Thread: If you could gain excellence in any skill instantly, which skill would you choose?

Think about waking up the next day with a newfound skill and excellence in that skill (no practice, no learning, no struggle, or challenges)—you're just talented. Maybe it is playing a musical instrument, being multilingual, cooking like a chef, or being a professional at a sport, the sky's the limit.

The answers would be endless, and it says a lot to you and to others about what you really value in life.

If you could gain excellence in any skill instantly, which would it be?

I would like to be good at manipulating people or a good orator. One of these is needed to be a politician.

I would assume that's part of it, but he does explain how he knows by just looking at certain objects like the poles, street blur, google copyright, etc.

I would learn every major language fluently in a heartbeat.
Communication barriers would vanish.
