Thread: Russia Violates NATO Airspace

Prepper - September 19, 2025, 10:13 am

MiG-31 Jets capable and possibly carrying Kinzhal missiles violated Estonia's airspace and flew back and fourth for 12 minutes until Italian F-35's came in to push them out according to reports.

This comes after Russia violated Poland's airspace with drones, and this is the 4th time Russia violated Estonia's airspace this year.

<https://www.foxnews.com/politics/russian-jets-violate-estonian-airspace-foreign-minister-says>

Estonia is a NATO member and is considering invoking Article 4 consultations.

My opinion, enough is enough, Russia wrongfully invaded Ukraine, and since then has violated NATO airspace multiple times, they fail to agree to any ceasefire, and NATO failing to seriously step up is making NATO look weak and Russia is trying to fully figure out those weaknesses .

I feel that NATO should give a full and final warning that any further violations of NATO airspace will result in their aircraft being shot down without any warning.

Additionally I think the US should deploy THAAD to multiple neighboring NATO countries for additional defense., The President needs to realize that Russia is not our friend.

The sad truth is that NATO has become the long arm of US to control Russia and apply pressure.

Whenever US wants to create tensions with Russia, they use NATO and the EU pays the price.

The war with Ukraine only affected Europe - both US and Russia are doing just fine

Ukraine is an international concern.

Why? Because Russia, UK, and USA all agreed to protect Ukraine in return for nukes, and we agreed to never threaten their borders or sovereignty.

It is 100% a UK and US issue. Russia pretends it's not, but that's because they are genocidal maniacs.

Lets not forget that before Hitler attacked Soviet Russia, they had a pact which specifically allowed Germany to invade Poland without Russia interfering.

You don't get a full WW2 and Holocaust without Russia's direct involvement and enabling of the Nazis.

Fuck Putin, fuck Russia.

Quote:At the time of Ukraine's independence from the Soviet Union in 1991, Ukraine held the third largest nuclear arsenal in the world

Quote:By 1996, Ukraine had returned all of its nuclear warheads to Russia in exchange for economic aid and security assurances, and in December 1994, Ukraine became a non-nuclear weapon state-party to the 1968 nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty (NPT).

As the United States mediated between Russia and Ukraine, the three countries signed the Trilateral Statement on January 14, 1994. Ukraine committed to full disarmament, including strategic weapons, in exchange for economic support and security assurances from the United States and Russia.

Quote:The Budapest Memorandum on Security Assurances comprises four substantially identical political agreements signed at the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe (CSCE) in Budapest, Hungary, on 5 December 1994, to provide security assurances by its signatories relating to the accession of Belarus, Kazakhstan and Ukraine to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT).

Quote:The four memoranda were originally signed by four nuclear powers: Ukraine, Russia, the United States, and the United Kingdom.[1] France and China gave individual assurances in separate documents.

Need i say more?

This is 100% not a RU/Ukraine issue, it's a global issue.
The idea that the US/UK are not related is propaganda.
We promised to protect, and we will.

There's only 1 aggressor and traitor in the equation: The Motherfuckerland of Russia.

Moscow will fall eventually, and we will celebrate.

One of the nice things about the war is that almost the whole Soviet stockpile is gone.
Also thousands of Russian soldiers are dying in Ukraine, and in the last 2 years they've gained less than 2% of Ukraine's land mass.

Lol fuck em

I just wanna say also that if someone tells me the war is justified because 900ish nazis used to be in the Azov Brigade, then you should look at the population of neo-Nazis in your own country and decide if you would be happy being invaded for the same reason.

Hint: Russia's invasion is not justified. Sorry, 3-day special military operation, my bad.

Get out of Ukraine, that's the only thing RU needs to do. Anything less is just asking for us to send more bombs, and we will do it happily.

That's how you start your path to recovery.

Eventually we will authorize deeper and deeper strikes. How are the oil refineries doing by the way? Economy strong?

I like Russian people, but they are under the iron fist of Putin.

I actually went to school with an oligarch's son once. Yes, you would know him.

This is very true. Russians must be careful of dear leader.

For the rest of the world, we can say things like Vladamir Putin probably sucks cock on the daily for his daily dose, and we won't be in danger.

