it isn't like the kind of mental illness that is serious in the sense of not being able to control yourself it's considered more of just having a really really really bad personality, where you enjoy hurting people. Some people are diagnosed with that condition.

I think what he wanted was for it to make the media that people had died from eating at Disneyland.

TheNaturalBoy - May 21, 2025, 5:36 am

(May 21, 2025 05:16 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Anti-social Personality Disorder is a personality disorder, so it isn't like the kind of mental illness that is serious in the sense of not being able to control yourself it's considered more of just having a really really really bad personality, where you enjoy hurting people. Some people are diagnosed with that condition.

I think what he wanted was for it to make the media that people had died from eating at Disneyland.

I see, so it could be a rather peculiar and complex personality trait. Yeah, I think I've heard of people who basically “develop” or are born with this kind of behavior without necessarily growing up in a violent or insensitive environment. Well, I just hope that if that's the case, something happens to keep this person from repeating those actions in the future—that's all I hope for.

(May 21, 2025 05:36 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I see, so it could be a rather peculiar and complex personality trait. Yeah, I think I've heard of people who basically “develop” or are born with this kind of behavior without necessarily growing up in a violent or insensitive environment. Well, I just hope that if that's the case, something happens to keep this person from repeating those actions in the future—that's all I hope for.

Wait, the quotation marks were for “born” hahaha dang it, the translator : '3

The Pact - October 26, 2025, 3:23 am

(May 21, 2025 05:36 AM)TheNaturalBoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I see, so it could be a rather peculiar and complex personality trait. Yeah, I think I've heard of people who basically “develop” or are born with this kind of behavior without necessarily growing up in a violent or insensitive environment. Well, I just hope that if that's the case, something happens to keep this person from repeating those actions in the future—that's all I hope for.

Wait, the quotation marks were for “born” hahaha dang it, the translator : '3 ASPD typically begins in childhood or adolescence as conduct disorder and is diagnosed in adulthood.

People with a parent or sibling who has ASPD or another personality disorder are at higher risk.

The frontal lobe, which governs judgment, impulse control, and social behavior, often shows differences in people with ASPD.

Reduced activity in areas linked to empathy and moral reasoning: Neuroimaging studies suggest these regions may be underactive.

Exposure to domestic violence or parental substance abuse is a strong risk factor.
Early conduct disorder- Children who show persistent patterns of aggression, deceit, or rule-breaking may later develop ASPD.

<https://www.newhealthadvisor.org/causes-of-antisocial-personality-disorder.html>

Oh_Well - October 26, 2025, 3:34 am

That's insane.

I mean, yeah, you want to take revenge on your managers/bosses, but why put people at risk? That's just dumb.

The Pact - October 26, 2025, 3:36 am

(Oct 26, 2025 03:34 AM)Oh_Well Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's insane.

I mean, yeah, you want to take revenge on your managers/bosses, but why put people at risk? That's just dumb.

Because he really doesn't care about people and just wanted the media to report that people had died after eating food at Disneyland. He put swearing on other menus though and didn't think that would give Disney a head's up.

Oh_Well - October 26, 2025, 3:38 am

(Oct 26, 2025 03:36 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Because he really doesn't care about people and just wanted the media to report that people had died after eating food at Disneyland. He put swearing on other menus though and didn't think that would give Disney a head's up.

The human soul runs deep

The Pact - October 26, 2025, 4:05 am

(Oct 26, 2025 03:38 AM)Oh_Well Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The human soul runs deep

I was going to make a thread about an article that said three people died in the last two weeks at Disneyworld but two of them were people in their 60s that just dropped dead of natural causes after going ton scary rides. And one suicide.

Oh_Well - October 26, 2025, 4:07 am

(Oct 26, 2025 04:05 AM)The Pact Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I was going to make a thread about an article that said three people died in the last two weeks at Disneyworld but two of them were people in their 60s that just dropped dead of natural causes after going ton scary rides. And one suicide.

Wow, committing suicide on Disneyworld.. That's darkness on another level. At least this guy didn't manage to harm anyone

The Pact - October 26, 2025, 5:11 am

(Oct 26, 2025 04:07 AM)Oh_Well Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wow, committing suicide on Disneyworld.. That's darkness on another level. At least this guy didn't manage to harm anyone Maybe I'll make a thread just about that one.

Chorozone - October 30, 2025, 7:01 am

Pretty insane "prank" , if someone died he would never see the outside of a cell again

The Pact - October 30, 2025, 5:28 pm

(May 8, 2025 09:08 AM)Rsynced Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That is just totally weird behavior. Wonder what drove him to do all these things?

At first he had a medical event that resulted in him being suspended from work, his lawyer said that Disney then failed to respond to his inquiries about why he was suspended, and then his suspension was inexplicably changed to a termination.

Disney allegedly refused to provide a response as to why he was fired and made no accommodations for him. He subsequently filed an EEOC complaint. When none of that worked he decided on this diabolical revenge that could have killed someone.

He got a three year prison sentence and he has to pay Disney $690,000 in restitution. Although I suppose that will be taken out of his money at $10 a week or some shit? Is that how it works?

B3A - October 31, 2025, 1:21 am

(Oct 30, 2025 07:01 AM)Chorozon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Pretty insane "prank" , if someone died he would never see the outside of a cell again

Thats most of how the greatest pranks in history were made ?

The Pact - November 3, 2025, 12:22 am

(Oct 30, 2025 07:01 AM)Chorozon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Pretty insane "prank" , if someone died he would never see the outside of a cell again

Yeah he only got three years because those menus never went out. If he hadn't done a bunch of other shit like put profanity on other menus someone might have died.