Thread: Searching popularity ?!

Jamika - September 1, 2025, 12:12 am

Hi everyone

So my suggestion is simple... can something be added that allows us to search in popularity by the person's name to see if we have given them something before, and what exactly we gave them?

This will make it easier to adjust and check popularity.

Thanks in advance.

If you try and add a popularity rating to that specific member it will show if you have one on them already, no? Just seems pointless to add a feature when you don't need it to begin with.

What do you mean?

I mean that when I search for "Omni," for example, I find what he gave me and i gave him

I didn't mean what I gave him only

For example, I want to know the members of a certain group or several people... instead of searching for them page by page, I search for them directly by name.

Just try to give the user popularity and it will show you if you have given it or not.

Useless suggestion imo because the functionality is already there

Top tier pointless suggestion. Use the features already embedded in MyBB.

Could you explain why you want to do this? I'd like to understand your reasoning better. I sometimes wish the old reputation system was still in place, as it would prevent these disgusting rep for rep shenanigans.

I want to add a search-by-name feature in the popularity list to see how many positive or negative points a member has given to me , if possible or not thats omni work , its suggestion not an order after all

I don't understand what your reply has to do with the exchange thing or old system and all that.

I actually think there is a use for this. Gonna consider an implementation.

Your negativity lately is insane. Sounds like you're completely burnt out from HF. Maybe an idea to take a break from the forum.

From me specifically, not from the forum as a whole... ever since the award topic he's been attacking me in the convo and insulted me, expecting me to be afraid of him. But I completely humiliated him in front of the convo, and he ran away like a child.

If you go to their profile and go to rate them it will show your last rating for them.