We can say things like perhaps Vladamir Putin should be shot in the back of the head for the genocide of Ukraine's culture & people, and we are not in danger.

We can say things like Vladamir Putin's daughter's name is 'Elizaveta Krivonogikh' and she allegedly goes by 'Luiza Rozova' and 'Elizaveta Olegovna Rudnova', and we will not be in trouble.

This is the difference between free countries and shitholes like Russia.

Again, I have nothing against the Russian people - at all.

I only call for the deaths of all soldiers, all officers, and their entire government, and the execution of Vladamir Putin as an ethical and necessary self defense tactic - not just for Ukraine, but for humanity.

If Ukraine falls, we'll never convince another country to denuke again.

For that reason, USA, EU, etc will never let it fall. It won't happen.

Lately I've noticed that the media is starting to engage in manipulation more than usual i speak from experience from the situation that is happening in my country some publish one news and others the same but in reverse.

How much do you actually trust the media and what they publish?Who's pulling the strings here? It's time for the tycoons to rule what's the news?

I'm not politically inclined but these are my observations.

When you add it all up and subtract it, everything here revolves around benefits, profits, politics and power, no one thinks about people.

You have to take into consideration those soldiers a lot of them are kids, a lot of them don't have a choice and if they speak up their families are in danger.

Additionally the not even all of the government is bad, again if they speak up or trying anything the same thing happens in fact it already has happened where they "jump" out of windows.

Even Zelensky understands that.

I do understand that. Just as Russians send Czech & others to hold the backline and kill comrades who retreat, I recommend the Russian kid soldiers execute their commanders and kill non-compliant comrades who march forwards. Same shit, different direction.

Russians killing Russians is basically tradition at this point. I'm just asking them to maintain the status quo a little more effectively - with purpose and conviction.

I agree with that gov comment - you're right. We should only extinguish the people who are pro-war and contributing to the war financially, materially, or in time & effort.

Of course, yes, if they speak up they will be silenced. I am suggesting something else - a complete revolution.

If there are Russians here, I am wondering - theoretically of course... If you were provided safe passage for your family, protection, and funds, would you be willing to defend Ukraine? Would you be willing to assist with the disruption of telecommunications, the destruction of barracks, oil refineries, or other facilities? Would you be willing to plant explosives, EMPs, or implement other strategic defense methods?

> If so, there are a number of resources to help you bring peace to the world, and defend Ukraine.

> You should look into this, especially if you are in a neighboring oblast, near military facilities, or close by other valid military targets.

> Ukraine is willing to help you. All you need to do is ask.

> Make money. Help start a revolution. Kill Putin & destroy his oligarchy. You have the power, and all you need to do is ponder whether or not you want your family to live under his rule or not.

> You can either be a pussy, or you can be a hero. The choice is yours.

I think it is time, just as it was ethical for a German citizen to kill Nazis, that it is also ethical for a Russian citizen to kill Russian soldiers and government officials. I think that if we have a multi-faceted effort with international support, we can bring true peace and freedom to Russia.

We can agree that Putin is a maniac. I'm just saying that he's an easily threatened maniac. However, shooting down Russian aircraft in NATO airspace is probably something that have to accept, rather than escalate tensions over. Maybe both.

just like the International Criminal Court is a joke with their "warrants" that never go more than just a "please arrest this very powerful figure, it won't happen but we can beg for it! :)" message, NATO will always follow suit in being equally stupid. So many times these past few years if not a decade that NATO has been taunted and nothing has come of it except for sanctions that go nowhere except for hurting the civilians. The governments don't give a flying fuck.

Last time the Russian people revolted, Vladimir Lenin took power. I wouldn't be so optimistic. Also, Putin's approval rating is over 80%. People are too afraid to voice disapproval, perhaps.

As for NATO, I believe that they mean it when they said "Not one Russian boot." Poland has shot down Russian drones. If a Russian so much as fires in their direction, I believe that it will be war.

I would suggest that if a power vacuum is created and the new leader is not "of the people, by the people, and friends with the world" that we conduct a military strike to try again.

I don't think any country should be fighting for new borders, and if they are then perhaps they don't need any borders at all.

But in response, perhaps all of Russia should be Ukraine.

Russia is now threatening that if NATO shoots down Russian aircraft it would be war.

Imagine that, a country committing hostile acts by entering NATO airspace, continuing to taunt around NATO airspace says that if NATO decides to protect their airspace, defend their citizens and territory that it is "war".

Russia is only capable of making nuclear war threats, but it is all talk no action when it comes to Russia.

They know very well that as soon as they were to directly attack NATO after defending it's airspace from Russian aggression and their cruise missiles, drones, ballistic missiles, etc launch towards NATO territory that they would be absolutely demolished in response.

Why? Because Russia, UK, and USA all agreed to protect Ukraine in return for nukes, and we agreed to never threaten their borders or sovereignty.

It is 100% a UK and US issue. Russia pretends it's not, but that's because they are genocidal maniacs.

Lets not forget that before Hitler attacked Soviet Russia, they had a pact which specifically allowed Germany to invade Poland without Russia interfering.

You don't get a full WW2 and Holocaust without Russia's direct involvement and enabling of the Nazis.

Fuck Putin, fuck Russia.

Need i say more?

This is 100% not a RU/Ukraine issue, it's a global issue.
The idea that the US/UK are not related is propaganda.
We promised to protect, and we will.

There's only 1 aggressor and traitor in the equation: The Motherfuckerland of Russia.

Moscow will fall eventually, and we will celebrate.

One of the nice things about the war is that almost the whole Soviet stockpile is gone.
Also thousands of Russian soldiers are dying in Ukraine, and in the last 2 years they've gained less than 2% of Ukraine's land mass.

Lol fuck em

I just wanna say also that if someone tells me the war is justified because 900ish nazis used to be in the Azov Brigade, then you should look at the population of neo-Nazis in your own country and decide if you would be happy being invaded for the same reason.

Hint: Russia's invasion is not justified. Sorry, 3-day special military operation, my bad.
Who dropped the bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki? Was it the "evil" russians?

But you're of course excused, because you just "protected your way of life" like you always do through another war outside your own country.

The United States is the most evil regime on the planet - know your own history before you open your mouth about other countries.

2. It was calculated that those bombings actually saved many lives, by avoiding war.
3. The Japanese committed many, many crimes in the lead up to that.
4. Russia literally had a pact with Hitler to not intervene or fight, allowing the reich to invade Poland. Soviets killed many, many, many on their own.
5. The US is not the most evil regime on the planet.

I personally think bigger than the United States. I dream of something bigger. Something more powerful. With less opportunity for evil. A global, united civilization - I think we should call it ... Earth.

Participation in Earth is not requested, nor optional. We are all here, together. We only have one border.

Do not confuse this message for full inclusiveness. Exclusion may be necessary for inclusion, for Earth, its biodiversity, our species, and the future.

We are all, we are Earth, we are one. Compliance is Mandatory.

At the end of the day, one day we will not crush countries because of their deeds, but because of their emissions and impact on our planet, or the crimes against Earthlings or other species. We will not worry about what a king or a dictator says, for they are just a citizen under the Laws of Earth. I trust one day it will be so. What is ethical or not ethical is simply a social construct. All politics are a distraction. Earth, and we are important. I've told myself I must be strong in this conviction. Politics itself as a concept is broken. Flags are broken. Borders are broken. We're all one, and anyone telling us otherwise has a hold on our freedoms, powers, and opportunities. Rather than argue with which is better, may we tear it all down instead and rebuild anew as a stronger species, and stronger planet.

One day, all kings, and presidents, and queens, and dictators, and emperors will bow at the feet of those who unite the people of Earth - and may they kiss the billions of feet. We don't need all of this, we already have Earth. Why do we fight over oil, or gold, or grain? Because kings and presidents divide us and hoard the rewards of chaos. Earth is a treasure, a crown of our solar system, and the crown rests on our heads, the burden of protecting Earth is on us. We should think more like this. Rather than crowns or palaces, we should join together for the mountains or lakes, seas, and deserts, and treat this planet as one kingdom of its own.

If we all aim to achieve this together, we will be better off.

