? If You Could Teleport Anywhere Right Now...

Imagine you had a teleportation device and could instantly travel anywhere in the world.

Where would you go right now – and why?

Vacation vibes, food cravings, meeting a friend? Let's hear it!

Russia, and the reason is that a hefty share of the technical experts are based there.

Oh_Well - September 20, 2025, 12:14 pm

I would definitely go for Kepler , the only known possible exo planet which could be similar to Earth in a perfect goldilock zone , perfect atmosphere . Wouldn't it be nice to see if there are other species like us :)

CARRENT - September 20, 2025, 7:46 pm

Yeah generally but there were specific names given to specific planets named kepler 2b or sth I don't remember it precisely but yeah I watched several videos about it . They even tried to 3D anticipate creatures that could be crawling there . But the thing is, it's just too far to travel by our available means , even if we had an interstellar aircraft it would take around 109 years to get there since it's a 1400 light years away apparently but who knows we might just in future .

I would teleport myself to the moon. Just because it would be nice to be able to experience it. Or to Mars when they start with their civil there.

I did actually sign up for that! :)

As long as I can travel back instantly, Tokyo, Japan. I really wouldn't mind roaming the streets of Tokyo.

Then I would go to the Diamond Center in Antwerp ???
