I'm sure you will.

Focus on getting that career going, you were super ambitious just 30 days ago.
I don't have the zeal to pursue anything :/

What's causing so much depression in your life right now?

Work, family, finances, maybe a little of everything?

Exercise man, you have to beat it, take a walk, just move, don't think. I get it all the time.

Majorly finances, I want to make legit money and something that's permanent so I can get married.

You just have to remember that things like that take time. Rome wasn't built in a day, and most other's dreams aren't either. Hard work and dedication is required to pursue financial security.

I have two legitimate IRL businesses that are doing really well, and it feels good.
This.

The trades/local service businesses are killing it right now. Highly recommend getting into those!

The go and find and read for ways to make money. I would at this point go look for a regular job in your local area.

Go out and talk to the public about finding a job. Or start asking local people. You said you live in India.

There's jobs all over there.

Drink some green tea or black tea and get going! ???
