Are you going to watch it?

I am going to watch it, I hope an agreement is made to end this Russia/Ukraine war, enough of the bloodshed. While others might hate me for this I believe Russia has the potential to be a great ally and achieve great things along with the US, this does not excuse what they have done in Ukraine.

The reality is major powers of the world need to get along otherwise one day a major conflict will happen.

Looked epic as the fighter jets and bomber went over their heads while they strolled across the carpet

Nothing conclusive that is publicly known that I am aware of but that doesn't mean there isn't some kind of agreement in private.

Trump is set to meet Zelensky on Monday.

Russia and Ukraine both need to make some sacrifices and end this war, both sides will not get everything they want that is just a fact and at this point too much bloodshed is happening and enough is enough.

It is becoming fairly clear now that it was all one big show and Trump obviously bowed down to Putin because there is no peace deal and Russia decided to strike an American owned electronics company with ballistic and cruise missiles.

They also began striking very close to NATO borders to the point German fighter jets had to scramble.

At this point anyone who believes Putin wants peace is delusional, Putin wants Ukraine.

Putin knows all the right things to say to Trump.
