Thread: Jimmy Kimmel show cancelled "indefinitely"

zanzibar1 - September 17, 2025, 4:19 pm

Thank god, I could never stand this guy and wondered why he wasn't cancelled sooner.

Don't want to bring politics into this, but seriously, what was he thinking accusing MAGA that Charlie Kirk was "one of them" despite the shooter clearly leaning left.

And nothing of value was lost. I can't believe anybody ever watched this guy in the first place

DramaKing - September 18, 2025, 9:40 am

He's not unfunny, more than some others, but him saying that the "MAGA gang" is using the shooting for political gain is the height of hypocrisy. How many times has he made politically-motivated attacks?

It's because of this I bet! ?

- The fact that you guys cheer the government on when they threaten freedom of speech is absurd to me.

- The government orgs should not be suing and threatening so many media companies. It is disgusting and non-democratic.

- If you genuinely see something like this and think "that's great", you probably have no clue how our country works, or the freedoms we enjoy.

- We aren't China or Russia, we are America, and that's a difference only free people can truly understand. We should not let this go lightly.

- Freedom of speech matters. Our President lies every single day and accuses people all the time. Why is Jimmy in trouble???

Food for thought:

The Charlie Kirk shooter was definitely more MAGA than not. Why? he was just trying to make America great again.

Some more thoughts:

The shooter was the only non-MAGA in his family.

So, you could definitely make a point that he was driven mad by mental illness surrounding him, with no valid thoughts or ideas except for his own.

Obviously he came to the wrong conclusion, but yes, i do think this is more a result of MAGA than anything else.

At the end of the day, Jimmy Kimmel is not wrong.

Right or left is irrelevant - this is not a political topic. MAGA is a delusion and illness, not a political party or valid belief system.

When you're surrounded by this, it could certainly be infuriating.

Lastly, Kirk & MAGA have repeatedly called for the invasion of sovereign US states, without legal authority to do so.

That would be similar to a civil war, if not a true civil war.

When MAGA shares rhetoric like "im not so sure" (Trump's recent response about freedom of speech) and also jerks off to the idea of the national guard invading sovereign states... It's really no wonder that there is pushback.

I do not condone illegal violence or illegal killing.

I do however understand that MAGA is pushing the boundaries of democracy, and I think this whole thing was pretty predictable.

yes, go on and get a loudspeaker and talk about how you think certain demographics should be discriminated, and that it should be ratified in law.

Don't be surprised when someone invokes the 2nd against tyrannical overreach. Js js.

When one party calls for the forceful destruction of an entire political group (MAGA has recently labeled 'liberalism' as terrorism), then invoking the 2nd is not a violent matter - it is a legal remedy, and we do have that right.

I'm not saying I support civil war. I do however fully support all legal protections that our Constitution affords, and understand that the People have the true power - not the federal government.

Fuck outta here.

Yeah exactly. They don't believe in freedom of speech, state's rights, gun rights for all, etc. They've literally folded on every single one of their principles.

They're all just RINO - Republican in name only.

Quite literally... There are no conservative or republican values in play right now. Only Trumpism and hivemind runs the country now.

I don't love Jimmy Kimmel, don't get me wrong, but to pretend like he deserves to have his show shutdown is ridiculous.

For what? Sharing an opinion in a free country?

For what? If MAGA actually could read, they might know that Trump & this administration has falsely identified shooters as liberal on countless occasions.

When the governors were assassinated just a few months ago - that was MAGA
And yet Trump said it would be a waste of time to call the Minnesota Governor, he did not lower the flag, and there was no uproar.

His name was "Vance Luther Boelter" and he assassinated a sitting congress member.
MAGA and I would assume most of the MAGA on this forum did not give a fuck, and still do not give a fuck.

I'm bipartisan. I afford everyone equal attention.
Nobody is going to tell me that Kirk deserves more attention than sitting congress members, and yet that is what this regime demands of us.

oh well... At least the red states accept the Constitutional violations willingly while blue states fight for our rights.

I know who'll be better off.

No, great question!

Very little of what i say is political, and I too am so fucking tired of "politics", I've never pretended to be "political" or stoop down to "opinions".

To pretend it's political is to pretend they have points worth listening to.

People keep trying to make things political, like they'll act like climate science is political, or that human rights are political, or that progressive policies are political.

Another good one is when they try to make math political by claiming that things like tariffs are "political" instead of admitting the truth, they cannot calculate numbers adequately and do not understand basic finance 101.

Very little of what's going on is political - it's incompetence on full display for the world.
It is why I fight so hard for what's correct.

Purposely done to create confusion among the masses. Works with a 99% success rate obviously.

Yep, 100%.

Flood the zone.

Question everything.

Lie. Always lie.

Lie more.

Lie so much that they can't remember the truth.

Lie until the biggest lie is just 1 word further than the last.

Much of what's going on can be found in playbooks for this exact type of scheme.

It's part of why I get so upset...The scheme only works on stupid people, and it reaches a point where they feel smart for agreeing with the scheme, and they don't even question it. We are there...

Anyways, perhaps the best thing to do is to avoid ever risking the chance that they become more educated.

Perhaps the answer to this is to let them fail, and to let them fail happily in their own ignorance.

If a storm is on the horizon, you can only tell people to prepare for what's coming so many times before it's best to let the hurricane tear their home apart as they scream to the hilltops that climate change is a lie.

100% agreed. It is literally fucking retarded.

I would rather kill myself than ever be MAGA. I will never be so fucking stupid to worship this regime. Pathetic. Bunch of simps, and boys parading as men.

I don't know how obvious it has to be. It's like looking at feces and saying it smells like roses, and then telling people they're wrong for calling it shit.
It's shit. It is literal shit. There is no way to describe it other than saying what it is: a giant pile of shit.

I don't know how we get out of this. They literally can't be trusted to vote, the incompetence required of anyone supporting this is ridiculous.

Like I just don't know how to get past it. It boggles the mind. It's ... yeah, it's fucking retarded.

At the end of the day, nothing I've said here is political.

Laws are laws, the Constitution is the Constitution.

It's an illegal regime, no other way to really put it at this point.

Even the appointments... Christ, we have a gardener in anti-terrorism, Barbie Noems, fucking RFK

Like I just don't get it ... How retarded are these people? I truly do mean all of them. How stupid are 70+ million Americans? Perhaps irredeemably stupid.

- this is a bipartisan message - Republicans & Democrats are not MAGA - I don't know what Trumpism is other than a mental disability, illness, or at best it's a cult of smart-but-brainwashed losers.

BTW - I do want to say that I am actually in a good mood currently.

Some things must be said regardless of mood. For every MAGA insult I share, I create a safe space for an actual American.

AI Quote: AI Overview

The term "WEED OUT THE TERRORIST" is not a formal counterterrorism program, but rather a colloquial phrase that refers to efforts to identify and remove terrorists and their sympathizers. Governments and international organizations employ various strategies to achieve this, including:

- Vetting processes: Countries like the United States have policies to protect their citizens from foreigners who intend to commit terrorist acts by implementing strict vetting for immigration and visa applicants.
- Designating Foreign Terrorist Organizations (FTOs): The U.S. Department of State designates foreign groups that meet specific criteria as FTOs. This designation helps to curtail financial and material support for these groups.
- Intelligence and law enforcement efforts: Various government agencies work to disrupt terrorist plots and activities. These efforts include intelligence gathering, monitoring suspicious activities, and pursuing legal action against those involved in terrorism.
- International cooperation: Nations collaborate to share information, intelligence, and resources to counter terrorism on a global scale. This includes working with international bodies and partner countries to address threats.

Counterterrorism measures are continually evolving to address new threats and challenges. The effectiveness and ethical implications of these methods are also the subject of ongoing debate.
