Notifications that don't clear on any app. Anyone know a way to deal with it when you just can't find what it fucking wants you to read? I'm too ADHD to handle a red dot.

Which app are you referring to? Additionally, what device are you currently using?

Have you considered muting or disabling the notifications for those apps in your device settings?

I guess I should. They do that to themselves making it so hard to find out what damn thing they want you to look at.

I took them off the first page of my phone so it would stop annoying me.

Download app data

I understand how annoying that can be. I'm glad you found a solution to your problem. Unwanted notifications are really bothersome; I have two packages on my jailbroken device that help eliminate these annoying notifications.

Oh forgot to say I'm on Samsung Galaxy 22.

Apps that have that red dot on the premium button and you can't remove it unless you buy it ARE THE ABSOLUTE WORST.

Oh, I haven't come across that. When I download an ap and it asks for money I uninstall it.

It's definitely a reason to uninstall.... It is shown as notification on app's logo on your home screen and when you open it it's just the premium button.

I've seen this mostly in fitness apps or LQ games

I would uninstall it rather if I can.

Almost all the apps I have on my phone. Notifications are turned off. I don't want tiny apps taking my attention all the time.

Yeah, I think I only allowed notifications because I have 27,500 Microsoft Reward points and those scammers aren't letting me redeem and giving me a glitch message on anything I try to redeem. So, I tried turning on notifications as one possible thing that might be causing the glitch, but I tried everything and nothing works. Bill Gates scammed me bad it seems.
