

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Would you prefer to live 100 years from now or 100 years from now?

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 6:39 am

Just think, you could travel into the future or the past of a hundred years. You would see history from an up-close perspective, some easier times, and hopefully, a more relaxed pace of life if you were living one hundred years ago. However, a hundred years in the future could be spectacular with technological advances, new discoveries and new learning about the world beyond what you could even imagine.

Imagine what you could learn, who you could meet and what you could experience. Even with the future's uncertainty and the infinite possibilities it could bring, the past can ground you with its roots and memories.

Each option has its own excitement and risk. Which would you choose, and why?

P??sonl?af - October 3, 2025, 6:40 am

I think I would want to live 100 years from now. Hopefully if we didn't end up killing ourselves or the planet I would be able to explore a more futuristic lifestyle and maybe even other planets.

plops - October 3, 2025, 6:44 am

I think the past get romanticized too much. Id rather jusmp ahead 100 years. We seem to be gaining new tech exponentially faster evry decade.

Maybe shit went sideways and it turned into a robot society. Where the remaining humans are cyborgs. And we are fightingting for cyborg rights against the big machine. But we are just a bunch of flesh clankers, no rights to vote. Drinki g from seperate oil fountains.

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 6:46 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:40 AM)P??sonl?af Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think I would want to live 100 years from now. Hopefully if we didn't end up killing ourselves or the planet I would be able to explore a more futuristic lifestyle and maybe even other planets.

Living 100 years from now could be incredible, as long as we protect our planet first. I'm curious about the inventions and discoveries that await us. It's thrilling to imagine, though there are definitely challenges and risks ahead.

(Oct 3, 2025 06:44 AM)plops Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think the past get romanticized too much. Id rather jusmp ahead 100 years. We seem to be gaining new tech exponentially faster evry decade.

Maybe shit went sideways and it turned into a robot society. Where the remaining humans are cyborgs. And we are fightingting for cyborg rights against the big machine. But we are just a bunch of flesh clankers, no rights to vote. Drinki g from seperate oil fountains.

That's one way to imagine the future! Robots and cyborgs running the world sounds intense. I just hope humans still get to enjoy life without too much clanking around.

P??sonl?af - October 3, 2025, 6:49 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:46 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Living 100 years from now could be incredible, as long as we protect our planet first. I'm curious about the inventions and discoveries that await us. It's thrilling to imagine, though there are definitely challenges and risks ahead.

That's one way to imagine the future! Robots and cyborgs running the world sounds intense. I just hope humans still get to enjoy life without too much clanking around.

Def not without risk! For all we know we end up in a world where AI Ants have taken over and are vengeful on humans for stepping on top of them for all these years.

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 6:51 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:49 AM)P??sonl?af Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Def not without risk! For all we know we end up in a world where AI Ants have taken over and are vengeful on humans for stepping on top of them for all these years.

That's both really scary and at the same time, quite funny! Just picture trying to negotiate ants angry with robot brains. I would certainly be walking much more carefully everywhere.

Laughing Man - October 3, 2025, 6:51 am

I want to have stacks like Altered Carbon, I think a cyberpunk world would be cool af.

P??sonl?af - October 3, 2025, 6:52 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:51 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's both really scary and at the same time, quite funny! Just picture trying to negotiate ants angry with robot brains. I would certainly be walking much more carefully everywhere.

I mean in 100 years so much could have happened and have changed! xD

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 6:53 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:51 AM)Laughing Man Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I want to have stacks like Altered Carbon, I think a cyberpunk world would be cool af.

That sounds amazing! Imagine swapping bodies or skills just like in Altered Carbon. Life in a cyberpunk city would never be boring.

Laughing Man - October 3, 2025, 6:54 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:53 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That sounds amazing! Imagine swapping bodies or skills just like in Altered Carbon. Life in a cyberpunk city would never be boring.

Absolutely, live forever and when you are done, sign an agreement to never get spun up again.

