Thread: HF Roadmap

Omniscient - June 6, 2025, 5:47 pm

This is likely gonna be a lame attempt at listing the projects I'm currently attempting to work on.

Unfortunately the way I work is very chaotic. I wake up, I see what's in front of me and attempt to address it. Intent doesn't matter. If I wake up and HF experienced an attack, I have to go deal with that. If someone reports a bug, I might have to go deal with that. I'm always dealing with customer service too. Members asking questions about upgrades or advertising.

Anyways, getting way off-topic. This is the best list I can come up with for now. It will be dynamic and likely constantly change. Items will get worked on as time sees fit and not in any particular order either. These also don't include secret projects or backend work which members aren't aware of.

So that's my many pages of notes turned into a list. On many of these I have notes like how the feature might work, links to an API and whatnot. Currently I have 11 tabs of notes open in Notepad++ that's always building. I can take one off and three more get added. But more recently with the help of AI I'm starting to turn that around and get more accomplished.

Does this Roadmap help anyone? I just think it's a long list of shit I gotta do.

But it was mentioned as potentially helpful and well, here you go.

Bug Bounty Award for proven bounties on officially listed sites

Make a Roadmap for members to complain about all the things not done

Dude, don't wait too long to get a new refrigerator, especially with the incoming heat, it's going to be working overtime.

Drag and Drop images right into posts would be awesome, it's something that a lot of people have gotten used to being the norm when interacting with websites.

I was wondering about the referral system, I remember there being a byte reward per member invited. Wonder if an award goal would be more attractive.

Gotta love bug bounties. Letting people flex their skills would demonstrate there are actual hackers on this site.

Interesting read, you're a busy man. Thanks for sharing.

Forgot one.

Custom Notify option on groupcp page

I'm sure that list is gonna grow faster than it's going to get done. Ideas are easy to come by, time to execute never so easy. I'm just one guy. When I had Xerotic lots and lots got done because I had someone dedicated to doing my list and nothing else. And no, I don't want to ever hire an admin again.

Zher0 - June 6, 2025, 7:19 pm

I do like the road map, i see you do have a huuuuge list. I know you mentioned you aren't working on anything in any particular order. So you're not prioritizing anything? Are they all weighted the same?

I miss those days we would see almost weekly content no matter the event and Xerotic would even come out with a few bangers on the side.

Glad to see a trello/roadmap in place, The list will forever grow for sure but slowly task by task will see itself get checked off and another 3 will get added ?

Ombra - June 6, 2025, 11:47 pm

I asked AI to take the list, group points by categories and order them by required effort.

Order always helps and starting from low effort points might make you feel accomplished and willing to proceed with more complex tasks.

NOTE: The AI BBcode didn't appear to work well as it only formatted the first line of the message.

A huge roadmap. I'm excited to see how everything goes. Thank you for your dedication to the site.

Sam - June 7, 2025, 6:50 am

How are you going to keep the beers cold without a refrigerator? That should be the priority. ?

Omniscient - June 7, 2025, 7:32 am

Ombra So you're aware, there is an AIQ mycode you should use when quoting AI, it looks much nicer than quote tags. Also you can always tell AI to use MyBB MyCode formatting in creating the reply. I'm still working on the markdown replacement.

And yeah, that's a really nice ordered list, it was late when I did it, didn't think to AI format it with groupings. I'll update first post with it.

Likely never get done because it's not the whole list and there is always unexpected work to do. Not to mention new ideas that get added. But it's still important to have a list of things to do so those moments I'm actually not doing anything, I go work on something. List also prevents me from forgetting a potentially good idea that one day might get implemented.

Most important thing on that list is to get a new refrigerator immediately.

(Jun 8, 2025 12:52 PM)jcole Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Most important thing on that list is to get a new refrigerator immediately.

So I have these twin units for 20 years. Each is a 17cu ft, one for freezer, one for fridge. They've been repaired (by me) a couple of times. Both seems to work okay but they are beat up, the freezer leaks water on the floor when it defrosts (twice tried to fix that). And lately seems like freezer isn't making ice.

The wife and I noticed the food in fridge seems to be spoiling faster. Got 2 thermometers recently. Our freezer about 10 degrees. Suppose to be zero. AI says 10 is okay but not optimal and I may get more freezer burn. The fridge is a real problem at about 45 degrees and should be under 40. I realized yesterday it wasn't at max settings. So I'm giving it a couple days to see if I can get it at least 40 degrees.

