Gosh... must have been 2009. I did a search on Google for MSDN keys. I used to buy them from a guy in China for $20 a pop, found them on HF for $2 a pop and was selling the keys on eBay for $60 a pop. Sold 10+ a day - those were the days!

One thing that I remember from years ago was when the user Anonymous pulled off a crazy exit scam and said his goodbyes he was highly respected and known in the community til that point. I gotta see if I can find those threads if they still exist lol
Anyone else remember that?

The Pact - August 29, 2025, 12:50 pm

I just went along with everyone thinking I was a guy because if I didn't some incel would start screaming at me in capslock to stop "pretending to be a girl to get rep", or admitting I was a girl supposedly expecting it would get me rep, so I went along with people thinking I was a guy to avoid all the bullsh when I realised that some people would go mental if I accidentally mentioned anything girly.

I got neg rep from all the Ubers for asking them to hack something for me. lol Then a friend on here told me that when I got Uber I should neg rep them all back and wait for them to ask if I'd change it if they plus repped me so then all but one got rid of their neg rep and that one got all pissy about my asking and wouldn't remove, but then like six months later whined at me about why I had neg repped them and I said "You refused to remove yours six months ago."

I was happy that Omni gave me Uber on my first try because that didn't happen for everyone. I remember this one dude was crying because he was denied Uber and so I looked over his profile and told him that maybe it was because he made a thread talking about getting into a fist fight at school. He got mad about that.

I did finally get a 16-year-old to successfully hack what I wanted. It was just a dumb little message board where they were DOXing and bullying people, and he just randomly did it, just fucking destroyed that board with a brute force attack and then I paid him $25. lol I was actually a bit shocked because I hadn't even meant for him to destroy it. I wanted the admin password to delete the DOXing but actually it was better because they were fucking HORRIBLE people and deserved it. And even better they all went to another board I knew about to cry over it, so I got to read all that. lol.

I remember when hf used to have a list of names at the bottom of the screen of people who were viewing a page or online. It made the community feel alive. There may be less names now but I would like to see it back regardless.