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 6:57 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:54 AM)Laughing Man Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Absolutely, live forever and when you are done, sign an agreement to never get spun up again.

Living forever would be wild. Signing an agreement to never come back is kind of reassuring. At least you'd get a proper break.

Laughing Man - October 3, 2025, 6:57 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:57 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Living forever would be wild. Signing an agreement to never come back is kind of reassuring. At least you'd get a proper break.

Yep even have things in place only spin me up after x years.

Yanix - October 3, 2025, 7:01 am

(Oct 3, 2025 06:57 AM)Laughing Man Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yep even have things in place only spin me up after x years.

I like that plan! It's like scheduling your own second chance. Definitely a thoughtful approach.

Laughing Man - October 3, 2025, 7:01 am

(Oct 3, 2025 07:01 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I like that plan! It's like scheduling your own second chance. Definitely a thoughtful approach.

Also a fantastic show if you haven't seen it.

Jamika - October 5, 2025, 6:22 am

Into the past ofc , so would repair what i want , so my next life will be better

Yanix - October 5, 2025, 6:30 am

(Oct 5, 2025 06:22 AM)Jamika Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Into the past ofc , so would repair what i want , so my next life will be better

That makes sense, fixing things from the past could help a lot. Learning from mistakes is always valuable. Hopefully your next life will be even better.?

Jamika - October 5, 2025, 6:32 am

(Oct 5, 2025 06:30 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That makes sense, fixing things from the past could help a lot. Learning from mistakes is always valuable. Hopefully your next life will be even better.?

Thanx bro , hope your future is good too ??

Yanix - October 5, 2025, 6:36 am

(Oct 5, 2025 06:32 AM)Jamika Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thanx bro , hope your future is good too ??

Thanks my bro, and best of everything to everyone here on Hack Forums.?

RangoWorld - October 9, 2025, 6:01 am

I don't want to live 100 years in the future.

I'd rather stay in present or go 100 years back.

In my experience world has only gotten worse since inception

Yanix - October 9, 2025, 6:06 am

(Oct 9, 2025 06:01 AM)RangoWorld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't want to live 100 years in the future.

I'd rather stay in present or go 100 years back.

In my experience world has only gotten worse since inception

Truly, the future feels uncertain and things do seem more chaotic lately.

Going back 100 years sounds simpler in many ways. Sometimes the present really is the best place to be.?

Oh_Well - October 9, 2025, 10:02 am

100 years ago wasnt so good. People just got out of a great war, the Prohibition era started, plagues were a big thing.

And we already know all that because they are well documented, so going back there is a not for me. Bring me the future :))

The Pact - October 9, 2025, 10:25 am

The future would be too polluted and toxic and the past I wouldn't have many rights in 1925 as a woman. And the fashions at that time weren't right for me.

aj33b9009 - October 9, 2025, 11:35 am

Going a hundred years forward could make me die almost instantly (what if the Earth isn't here anymore?), meet aliens, intelligent robots and immortal people who can read my mind.

I'm scared of the future

RangoWorld - October 9, 2025, 12:23 pm

(Oct 9, 2025 06:06 AM)Yanix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Truly, the future feels uncertain and things do seem more chaotic lately.

Going back 100 years sounds simpler in many ways. Sometimes the present really is the best place to be.?

Whenever I hear my parents or elderly speak of the past. I'm in such an awe. I do want to live in simpler times.

lonneee - October 9, 2025, 12:39 pm

the past all day.

Yanix - October 9, 2025, 6:26 pm

(Oct 9, 2025 12:39 PM)lonneee Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) the past all day.

There's something peaceful about how simple life used to be. No rush, no constant noise, just genuine living.

PhillyStyle - October 9, 2025, 6:33 pm

I'm not confident that the world won't be war-torn 100 years in the future, so I would say past. But I'm not so sure I would do so well 100 years in the past either, so I would rather stay right here I guess.

