That's huge news. A $1B buy-in could give Avalanche a major boost in visibility and market confidence.

Business existing, especially at this value, centered exclusively around crypto coins is still mind blowing to me. Feels like a shell game.

AVAT is really make a name for themselves. I love how they focus on utility instead of holding.

Might be huge, might be a sign for a pump & dump for quick cash imo.

Avalanche getting this kind of backing says a lot about its ecosystem. Institutional money often brings more stability and visibility. This could attract even more partnerships.

I feel like this buy in can potentially shake things up quite a bit