In the meantime, there are acceptable uses of military force to ensure the safety of the planet, and freedom of its people from those who seek to take it away.

My opinion, enough is enough, Russia wrongfully invaded Ukraine, and since then has violated NATO airspace multiple times, they fail to agree to any ceasefire, and NATO failing to seriously step up is making NATO look weak and Russia is trying to fully figure out those weaknesses .

I feel that NATO should give a full and final warning that any further violations of NATO airspace will result in their aircraft being shot down without any warning.

Additionally I think the US should deploy THAAD to multiple neighboring NATO countries for additional defense., The President needs to realize that Russia is not our friend.

Trump has continued to sell weapons to Ukraine, continue to support or look past our allies who sell our weapons to Ukraine, he sells weapons to our allies who then give the weapons to Ukraine, and he did not successfully block much of previously approved money. Our congress has the authority, and only authority to allocate funds and enforce their use. The executive branch, and any President does not have the authority to prevent or interfere with the execution of congressional budget allocations, their purpose, and intent. The executive branch is not the most powerful branch, nor is it the only branch of our government.

I am bringing this up so you understand why even with Trump's goals, he did not achieve much of it. This is because in the US democracy, any President - democrat or republican - cannot simply override the powers and authorities of our Senate & House, and the Supreme Court (SCOTUS). Additionally, many federal circuit and state courts do have legal authority to prevent or delay or investigate and rule on the constitutional or otherwise legal validity of actions taken by the other branches of the government. This is to protect the freedoms of all Americans, but also to ensure we follow the directives, congress approvals, budget allocations, and other orders or laws instituted by each administration. Just as Trump must obey the rulings of the courts currently AND from the past, Biden had to deal with Trump's, Trump with Obama, Obama with Bush, and as it will continue.

If you actually do look at what Trump is doing, you will see that he is happy to send billions overseas to Ukraine, Israel, and others.

I want to also mention to everyone that this post is not yet political. I have mentioned actions taken by our government, the way the branches work, the legal powers of each, and mentioned real events.

Politics are a social construct & distraction. I am trying to really stick to this. I don't want to argue or be mean.

Just this week, Trump excitedly posted:

Quote:"Ukraine, with the support of the European Union, is in a position to fight and WIN all of Ukraine back in its original form," Trump wrote on his Truth Social network.

A summary of their meeting:

Quote:President Trump told Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky he was open to lifting restrictions on Kyiv's use of American-made long-range weapons to strike inside Russia, but he didn't commit to doing so during a meeting Tuesday, according to a senior U.S. official and a Ukrainian official.

During the sideline discussion at the United Nations, Zelensky asked Trump for more long-range missiles and approval to use such weapons to strike targets on sovereign Russian territory. Trump replied that he didn't oppose the idea, though both officials said the president didn't make any commitments to reverse a U.S. ban on such attacks.

Here is what Trump said in July 2025:

Quote:"We've made a deal today where we are going to be sending them weapons and they're going to be paying for them," Trump said, noting that NATO would coordinate the weapons transfers. "They feel strongly about it and we feel strongly about it, too. But we're in it for a lot of money and we don't want to do it anymore."

Trump made the announcement during an Oval Office meeting with NATO Secretary General Mark

Rutte, who heralded the president's decision as "really big" and further evidence that Europe is "stepping up."

Long determined to shift more of the transatlantic defense burden to Europe, Trump stressed repeatedly how the weapons being sold to Europe were the "best in the world" and would generate "billions" in revenue — and, above all, that the war started on his predecessor's watch.

"This is not Trump's war," he said at one point. "We're here to try and get it finished and settled."

Trump recognized then, and in many other statements publicly, that stopping this war requires the defense of Ukraine.

The US and many other countries specifically agreed to defend Ukraine, in return for Ukraine giving their nukes up. At the time, Ukraine was top 3 biggest nuclear arsenal. Russia, US, UK, France, China, and others have all agreed to protect Ukraine's borders, sovereignty, and freedoms.

Under Putin's orders, Russia ended their protection of Ukraine after a 20 year enforced contract between countries, at the first moment they could.