The units being 20 years old aren't worth an expensive repair. The units of this size to replace is $5k...

<https://www.amazon.com/Frigidaire-Professional-Refrigerator-FPFU19F8WF-FPRU19F8WF/dp/B093FZC4NF>

We changed our cabinetry in the house to fit these units.

Another issue, we got these because we had 4 kids and wife insisted we bought some giant units for more food. We actually love the units but now it's just the two of us and we don't need the storage. Even worse I'm keto now and the freezer mostly empty. So I'm leaning towards a single unit.

Recently bought an amazing Maytag dishwasher and so happy with it looking at a matching fridge unit.

<https://www.homedepot.com/p/Maytag-36-in-24-9-cu-ft-Side-by-Side-Refrigerator-in-Fingerprint-Resistant-Stainless-Steel-MSS25N4MKZ/312471145>

That's $1300 Home Depot but has no ice maker and the wife is an ice using fiend.

<https://www.homedepot.com/p/Frigidaire-36-in-26-cu-ft-Standard-Depth-Side-by-Side-Refrigerator-in-Stainless-Steel-FRSS2623AS/320970662>

That's $1050 on sale right now and would fit the requirements.

I'll have to deal with the "look" of the open cabinet area afterwards. Might just do a ghetto curtain and make it a useful closet.

It's things like this which home owners and especially dad's have to stress about. Stuff breaking in the home, how to fix or replace, and constant maintenance. Not to mention the financial strain.

Meh.

Interesting about the freezer burn though, my kitchen freezer is newer and freezer burns everything while my older second freezer in the garage doesn't. ?

Might have to look into that one.

1. Invest in some thermometers. You should know your temps. Could be too high or too low.
2. Ice trays, dirt cheap, easy, never break. I had to replace the ice maker in the freezer at least twice. Each time it's $70 for the part and time to undo it all and replace. Filling an ice tray takes just a moment, you can buy 4, 6, or whatever amount of ice you think you need.
3. External ice makers are fast and cheap. It's a consideration. $35 for this one...

They literally do not make them like they used to, buyer beware. Our fridge lasted about 4 years before the ice maker broke, and the water line started growing a biofilm in it despite regular filter changes. Chunks of shit in the ice and coming out into glasses of water from the spout.

Tell me about it. Our air conditioner compressor went out, our fridge doesn't produce ice/filter water, the washer won't drain properly which in turn is putting extra strain on the dryer, weed wacker seized up, transmission went out in one of the vehicles, all of this within a year and a half of each other and the list goes on ?

This is why I might end up getting the Maytag one and skipping both the ice machine and water dispenser. These often break making you want to replace or fix the unit. I can handle an ice tray and wife can't complain if I'm the one making sure 100% of the time we always have enough. Pretty sure I can handle the 3 minutes a day to empty and refill a few trays.

We already have an expensive water filtration system at our sink.

Also when you get these water dispensers from fridge the filters you have to replace twice a year cost another $100 or more annually. These things add up when you own a home. I think about what breaks, how long it can last, and overall costs.

I can understand how downsizing can be stressful as it could become an eyesore. You're not just managing appliances. You're juggling function, aesthetics, family needs, and budget. If you don't have as many heads in the house as you used to then I would go for the cheaper option. You got to get the ice maker because a happy wife is a happy life, you know that more than anyone. Keeping your two units running for two decades is an accolade in itself honestly. Unless you just absolutely want to go with the Maytag brand then look for one with an ice maker. I would go with the Frigidaire. Checks off every box in the book as far as affordability and purpose. You could always do another home improvement project and make some shelving in the open space you have after the downsize.

Adding to Fix the API endpoints for USERS and maybe ME. They seemingly don't work and that's gonna be a lot of time to fix because I have to familiarize myself with all the code (built by Xerotic). Looking at it, needs a ton of debugging code added so that troubleshooting can be accurately done.

Tons of work on that but the good part of touching the API is that once I get more familiar I can expand it with some new endpoints.

Vacation Self-Ban is now prevented if you're a Defendant in a Deal Dispute.

Seen too often someone goes into Dispute they Vacation Ban. I don't think it changes much because if people leave they leave but they shouldn't get to self-ban in that circumstance.

Good to see this being implemented. Unfortunately that is the sad state of business on the internet. Not everyone has morale. I've seen users spend months and even years building up a reputation to end up scamming.

