Thread: Warriors Recruitment | Join One Of The Best Groups On HF

Cap - July 25, 2025, 10:27 pm

Welcome to the Warriors recruitment thread! Join us today!

A warrior is an individual who puts others before themselves, someone who isn't afraid to take the initiative, help others when needed, and a role model for the community. We don't follow, we lead.

About Us

For a while now, Warriors have been one of the most prestigious groups on Hack Forums. We strive to help the community and set an example of what it means to be part of this exclusive group. We have been active within the community with great giveaways/contests. The Warriors have been idle for a while but we are looking to set the pace again.

What We're Looking For

The Warriors are trying to take stride and once again show the community what we are all about. Whether you're new or a seasoned member, we are looking to add to the family. If you're active, want to give back to the community, get exclusive perks, and make some friends along the way, then this is a great opportunity for you. We are changing our primary focus - we are going to host community gaming events, community contests to win awards and other various prizes, and provide some content as well. If you're interested in taking on the elite status of a Warrior, we encourage you to apply today.

Warriors is a long standing group, was the first group to accept me as a member - their view in me changed the game for me.

I'm forever grateful for Warriors.

Love to my Warrior family.

Walter - July 26, 2025, 7:45 am

Love Warriors! Best HF group.

Sent you a convo, Cap.

Why do you want to become a Warrior?

I'm looking to align with a group that reflects the mindset and technical standard I hold myself to. My day-to-day work revolves around offensive security, not just scanning and reporting, but full-spectrum red teaming: gaining access, maintaining persistence, building custom payloads, and simulating realistic attacker behavior. A group like Warriors that values technical depth, real field experience, and constant learning feels like the right environment to both contribute and grow. I'm not interested in fluff or ego, just skill, collaboration, and serious development.

Are you currently an active member?

Yes, I stay active across threads relevant to offensive tooling, red team methodologies, malware development, and exploit chaining. I test tools, drop feedback, and occasionally publish snippets or ideas where I think they'll help others improve or look at things differently. I don't post for clout, only when there's value to share or something meaningful to contribute.

What are your skillsets? Red Teaming & Adversary Simulation: Full kill-chain simulations from initial access to domain dominance. Skilled in phishing payloads, lateral movement, persistence, and post-exploitation scripting.

Malware Development: Python, PowerShell, and C# experience building custom loaders, shellcode runners, DLL injection, AMSI & ETW bypasses, process hollowing, and evasion.

C2 Development: Worked with Sliver, Havoc, Mythic. Built HTTP(S) based C2 infrastructure and implemented custom stagers.

Web App Penetration Testing: Advanced exploitation of OWASP Top 10, bypassing WAFs, exploiting chained flaws (XSS + CSRF + logic), SSRF and RCE targeting real stacks (PHP, ASPX).

Infra & OpSec: Familiar with beacon staging, domain fronting, jitter/randomization, proxy-aware implants, and encrypted callbacks.

Tooling: Written and maintained internal red team scripts/tools for automation, credential dumping, and stealthy enumeration.

What are your hobbies or likes?

Cybersecurity research, lab testing, emulation of APT techniques, low-level programming, infrastructure ops, and reading technical papers or AARs. I also enjoy Obsidian-based note-taking and customizing labs.

What are your strengths or weaknesses?

Strengths: Persistent, analytical, and technically focused. I prefer hands-on lab work and tool-building over pure theory. I enjoy dissecting real-world CVEs and converting them into modular test tools.

Weaknesses: I sometimes go too deep optimizing or rewriting things when simpler versions would be "good enough." I also prefer small, focused groups over large noise-heavy communities.

Describe yourself:

I'm a red teamer and malware developer operating in ethical, approved environments. I value signal over noise and prefer clean, modular, and realistic tooling over flashy posts. I enjoy building and testing payloads, refining OPSEC, and simulating real attacker behavior. If accepted, I'll contribute consistently and technically, focused on quality, not hype.

Ok I'm for sure throwing an application in here - Would love to join a well respected group in the community like this.

Why do you want to become a Warrior?

Warriors are a group that has a lot of prestige here on HF and I look up to a lot of the members as an example of how to act. I'm a big believe in giving back to the community and I feel I can contribute a lot to this group.

Are you currently an active member?:

Certainly am - I log on and lurk pretty much every day but will only ever post if I have something to contribute - like to keep it HQ.

What are your skillsets? (if any applicable):

I'm an experienced programmer, and have been working in the software engineering field for over 7 years. I also have had formal ethical hacking and red team training although that's not my day-to-day profession. I've writtenua numebr of C# tutorials on here and have another one in the works for the academy.

What are some of your hobbies or likes?:

A lot of thigns tbh. Hiking, climbing, reading, board-games, table-top war games (warhammer), and PC gaming would be my big ones though.

What are some of your strengths or weaknesses?:

Strenghts are for sure my technical background and my eagerness to learn and be a part of a community. Weaknesses would be dyslexia and ADHD although I do well to manage it.

Describe yourself (as much as you wish):

firendly, welcoming to new members, eager to learn and help others, nerd. Those would be some key point about me.

Jamika - August 5, 2025, 7:59 am

Nice group , and a good leader ? good luck gathering best members

Herbert - August 5, 2025, 2:26 pm

Glad to see the color I picked out for Exchangers still exists. Truly a beautiful color.

Good luck with the group.