Trump, and more importantly, the United States of America has a precedented obligation, and truly beneficial interest in the protection of Ukraine. I have mentioned in the past that Trump recognizes this, would be snubbed by Putin (he has been, a few times this year), and that ultimately the USA will guarantee Ukraine's victory, alongside much of the EU.

I really hope people recognize my post here as non-political. Trump's actions are in line with the continued support of Ukraine against a violent aggressor, and regime. Our government is a system, and Trump is not the only person with power. The People have the most power and inherit rights, and we then have extended certain rights to our government, which then has multiple branches for checks & balances. Well, the balance sheets are required by law, and as you'll see below, the protection of Ukraine is guaranteed for years if necessary, so that all billions can be spent properly.

Russia, there's a lot more coming. I don't know if people really understand how much has been allocated. The budgets are set, and the use of their American funds are required by LAW.

We are all, we are Earth, we are one. Compliance is mandatory. In the future, the invasion of a protected nation will not be an option, and all aggressor countries will be extinguished for the safety of the planet. The emissions and destruction of war is a crime against Earth, and all kings, presidents, or dictators or emperors who seek to propagate damages against the planet should be removed with a zero-risk strategy.

I imagine Russia would be deemed an illegitimate nation, out of compliance with the laws of Earth, and would be required to stop their illegal invasion - under threat of removal from Earth.

As Russia's people are also citizens of Earth, the Russian government would be guilty of kidnapping and forcing its victims of committing crimes against the planet.

I'm putting my focus towards these goals more than politics these days.
It's more enjoyable to imagine a truly fair world.

2. I am referring to NATO not stepping up to secure it's own borders.

3. NATO would still absolutely obliterate Russia without the US, with that being said Trump said he would defend NATO and he thinks NATO countries should shoot Russian aircraft down in their airspace.

Article 5 of NATO literally means an attack on one is an attack on all, the US is obligated to step in just as other NATO countries stepped in when the US was attacked on 9/11.

case in point:

Yesterday (sep 28), Kellogg confirmed that Trump is allowing deep strikes on Russian territory.

I'm saying, he has flipped. Trump is backing Ukraine from here.

Also yesterday on Sep 28 - JD Vance just confirmed that the Trump admin is exploring NEW weapon deals w/ Ukraine.

Quote: The U.S. is "looking at" providing Kyiv with Tomahawk missiles as Moscow continues to refuse bilateral and trilateral peace talks brokered by Trump, U.S. Vice President JD Vance confirmed on Sept. 28.

There are a number of sources for this but here are some

<https://www.pravda.com.ua/eng/news/2025/09/29/8000324/>
<https://kyivindependent.com/ukraine-can-conduct-strikes-deep-within-russian-territory-kellogg-says/>

As I keep saying... Russia has won less than 2% of Ukraine's land in the last 2 years, but they continue to lose hundreds, and sometimes thousands of soldiers per day to casualties - and a high number of deaths too.

The realities on the ground are not as Putin would have people think.

Ukraine has done a fantastic job, and it's time to start helping them in more meaningful ways.

We should consider up til now "basic support". I'd like to see "full support" soon.

Some quotes from JD Vance / US Gov:

Quote: "The Russian economy is in shambles. The Russians are not gaining much on the battlefield. It's clearly time for them to listen to his passionate plea for them to come to the table and actually talk seriously about peace," Vance said in an interview with Fox News' Martha MacCallum.

"I think what has changed is the reality on the ground, with the Russians killing a lot of people and losing a lot of people and they don't have much to show for it," he added.

"A lot of people are dying and they don't have a lot to show for it. How many more people are they willing to lose? How many people are they willing to kill for very little, if any, gain in the military advantage on the ground there?"

I'm glad to see this administration is actually waking up to reality a bit on this.

I also like that they specifically have said that Ukraine can win the war, AND take back lands from before 2014.

It is time for capitulation strikes. It is time to end the Putin regime, and Trump knows it, Kellogg knows it, and Vance knows it.

Why be a Russian puppet when you can be an American hero?

He literally is anti-Republican in almost every single category lmao...

So yeah, I have no doubt that he could flip on anything.

I mean hell, he's withholding federal funding from his own Republican states. The man isn't even good at quid pro quo lol when it's domestic, let alone internationally.

