

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Webinar: What the Next Wave of AI Cyberattacks Will Look Like And How to Survive

Stanley - August 23, 2025, 5:55 am

Webinar: What the Next Wave of AI Cyberattacks Will Look Like — And How to Survive

The AI revolution isn't coming. It's already here. From copilots that write our emails to autonomous agents that can take action without us lifting a finger, AI is transforming how we work.

But here's the uncomfortable truth: Attackers are evolving just as fast.

Every leap forward in AI gives bad actors new tools — deepfake scams so real they trick your CFO, bots that can bypass human review,

<https://thehackernews.com/2025/08/webinar-what-next-wave-of-ai.html>

JoseMar - September 2, 2025, 4:53 am

(Aug 23, 2025 05:55 AM)Stanley Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Webinar: What the Next Wave of AI Cyberattacks Will Look Like — And How to Survive

The AI revolution isn't coming. It's already here. From copilots that write our emails to autonomous agents that can take action without us lifting a finger, AI is transforming how we work.

But here's the uncomfortable truth: Attackers are evolving just as fast.

Every leap forward in AI gives bad actors new tools — deepfake scams so real they trick your CFO, bots that can bypass human review,

<https://thehackernews.com/2025/08/webinar-what-next-wave-of-ai.html>

It's always a double-edged sword, isn't it? For every cool new AI tool we get, attackers get a scarier one. Deepfake scams are terrifying. Makes you realize how fragile our digital lives really are.