

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: on emails that have been "pwned" how would one gain access to the logs/data breaches?

johndoeman805 - September 13, 2025, 3:55 pm

Like on haveibeenpwned. One can check their email address and see if it was "pwned." Sometimes the email address has been "pwned" and the website explains various data breaches. However how would one access the hacked data dump? Are there special websites to access this data? Can one find them on here? Does one usually have to pay for the harvested info? Hypothetically how much would that type of data cost?

CL1B - September 13, 2025, 4:11 pm

So, when a company refuses to pay a ransomware/hack group the ransom or calls it bluffs they'll often release it on darkweb forums. I can't mention the names, but if you follow some in depth reports/blogs on recent ransomware attacks you'll quickly find them yourself. This is where big breaches (luckily in today's ago only snippets are released as proof of data theft) are both published and eventually wiped from, the rest is just a chain reaction.

When CCs do large scale "logging" they'll often have their own infrastructure or they'll sell them as "logs" on similar forums and marketplaces on both the clear and darkweb.

Haveibeenpwned and similar service mainly keep tabs on that first one, for obvious reasons.

johndoeman805 - September 13, 2025, 5:44 pm

(Sep 13, 2025 04:11 PM)MarlboroMan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So, when a company refuses to pay a ransomware/hack group the ransom or calls it bluffs they'll often release it on darkweb forums. I can't mention the names, but if you follow some in depth reports/blogs on recent ransomware attacks you'll quickly find them yourself. This is where big breaches (luckily in today's ago only snippets are released as proof of data theft) are both published and eventually wiped from, the rest is just a chain reaction.

When CCs do large scale "logging" they'll often have their own infrastructure or they'll sell them as "logs" on similar forums and marketplaces on both the clear and darkweb.

Haveibeenpwned and similar service mainly keep tabs on that first one, for obvious reasons.
very informative? however why are you not allowed to mention darkweb forums on here? is it illegal to post darkweb links? sure a lot of pedophiles/illegal drugs and other illegal stuff on the darkweb but is it illegal for one to access forums that post breached databases? (i want to know the legality just curious?)

HerrWinston - September 14, 2025, 2:08 am

(Sep 13, 2025 05:44 PM)johndoeman805 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) very informative? however why are you not allowed to mention darkweb forums on here? is it illegal to post darkweb links? sure a lot of pedophiles/illegal drugs and other illegal stuff on the darkweb but is it illegal for one to access forums that post breached databases? (i want to know the legality just curious?)

No its not really that, in the rules and etiquette a rule is to not name other forums especially not these who compete with HackForum :)

Err0rX - September 14, 2025, 2:39 am

(Sep 13, 2025 03:55 PM)johndoeman805 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Like on haveibeenpwned. One can check their email address and see if it was "pwned." Sometimes the email address has been "pwned" and the website explains various data breaches. However how would one access the hacked data dump? Are there special websites to access this data? Can one find them on here? Does one usually have to pay for the harvested info? Hypothetically how much would that type of data cost? When a company is hacked, the person behind the leak will decide if they are going to publish the information or not. If they do, the website Have I Been Pwned will notify you of publicly collected information and if your email or account was compromised. They do not actually provide the stolen information; they simply note the breach.

In reality, it is all based on publicly available information, so there is nothing illegal.

DramaKing - September 14, 2025, 8:27 am

This is a legitimate forum. It's because of rules like "DO NOT DISCUSS BREACHES" that HF has not been raided like forums that did allow this. Admin cooperates with law enforcement, which is why he hasn't been arrested.

Gucio260608 - September 14, 2025, 8:53 am

(Sep 13, 2025 03:55 PM)johndoeman805 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Like on haveibeenpwned. One can check their email address and see if it was "pwned." Sometimes the email address has been "pwned" and the website explains various data breaches. However how would one access the hacked data dump? Are there special websites to access this data? Can one find them on here? Does one usually have to pay for the harvested info? Hypothetically how much would that type of data cost?

You generally will not be able to download full hacked data dumps through legitimate services since sharing that material directly would be illegal. But you can use sites like dehashed.com which index breach records and let you search to see if your information appears (which is somehow legal I believe).

vetbesim - September 15, 2025, 3:42 pm

try use breach.vip

RowdyCat - September 15, 2025, 7:23 pm

(Sep 15, 2025 03:42 PM)vetbesim Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) try use breach.vip thank you brother very good site

maxtac - September 28, 2025, 3:17 am

Yes you can use OathNet.org to access the breached data to secure whats has been exposed