That said, I do have faith in his commitment to Ukraine long-term.

As far as Israel & that... I'm conflicted. I want Israel to have a safe space, but they have gone too far now and need to reign it in.

I was down with the hunt for terrorists, I was down with the sweeps through neighborhoods, and the strikes on homes that had missiles.

i am not down with how many people have died, there's just no fucking way they were all terrorists, so yeah it's genocide.

Any world leader that calls for the physical removal of a population based on religion, ethnicity, etc is committing genocide, or inciting genocide.

When there's no due process, there's no way to prove it's not genocide.

The burden of evidence is on them, but they can't prove that they had actual evidence for every target.

It's the equivalent of summary executions from afar in a way.

I'm conflicted because I don't think the answer is to just have them leave and let the PA and Hamas rebuild.

but I don't think we can just hand it to Israel either.

There'll need to be international intervention I think here.

We'll see where Trump lands... Not too long ago he was rounding up anti-Israel protesters as "terrorists".

Man, Trump really is a fucking small man, pathetically small.

I just don't see how he can flip flop on this at this point with all that he's done already.

But also Putin is making Trump look weak and look easily fooled and Trump definitely doesn't like that so he could very well firm up on this.

Also some current information regarding the Gaza genocide, Trump is pushing Netanyahu to accept his plan to end the "war" (genocide) my guess Netanyahu refuses and Trump ends up becoming more firm and starts turning away from Israel.

Netanyahu has explicitly stated that he will not accept an end to the war that leaves Hamas (terrorists) in control of Gaza. What he has not said is that he wants all Palestinians dead.

Netanyahu doesn't want an end to this war even without Hamas in control, that is why Netanyahu has rejected proposals from other countries that explicitly say Hamas will not be in control.

Additionally what someone says means absolutely nothing when their actions speak differently.

36 hospitals bombed

200 schools bombed

814 mosques bombed

Many reports of refugee camps bombed some of them bombed dozens of times.

70,000 dead 60% of those deaths are women, children and those over 65 years old, 146 of them were doctors, 1,581 of them were health workers, over 200 of them were the press/media.

This is nothing new by the way, look into what is known as Nakba it is literally ethnic cleansing of Palestinians by Jews it is well recorded, also look into Tantura, a prime example of that of which Israel tried to cover up.

By the way just to add, who was it that kept stalling and rejecting ceasefires which included the release of hostages?.

1996, 1997, 1999, 2003, 2004, 2006 all years Israel rejected ceasefires.

A ceasefire agreement that Hamas agreed to with Egypt and Qatar Israel refused.

On January 15th Israel violated the ceasefire over 350 times according to Gaza officials while Jordan recorded over 900 from Israel.

On Sept 9th Israel struck inside Qatar killing some of Hamas leadership while they were discussing a ceasefire deal proposed by the United States and in the process of this strike it not only killed innocent civilians but Qatari forces.

There is many more I could go over but the pattern is very clear here, then you go back even further in history like I mentioned the Nakba, or the Tantura massacre, or even when Israel attacked the US which was very obviously a deliberate attack known as the USS liberty incident then you start to see an even bigger pattern.

I want Israel to live in peace, I want Israel to be a safe place, Jews have a right to freedom, safety and to live their life, but I want the same for the Palestinians without Hamas being in control, I myself am actually Askhenazi so this is not some kind of Jew hate it is just the reality.

And just to quickly add to this, a lot of Jews see this reality and want Palestinians and Jews to both live in peace, many of them you will see active in the protests.

Hackers - September 29, 2025, 6:26 pm

Lets not normalize Hamas. Every single Hamas and helper was a valid military target and has, or will be killed.

Every strike from Israel on Hamas was part of the war that Hamas started up.

Yes, it's a longtime crisis

I don't think Israel needs to be held to a ceasefire internationally. If they struck in Qatar, but held off in the strip, then that's fair game & they respected the ceasefire

Unfortunately sometimes Israel has to break the ceasefire for defense purposes. Hamas and anyone firing back at Israel is a terrorist. Until no bullets or missiles fly towards Israel, they should be able to defend their country, no?

