Thread: Phone fell off counter - simcard, speaker, microphone and charger stopped working

MadScientist - September 19, 2025, 10:34 pm

Anyone have any ideas or suggestions how all these can stop working after a fall? It has my crypto so I'm especially concerned. My dog caught the charging cable and pull it off onto the hard floor and instantly the microphone, speaker, simcard and charging port all stopped working. I'm not so great with mobile hardware so any thoughts while I browse support threads / reddit is greatly appreciated. I'm wondering if an internal connection somehow was damaged / came loose but don't want to risk messing with it until I get my crypto over and only have 8% batter left and no ability to charge it.

Might be the flex that's lose from the mother board. That's why everything is not working, I do fix phones locally.

Yeah that's my thought, hoping it's that and not a cracked motherboard or something but that seems to be mentioned when searching around. Going to transfer my critically important data than poke around inside. My luck is shit lol, I had 2 phones and the other one a few weeks ago randomly one day started rapid clicking all of the screen by itself moments before the screen just wen black. Microphone speaker charger etc still work on that one but no screen.

So not I got 1 working phone with no screen and one phone with no microphone, speaker, sim, and charger ? If I didnt have bad luck I'd have no luck at all sheeesh all of that stopped working off of one fall? what type of phone is it? the more info you can provide the better chance of others bein able to provide you some help.

im guessing you have no case? as much as i hate having a case for my phone after shattering my screen once i now always have a case and if im feeling extra protective will get a screen protector. protect ur investment.

Sounds like you need a new dog.

Good luck man, i doubt the whole mb cracked. Probably just some loose ends, which is weird on its own.
