The AI-Driven Venture I'd Build If I Were Starting Over

The Digital Product + AI Stack is the one model where you build once and sell forever No fulfillment, no shipping, no support calls, no email list, no social proof, no brand - what would you do? That's not just a thought experiment for me. That was the reality not long ago. I had no leverage, no audience, and no trust built with anyone online. All I had was curiosity, some grit, and a growing interest in AI.

The "build once, sell forever" dream is so appealing. It's a really cool concept for starting from zero. Honestly, the 'no support' part sounds too good to be true, but I love the mindset.

Starting a business using AI tools makes the process faster and cheaper.
It allows small teams to compete with bigger companies.
