Paper wealth. And why not? Everyone else is supporting an alt token.

Man whole presidential era is about willing his own pockets imo.

Trump is the only US President to have actually lost net wealth during and post office.

So if "lining his own pockets" was the goal, he's failing huge.

But I get it, the narrative makes people feel better about their TDS.

One could argue that indeed.

That has more to do with his public company Truth Social and its paper wealth as a shareholder.

But again, I understand your narrative and where it comes from.

Quote:The Trump family's involvement in crypto has brought an air of legitimacy to the cryptocurrency industry in the US following years of anti-crypto policies under the previous administration.

Still have mixed feelings on this.

On one hand it's great we removed the anti-crypto lobbyists and road blocks.

On the other hand there's a US president pretty much Wallstreeting it up. Good for him, as long as he doesn't taint the integrity.