Palestine and Israel should be able to live in harmony. However, who will be trusted to run Palestine? If not Israel, then who?

sorry if this is not very woke of me to say, but surely we're not just suggesting that Palestine should run Palestine again without a long transition period, right?

Nobody is normalizing Hamas, I have said it time and time again Israel has the right to defend itself and wipe out Hamas but they do not have the right to commit genocide or steal land.

You need to understand the history in full going back to 1948 and even prior to see the bigger picture.

As for who should run Palestine I think that comes down to the Palestinians to vote on it with it being very clear no Hamas, no extremist group and that election should be overseen by the countries involved in this including the US, Israel, Qatar to ensure the integrity of the election. In the meantime it might be necessary to have peacekeepers in the land.

I do understand the history, I just personally think that Israel was given its lands and is surrounded by some who are very vocal about wanting to kill all jews, the west, etc.

at the end of the day they all just praise El / Il / Elohim / etc.

Eloah

or in northwest semitic, 'il

It's always El, it always will be

I pray to him and the others myself. Throughout time the stories may slightly shift, and they all have different names now, and different prophets and different prophecies...

But they all praise El

Even hezbollah - Hizbu ilah

The party of God

Yisra el, is god's perseverance

You can't go into any religion or related cultures without coming right back to El. So, perhaps we should all unite as one?

One Earth, One People, and All

For this reason, I hope people don't take my reply with too much offense. There is a way forward here for both to unite as one.

I have a hard time with this one because yes, Israel has gone too far, but at the same time, I do support them expanding Israel and bringing Palestinians in as citizens, under the laws and flag of Israel.

I don't think they should just expel them from their lands, but I don't know if there needs to be an election in Palestine either.

I'm not saying to erase Palestine, but if the goal is to have a completely sovereign Palestine that is allowed to operate militarily, then I'm not down for that really. Maybe Palestine can be a region of Israel, much like Ohio is a state of the US. It still has its own identity (not sure what happens in Ohio personally, but that's besides the point - I'm sure they're fine) , but it benefits from the united states.

Maybe Palestine can become a "united state" of Israel?

Do you think this is something people could get behind? It gives them the protections and benefits of being part of Israel, without the risks of elections, terrorists, etc.

Personally I think we should skip the BS and just unite all countries on all continents under 1 flag and call it "Earth" :)

I think that the Arabs and Jews would disagree most strongly with this 'same God' philosophy. Islam has roots in Judaism and Christianity, but Allah was originally part of an African pantheon.

Trump and Netanyahu have agreed to a permanent armistice or ceasefire where Hamas disbands, and Palestine is controlled by Gaza technocrats, Trump, and, for some reason, Tony Blair. Israel will maintain responsibility for security but begin to withdraw troops. We'll see where it goes. Hamas has shown that they want control from the river to the sea at any cost.

Sure, let's do everything the globalists want. Or maybe ask the Ukrainians if they're willing to unite with Russia. There's too many different cultures and governments. Plus, there's a few billion people in the world convinced that a one-world government is the work of the devil. They will have to go away first.

I wasn't asking them what they think.

The geography, history, written records, and etymology are more verifiable.

Judaism & Christianity aren't even the base religions, they're just 2 religions that came from Abraham who had just traveled through the fertile crescent, visited all the city states, and realized that polytheism was causing divides (basically - I am simplifying). This story then quickly transformed into what we see today as monotheistic religions.

Even if you make leaps, it's pretty well documented for how the religions changed over time, with the exile in Babylon, and as people migrated out of the crescent and more towards modern day "holy lands".

The irony is that the most holy land in the world is in Iraq, and we bombed that and now we fight over Israel.

It's kind of a joke, but oh well

Long story short - Jews, Christians and Muslims have a few main things in common:

---> They are Abrahamic religions

---> None are really original / they are not the source material

I studied into Islam for years and sorry but you are incorrect.

The main difference that comes into play between the 2 religions is Jews do not believe in Muhammad as a prophet, and Jews do not believe in Jesus a prophet but both religions believe in the God of Abraham, both religions pray to the same one God, both believe the Torah is a divine revelation.

It is perfectly acceptable for Jews to pray in mosques and it is frequently done as well in fact you can easily search up videos on it to see with your own eyes.