Radi - August 6, 2025, 8:35 am

Why do you want to become a Warrior?:

Well Why I would like to join is due to having a pretty cool looking userbar, the users that I have interacted with are respectful, active and overall friendly.

Are you currently an active member?:

Yes I am a very active member.

What are your skillsets? (if any applicable):

I am good at communicating. I do have some programming knowledge regarding website / forum coding, color grading photos.

What are some of your hobbies or likes?:

My current hobbies are gaming (FPS, MMO, League of legends)

What are some of your strengths or weaknesses?:

My strengths are I am always willing to help, learn and be there when needed as very reliable individual.

Describe yourself (as much as you wish):

I am here to learn, have fun, game and overall be a good person to others since we need more nice people in this world and less BS.

Juoku - August 16, 2025, 12:50 pm

Good luck to all of the applicants!

AS a warrior member for a few years now, I can assure you, you will enjoy the company!

One of the best groups for sure, I really love my fellow warriors!

Oh_Well - August 22, 2025, 3:43 pm

Official Warriors Application

Ready to lead by example and contribute.

Why do you want to become a Warrior?

I want to join the Warriors because I share the same mindset of leading by example, supporting others, and building something that lasts. I believe HF is a place that we need to take care of, and I'm in for the long run. I've always admired efforts that value initiative and community over ego, and I believe Warriors represent that spirit perfectly. Being part of the group isn't just about a badge, it's about contributing skills, ideas and effort to push the community forward. We don't follow, we lead - and that philosophy aligns with how I approach everything I do.

Are you currently an active member?

Absolutely. I'm consistently active and contribute to the community. I engage in discussions, share insights, and actively help others wherever possible. Not only I want to see people being part of the community, but I also want to contribute in my own small way for HF to remain the best tech forum on the web.

What are your skillsets?

? Software Engineer with experience mostly on SaaS platforms, Web hosting, building payment systems, plans/subscriptions automations, bots, scraping, monitoring and lately Knowledge Graphs and Agentic Workflows

? Have been working as a full-stack dev / analyst / Lead engineer

? Post-Quantum Cryptography

? DevOps - specializing in AWS setups

? Strategic analysis & foresight (with help of LLMs /Knowledge Graphs / Graph-RAG / Agentic Workflows) - scenario modeling, causal analysis, chatbots, dynamic entity profiling

Tech stack includes: TypeScript for front and backend, Python, Go, AWS (mostly), Terraform, Neo4j, VectorDBs, Linux, Servers, Docker, Kubernetes and more.

What are some of your hobbies or likes?

? Lately I have a very big interest on Quantum computing and Post-Quantum. Already bringing PQC to my projects.

- ? Following tech trends, AI, MCPs and quantum computing developments
- ? Design and app experimentation - always learning new skills
- ? Non-tech - Riding my motorcycle

What are some of your strengths or weaknesses?

Strengths: I'm dedicated, reliable, and a creative problem-solver. I enjoy building tools/platforms that are helpful and always think about long-term impact. I bring both technical expertise and strategic thinking to everything I'm working on.

Weaknesses: Sometimes I get over-excited about multiple things and I'm trying to do everything at once, but I've been actively working on my focus, sometimes it works, sometimes -- let me check something, brb :)

Describe yourself

I'm @Oh_Well@ - a developer, volunteer, and someone who's genuinely passionate about technology and innovation. I love building things that empower people - whether it's a secure application, a communication service, or simply sharing knowledge that helps others grow.

I value teamwork, initiative, and helping others reach their goals. I believe in contributing to the bigger picture rather than just personal gain. I love being part of collective efforts and I believe this is the only way to achieve meaningful impact. My approach to both technology and community is rooted in the idea that we rise by lifting others.

Warriors represents my core values - leadership, community, and setting the standard for excellence. I'm not just looking to join a group, I'm looking to contribute to a legacy of positive impact .

What a time to be alive!

Dystortion - August 23, 2025, 3:11 pm

Why do you want to become a Warrior?:

I thrive on building things that help other members. Warriors lead from the front with threads, code and expertise. That's exactly how I already operate on here. Being apart of group that follow the same virtues as myself would be top-tier.

Are you currently an active member?:

Yes, daily lurking to see if anything catches my attention, creating guides and valuable information when I can, and I jump into threads when I can add real value.

What are your skillsets?:

- Golang: backends, CLIs, WebSocket dashboards
- Frontend: React/Next.js, Tailwind, Framer Motion/GSAP, SEO-minded builds
- Security research: web vulns (medium level), smart-contract testing with Foundry, OSINT fundamentals
- Data engineering: ETL pipelines, structured scraping with rate-limit/backoff/rotations, data hygiene
- Finance: Investing, legal loopholes in systems - they're always there.

What are some of your hobbies or likes?:

Should be doing more of this but micro-SaaS, chess, WWII to an extensive detail, clean UI/animation work, economics

What are some of your strengths or weaknesses?:

- Strengths: document clearly, mentor patiently, and keep things of real world quality rather than PoCs when possible.

- Weaknesses: Poor management across projects at times, weekly task caps, and do first - tweak later motto which leads to me to never returning.

Describe yourself (as much as you wish):

Always willing to help out when I can. Interested in any topic so love a good talk about anything really. I'm a young dad trying to build a life for myself

FireBender - September 8, 2025, 11:40 pm

Pay for another member's upgrade or award and show proof.
