Thread: BitBox02 Nova Just Launched

Hey everyone,

Just a heads-up — Shift Crypto has officially launched the new BitBox02 Nova, and it looks like a serious contender in the premium hardware wallet space. I've been personally using the original BitBox02 for a while now, and in terms of privacy and security, I honestly think it's one of the safest and most reliable devices out there.

I've been following their development, and Nova brings some solid upgrades compared to the original BitBox02.

? Key Features:

- Its new crystal-clear glass OLED display is more durable and resistant to scratches
- Compatible with all major device platforms: Windows, Mac, Linux, Android, iPhone and iPad!
- New matte shell – sleek, durable, and more premium
- The new EAL6+ certified Secure Chip
- Support for Bitcoin, Ethereum, tokens, and more (same as previous, but with better performance)

? Available now on their official site:

Price seems fair for the new build quality and improved features.

Anyone here planning to upgrade or test it out? Thoughts compared to other wallets like Keystone, Coldcard, or Ledger Stax?

If there's interest, I might post a hands-on review after testing mine.
