

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Boulder Colorado Terror Attack

Prepper - June 1, 2025, 6:07 pm

The FBI is investigating a terror attack that occurred in Boulder Colorado.

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) has charged 45-year-old Mohamed Sabry Soliman in connection with a "targeted terror attack" in Boulder, Colorado Saturday afternoon, where multiple peaceful Israeli supporters were set on fire."

"At about 1:26 p.m. local time, officers with the Boulder Police Department were called to the county courthouse on Pearl Street for reports of a man, who had a weapon, setting people on fire, according to Boulder Police Department (BPD) Chief Steve Redfearn.

The FBI said six people, ages 67 to 88, were injured and taken to the hospital.

Soliman, who was yelling "Free Palestine" during the attack, was arrested at the scene without incident, according to the FBI and BPD."

<https://www.foxnews.com/us/fbi-investigating-targeted-terror-attack-boulder-colorado-kash-patel-say-s>

No information on how many were injured, just multiple with life threatening injuries.

Omniscient - June 1, 2025, 6:10 pm

I've never been to a protest and violence like this is part of the reason. Violence at protests is not new and it's very sad that people got seriously hurt. It's extremely painful to get heavy burns. I'm not sure there is a punishment suitable enough for the attacker other than burning them alive.

Prepper - June 1, 2025, 6:18 pm

(Jun 1, 2025 06:10 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've never been to a protest and violence like this is part of the reason. Violence at protests is not new and it's very sad that people got seriously hurt. It's extremely painful to get heavy burns. I'm not sure there is a punishment suitable enough for the attacker other than burning them alive.

I never been to a protest either, actually never been to a concert, been to a few large events but I do not like to because of things like this there is just too many crazy people and extremists in the world now days to trust it.

I have had 2nd degree burns before on my hand when I was about 16, that pain was insane I could not keep my hand out of cold water otherwise it was unbearable. I could not imagine the pain these people felt with burns all of their body.

It is absolutely barbaric to do shit like this and these terrorists cannot be let off easy.

DramaKing - June 1, 2025, 8:36 pm

Just monstrous. I keep hearing that two wrongs don't make a right. Killing anyone is always wrong. A lot of these activists today, however, seem to believe that killing can be justified.

Pr0m3th3us - June 1, 2025, 8:45 pm

And no surprise to anyone...hes here illegally. Came here 2 years ago and overstayed his visa.

Syndicate - June 1, 2025, 9:07 pm

(Jun 1, 2025 06:18 PM)Prepper Wrote: CITE I never been to a protest either, actually never been to a concert, been to a few large events but I do not like to because of things like this there is just too many crazy people and extremists in the world now days to trust it.

This is why I never attend any Canada Day fireworks here in Toronto. Every year there's shootings, stabbings, robberies.. etc. Way too much of a risk to even watch fireworks is absolutely crazy. Last year, there was people shooting roman candles on a public transit bus here.