So, if you could rewatch 1 Movie for the first time what would you watch and why? :D

For me it would be Interstellar as i really love this movie and it changed quite a few things in my mind, i loved it but i first watched it halfway through and stopped and rewatched it one time, was a bad idea because it wasnt that perfect experience tihs movie deserves ?

Yeah, Interstellar was a masterpiece for sure, definitely one of those films that hits on a deeper level. For me, I'd probably go with Terminator 2. James Cameron just nailed everything in that movie, the pacing, the characters, the action, even the emotional depth with the bond between John and the T-800. It was way ahead of its time and still holds up today. Rewatching that for the first time, with no idea what's coming, would be unreal. It's one of those films that just sticks with you.

It was a battle, and Scammley won. Lol, what happened to your bytes?!

I would love to rewatch anything by James Cameron or Christopher Nolan for the first time and experience that feeling again.

Interstellar for sure and shame on you for watchin it only halfway the first time D:<

P??sonl?af - August 4, 2025, 5:06 am

The movie Fall Guy, I've seen it so many times and it's once of the movies that actually has decent Pop-culture references in it. Overall A good movie imo.

That or LoTR. xD

Oh_Well - August 5, 2025, 12:20 am

Lord of the Rings for sure.

I was young when I first saw it so I didn't really feel the excitement I'd feel now

ProfessorOak - August 5, 2025, 1:18 am the original Matrix it was great until they ruined it

RangoWorld - August 5, 2025, 1:25 am

For me it would be interstellar too. The chills I got. Oh I wish I could watch that movie on IMAX. I missed my chance.

But that movie had all. Absolute Goated

I just watched it on TV and never thought of that but IMAX would actually be insane

I want to watch the Mountains/Ocean seen on IMAX. Getting goosebumps thinking about it.

I hope Nolan's next movie (Odyssey) is on a similar scale visually. Oppenheimer was okay.

If I could rewatch Lord of the Rings for the first time, I'd do it in a heartbeat. That feeling of wonder, the world-building, the music, it all hit so hard. Nothing like experiencing Middle-earth with fresh eyes.

diablospartan - August 6, 2025, 2:49 am

For me nothing beats Lord of the rings

I see it countless time and i still not enough of him

So for sure i would see it again

bot1044net - August 6, 2025, 3:29 am

Radi - August 6, 2025, 8:07 am

Yes! The Matrix is one of those movies that hits different the first time, mind-blowing concepts, action, and that "what if this is all a simulation?" feeling. I'd love to experience that movie again too.

Knolpowed - August 6, 2025, 10:27 am

Got quite a few. Probably The wolf of wallstreet.

That's a solid choice! That film is one of those movies that just pulls you in. Seeing it for the first time is a trip, so much energy and craziness.

Oh_Well - August 15, 2025, 2:55 am

K4RM4 - August 15, 2025, 6:58 pm
