Looking for the old discord verification rat that would take kids accounts.

Will pay of course!

I don't think RAT's are necessarily effective for this these days. The main way people are getting into accounts its via token stealing and phishing.

However discord is actively looking for ways to block accessing accounts via tokens, to the best of my knowledge. On top of that phishing isn't necessarily that effective either due to discord requiring confirmation through the emails when logging in from a new device.

So really any RAT that can grab discord tokens would work, but is kind of overkill, a stealer designed just for discord would be a better lightweight option. But then you run into an efficient way to log-in via the token.

If someone with better knowledge can address my points I would be grateful.

It's a discord OTP bot where they think they are linking to a Minecraft server but are in fact getting their token and account stolen Understandable, your thread title says rat in it so I was thinking you were looking for a specific RAT tool. I'm not familiar with the tool you are talking about.

Does that then mean essentially the bot automatically logs into said discord account? Because again from my understanding having the accounts token alone then leaves you with the need to find a way to actually access the account with the token of which many typical ways are now blocked by discord.