Please go on elaborate on the whole "Kill the Jews" thing. Are you referring to the prophecy which is NOT a command in Sahih Muslim?, context is key.

Jews completely reject the Christian God, Christians believe the father is God, Jesus is God, the holy spirit is God and those 3 are one which is blasphemy in Judaism literally punishable by death.

I mean, the Quran tells us we worship the same god, but sure, have it "your way"

I understand you are saying that the Jews would disagree. I don't think that matters because none of the 3 religions are original content.

Q 29:46 'We believe in what has been sent down to us, and what has been sent down to you; our God and your God is One, and to Him we have surrendered.'

another translation:

We believe in what has been revealed to us and what was revealed to you. Our God and your God is ?only? One. And to Him we ?fully? submit.

WE ALL WORSHIP EL.

I wouldn't make my signature, title, and username related to this exact concept if I wasn't 100% sure that the texts, etymology, history, geography, and many other factors were all aligned.

90% of my issue with people on HF is they make shit up and then ask us to debate about it when Googling is far faster.

just one more note:

-- I am not saying el is the only god.

-- That's not what I believe.

-- I think it's well documented that the names of "god" are not just titles or names for one entity, but in their distinction & separation, they can still be ONE or otherwise act as one.

-----> Take with a grain of salt for that last bullet point. They do not always act as one, and there are many contradictions between different parts of each religion. I personally believe that this is because they are separate entities. I do not think that the LORD is the same as the Father, or the Spirit, but they can work together.

Heaven,
God,
Lord,
Father,
Spirit,
Earth,
Underworld

These are not new concepts, at all. In fact, they predate the 3 main religions by thousands of years.

But even with the 3 main religions, they openly acknowledge a shared origin.
I don't know why people are on a forum arguing otherwise.

It's extremely well documented, both within the scripture and outside of it.

Names change, beliefs change, but it has always been the same origin story & god(s), for many, many, many years.

a text might call it blasphemy to praise the old gods, or another passage may declare a god as most high, but the actual origins are the same.

Much of the 3 main religions are later interpretations, over the course of thousands of years. I personally find them all equally valid, and equally invalid. I think that Islam, Judaism, and Christianity are retelling a story, not sharing it for the first time.

But I don't want to derail this thread.....

I think we should all just agree that what Russia is doing is wrong, and it should stop.

Israel will never agree to it and due to what has been happening nor would the Palestinians, so the other reasonable option is to allow Palestine to exist separately.

As for Palestine being allowed to operate militarily no they should not be allowed, instead they should be given guarantees by Israel, the US and Qatar since all 3 countries are involved in peace talks and there needs to be no Hamas in control at all.

Currently Israel agreed to a ceasefire deal which would lead to peace and Qatar, Egypt and Turkey are urging Hamas to take the deal so now the ball is in the hands of Hamas, if Hamas fails to accept the ceasefire then that is on them just as I have called out earlier examples of Israel breaking ceasefires. And if Hamas fails to accept this ceasefire or accepts it and then violates the ceasefire then I absolutely believe Israel should have the right to go in and completely wipe out Hamas and wipe out any military supporting Hamas.

But again no matter the outcome I do not believe any country has the right to genocide and to steal land, we are in modern times those days are long gone.

Yeah, it was probably supposed to be over in a week and sold to the public as a “lightning-fast victory.”

That already happened in 2014, when Putin boosted his falling approval ratings by annexing Crimea.

At the start of the war in 2022, we weren't even allowed to call it a war - it had to be “the special military operation.” Some people in the first few months got fined or even short prison sentences for that (usually up to about three years).

Airports were closed, especially near the border for up to a month, and everywhere the narrative was like: “we’re saving them,” “what’s there to fight about, we’ll take it in three days.”

Now the forces are more or less equal - there can't really be a winner.

And honestly, we don't even know what “victory” means to the Russian government anymore.

Every month the reasons and goals change. The most common ones I remember are:

“fighting Nazis,” “saving the people of Donbas,” “they’re banning the Russian language and culture,” “NATO was about to attack Russia and we struck first.”

And then there were the really absurd ones, like “NATO biolabs created to wipe out Slavs,” and stuff like that.
