Thread: Do you collect anything?

JoshAllen - October 2, 2025, 9:04 am

I am running out of space because of my collectibles.

I love collecting physical media, Lego, action figures, and so much more.

Does anyone else collect anything?

onlineuser | D3RFER - October 2, 2025, 9:05 am

Tech gadgets.

RFID blank cards, a card reader, and other stuff.

Not because I am into carding.

Just the idea of knowing how to do these things is what I love.

Deany - October 2, 2025, 9:06 am

I buy old appliances and various items to collect their guts. strip them, and desolder everything. I don't use like 60% of what I keep but its nice knowing I have a stock pile, literally, of capacitors, resistors, acdc converters etc.

I've collected all sorts of books but now they do kind of weigh me down with all these bookcases and especially since I only buy ebooks and collect ebooks now. I have some authors where I've bought every novel they've written in paperback.

I also have collected a lot of designer perfumes but they're supposed to get old and go off so I stopped collecting them because I have plenty to use and it seems frivolous.

Now because of how cheap Temu is I've kind of been collecting items with Gustav Klimt type patterns on them which are made by Ai. Have kind of Klimt tea towels-, an apron, hats, pill boxes.

Nate - October 2, 2025, 11:23 am

I collect Og gamertags on xbox lol

Charlie Sheen - October 2, 2025, 11:27 am

I collect autographs.

Peyton Manning, CeeDee Lamb, Trevon Diggs, Michael Irvin, Mel Renfro, Amari Cooper, Jason Witten, Emmitt Smith, Orlando Scandrick, Tony Romo, Ed Too Tall Jones, Dana White, Mike Tyson, Conor McGregor, Chuck Liddell, Chris Weidman, few other cowboys players. The entire cast of Supernatural. Then I have a poster signed by every fighter that fought at UFC 300.

Does collecting currency count? At this moment I'm collecting a lot of crypto as a future investment.

Are your football cards still part of your collection or did you sell them?

I still got them in a box. No huge hitters or anything, just enjoyed opening packs.