HF Roadmap is slowly, but surely getting completed. Nice job Omni

Omniscient - June 16, 2025, 9:38 am

<https://hackforums.com> landing page done. I still want to improve it but I wanted something quick and dirty to get it started. Had some issues with the VPS it's running on. Seems like it's broken and I'll need to rebuild it. Likely gonna get rid of this VPS and move to another provider. Paying $20 a month for this one. I can do better. Saving $10 a month may not seem like a lot but it's basically 4-6 hours of work and over the course of 5 years (or more) I'll end up saving $600. So half-day work puts $600 in my pocket long-term. Not to mention the upgrade to better specs, rebuild system to updated scripts, and secure the server to latest standards.

EDIT: Oh also found email bug that got fixed last night. Not on the roadmap but was still 3 hours of unexpected work that has improved HF's backend.

Omniscient - June 17, 2025, 10:33 am

Completed the moving of some backend services from one VPS provider to another. Saved about $100 annually with about 5 hours of work. Still checking if all the adjustments are working but it should be fine. The VPS does some API work with our email provider. It's a "buffer" for security and logging. Probably an unnecessary security option if I'm being realistic but so far my paranoia has served me well in being prepared against attacks and vulnerabilities.

Wasn't on the Roadmap because this is one of those backend items which aren't listed. I have many of those. It's important that the backend of HF is updated and secured.

btw, the old VPS was online since 2013.

Thank you.

how much for that purple slizzle you got though?

Omniscient - June 17, 2025, 2:16 pm

After altering HF's email format I decided to add a View in Browser feature.

That's now done too.

When messing with a feature sometimes ideas for improvements come to me and I'm already in the files so it's just easier to make it happen. Took me about 3 hours to do both the formatting changes and the View In Browser feature.

This is example of the page.

<https://hackforums.net/viewemail.php?id=48&hash=8a011a5d9c8120fa07427b460064cdc3>

Now at the top of each email you get a link to view the email with hash will allow you to open it in browser. Emails after 30 days won't be visible.

I'm going to be blunt. I don't like the Stanley Bot creating threads on Science and events and news channels. Is this where the forum is going?

It feels out of touch and odd and not different for any other bot articles out there. I know the purpose of it is to share latest news and happenings but a bot creating threads is not the way.

If HackForums needs a news section then it needs to be a different section whose functionality would be more news like and less thread like and the news filtering system should be the state of the art where everyone gets a reason that if they need news on current world then HackForums Stanley is the place to see.

Otherwise the human created threads are better. I know the forum activity has died down but I think with bot creating threads it's going to die down even more.

I propose adding a group referral link with an option to generate a custom referral code on the registration page. This code could be given to new members who register through group's marketing activity outside of Hf on other platforms such as TikTok. Additionally, we could create a statistics page that tracks monthly contests to determine which group has referred the most new members to the site. Furthermore, we could include a list of members referred by a group, along with their upgrade status and other relevant information.

This will be very helpful for our upcoming group ViRaL and will encourage other groups to also refer more and more members to the site to get the reward or just to come at top of the statistics page.

You can already do referrals.

Or you can go here: <https://hackforums.net/refer.php>

It's based off your UID. There is no "referral code" needed on the page. I already have a couple plugins and custom related to it.

And here you can see the details of who you referred...

<https://hackforums.net/refer.php?action=details>

I even have a Bytes reward for referrers.

But I do plan on enhancing the concept with an Award Goal for referrals that are upgraded.

Would require some alterations to the way referrals work in MyBB. I know this is something you want. The best way I think this could be done is if the referrer starts with a G like "G48" or even GGID-UID so that it has both. Would need a new DB table as well. I have to see if the hooks exist.

More likely same action as "referral=", no need to alter that. Just make it so that if it starts with "G" that it processes it as a group.

Like I said, it's about the hooks really and making sure the data is processed and that a table is added to track it all.

Or worse, has a kid. :) Those take up a lot of time when they are young too. No matter what he's doing, I still hope he's living his dreams. He was a good guy.

Haven't been on this thread in quite some time. Obviously there is a still a ton listed that you have yet to do, but it's awesome to see everything that you've accomplished so far. I've also been reminded by looking at this thread of some things to come that I completely forgot you had plans for.

Great work so far with everything, keep it up ?

I really hope more of this list can get accomplished.
