My main question is how do these people find each other? How are they such expert social engineers and also happen to find each other? I cannot even find a community for RAT enthusiasts.

It's easy... you go online and join forums like this one and just talk to people. Normally they lurk on the dark web forums. I know them and black cat.

the black cat is a group of russian hackers and some are pretty good and wrote their own software. The scattered spider is just skids but they're good at lying and manipulation. They read books like the art of manipulation. then use it in the wild.

That about sums it up, I might add that these kids have a need to join such a group and after a while they naturally start.
