Hi y'all,

Can someone here give me a link to a tutorial on the website defacement method up shell or whatever it is? I really want to learn it.

it's much more complicated than just having a tool

You need to gain access to a website in a way that lets you modify files, OR you need to hijack DNS or a similar service, like a caching layer.

It's different per website

This HF user shared a free codebase recently that does some dork & other scans automatically:

There are a number of port scanners around too:
