Thread: Whats the Most Random Thing You Own?

Radi - July 31, 2025, 11:52 am

What's the most random, useless, or totally out-of-place thing you own—and why do you still have it?

This can be a rubber chicken, a medieval spoon, a cursed Furby, or a sock that looks like Shrek's face.

Bonus points if you post a pic.

I for one have a magnetic stone that was given to me when I went to a renaissance festival it's about 2-3 inch big and I was given this item by a random guy I put it in my pocket and just kept it for years now. Every so often it pops up when I am looking for a something like a tool. I remember where I put it and when I actually look for it I can not find it whatsoever.

How did you get your hands on ? Did you like unbox it when you were a kid or did you purchase it recent and what does it go for ?

I personally have an Aztec death whistle. It's kind of useless since it doesn't serve much purpose, but it looks super cool and can produce one of the scariest sounds known on the planet. :)

That's honestly pretty cool and easy to keep track of in comparison to mine plus it appreciated in value so there is that as well.

If you have a crossbow i recommend placing it on a flat arrow and let it rip terrifying sound but will clear a forest for sure.

Wow, that sounds cool (and creepy). How is this supposed to work? You whistle and someone dies or it's made to scare away animals/enemies etc?

The sound that comes out of that whistle if you aren't use to it, is it's hair raising especially at night. It's purpose was allegedly to scare the enemy on the battlefield or for ritualistic purposes but no one truly knows why it was made for.

I know right but imagine going with your buds somewhere in the middle of the night or camping and you hear the aztec death whistle. I'd be running in opposite direction for sure.

Oh hell no.

If I heard that in the middle of the night, I'd probably have a heart attack right where I stand

I think that was the purpose for it so that way they don't have extra people to fight back in the day if they are dead from a heart attack easy win.

I have an old, broken USB flash drive that doesn't work anymore. It's totally useless, but it was the first one I ever owned, and it reminds me of my early days learning about computers.

1999 First edition PSA 10 red cheeks Pikachu.

I don't really collect Pokémon or anything, but for some reason I just thought this card was really cool and picked it up.

I own one of those oval caps, it's leather, I actually misplaced it, fuck it's gotta be around here somewhere.

Still have my stuffed toy dog from when i was a kid that my parents bought for me. Even though its now sitting in the wardrobe, i still refused to throw it away. Brings back many good memories.

I have a very heavy-duty mortise lock as a decoration piece in my home. It was my neighbors, and it was sawed out by the police during a drug raid once.

I also have a surprisingly large collection of DIN 912 M4 bolts that I all picked up off the street.

I have a USB Tuff 'n' Tiny. It's so small that it doesn't work, but I got it about 16 years ago, so I can't throw it away either.

I had a friend from Portugal who visited my house over the summer. When he went back home we noticed he forgot his flip-flops at my house. Since it's quite far away he could not just come and pick them up.

So for about 12 years now I have a pair of old worn flip-flops in my closet. Every now and then I still message the friend just to ask when he's going to pick up his flip-flops. I hope if I ever see him face to face again and I finally return them! xD

Haha that's awesome! ? That's got to be the most loyal case of flip-flop babysitting ever. Hopefully one day you'll reunite him with his long-lost sandals, that's some serious dedication!

I had a tiny dried umbilical cord stub for a while that everyone would say "Ewww," when I tried to show it to them. I must have lost it at some point.

I do have baby teeth somewhere too. My son's friend found a 1970s sewing machine in the shed when he was hunting for my late husband's tobacco which there wasn't any.

Temu has sent me the tiniest Minnie Mouse purse that I do not want. The size is like it is for a three year old. I did not want this thing.

That's quite the collection of random treasures, from an umbilical cord stub to a surprise 1970s sewing machine. The tiny Minnie Mouse purse sounds like the cherry on top of a very eclectic mix, even if it's not exactly what you were hoping for.

A whisky bottle full of Cate Blanchett's piss. Or that's what the homeless man told me it was when he sold it to me, anyway.

Just kidding, of course (it's Drew Barrymore's piss, we all know that Blanchett doesn't widdle). Ummmm, this is a good question, not sure what the most random thing is that I own.....I still have a book that my mother gave me as a birthday gift that she wrote inside before she died (obviously, it would be really random if she wrote in a book after she died), if that counts.

Might have to think about this, makes me realise I don't actually own very much.

I bought it because I found it interesting, I don't know who it belongs to; it's burned, it doesn't have that thing about showing the owner, it doesn't even have the vinyl case.

Maybe I could buy another one that's nicer, but I'm saving up for a... 2014 Nissan March.
