Thread: Do Any Of You Know How To Play Any Instruments?

I know how to play the piano a bit and am also fairly proficient on the drums. Admittedly I haven't played in a long time, but I'm pretty confident that if I started to again that it would mostly come back to me on the quicker side. That's essentially the experience I've had in the past upon returning to it after not playing for a good amount of time anyway. I definitely miss it and plan to get back into it one day so I guess we'll see what all comes back to me whenever I actually do.

Do any of you know how to play any instruments and if so do you still actively play?

I would say i am not the worst piano player, also learned guitar a very tiny bit (couldnt play it anymore even if i tried tho) but piano is something i come back to once a month to learn a new song or practice an old one!

Its always fun but gets so frustrating if you miss the one note 20 times in a row lmao

I always wanted and meant to learn how to play the guitar, but it just got away from me I guess. I'm glad throughout a lot of that time I still continued playing the drums though. I suppose that is probably a part of why I didn't pick the guitar up. How long have you been playing piano for?