Yanix - October 9, 2025, 6:44 pm

(Oct 9, 2025 06:33 PM)PhillyStyle Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm not confident that the world won't be war-torn 100 years in the future, so I would say past. But I'm not so sure I would do so well 100 years in the past either, so I would rather stay right here I guess.

That's a fair point. The past had its struggles, and the future feels unpredictable. Staying in the present might really be the safest bet. At least we know what we're dealing with here!

cesarsalmonsalde - January 2, 2026, 1:17 pm

i like 10 years from now

tripleseven - January 2, 2026, 9:28 pm

I would say the past for sure if ww2 wasn't gonna be coming up.

Lyralei - January 3, 2026, 5:33 am

Definitely the Past. more chances to do something real than the massive brainrot that's today-also odds are if I fastforward 100 years from now I'll probably be in post apocalyptic setting with zero chances of survival, an Orwellian state, or just similar to now with just more fancy tech.

larry2k - January 4, 2026, 2:09 am

100 years from now. I do NOT want to be involved in any of those previous wars, but there most likely will be more anyways.

Yanix - January 10, 2026, 7:19 am

(Jan 4, 2026 03:09 AM)larry2k Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 100 years from now. I do NOT want to be involved in any of those previous wars, but there most likely will be more anyways.

Yeah most likely more wars in the present and much more powerful than the previous wars because of technology.

diablospartan - January 10, 2026, 7:39 am

Hell no for future .I am already tired of ai technology so after 100 years i think i will kill myself immediately living in a sci fi reality where almost will be controlled by ai

I would gladly go back in time as i think it is way more beautiful like the future even if harder

7 - January 10, 2026, 7:42 am

I am too futurisitic now i'd of been killed 100 years ago.

People don't understand in 2026 most of the time fuck trying to explain myself in 1926

Yanix - January 10, 2026, 7:45 am

(Jan 10, 2026 08:39 AM)diablospartan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hell no for future .I am already tired of ai tehcnology so after 100 years i think i will kill myself imediatly living in a sci fi reality where almost will be controled by ai

I would gladly go back in time as i think it is way more beautiful like the future even if harder
It's okay to miss the simplicity of the past brother, but that doesn't mean the future can't still be meaningful. I guess everyone deserve to experience life, not end it because of fear of what might happen. ?

Dxzy - January 10, 2026, 4:32 pm

Ofc I would

itcorp - January 10, 2026, 5:22 pm

If I could travel a hundred years into the past or the future, I wouldn't choose either one.Why? Because neither of those times has my four children in it.

They are my meaning, my purpose, and my joy.....right here,right now.No moment in history and no future miracle could ever replace the life I've built with them.

So I'll stay exactly where I am... because my greatest adventure is already happening.

Yanix - January 10, 2026, 7:05 pm

(Jan 10, 2026 06:22 PM)itcorp Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If I could travel a hundred years into the past or the future, I wouldn't choose either one.Why? Because neither of those times has my four children in it.

They are my meaning, my purpose, and my joy.....right here,right now.No moment in history and no future miracle could ever replace the life I've built with them.

So I'll stay exactly where I am... because my greatest adventure is already happening.

w sweet it is my brotha, I love your response. Family is love ? Kids is our everything. Good to hear from one of my trusted member on this forum.

PISTONZ - January 10, 2026, 11:41 pm

Always interesting about the future, but 100 years from now, everything should be totally different.

Maybe we have another planet to live for humans ?

Yanix - January 11, 2026, 5:05 am

(Jan 11, 2026 12:41 AM)PISTONZ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Always interesting about the future, but 100 years from now, everything should be totally different.

Maybe we have another planet to live for humans ?

Yeah, things will definitely be different, but I don't think humanity will end up living on another planet. Earth will heal itself over time and I believe this is the only place truly meant for us.

HerrWinston - January 11, 2026, 7:40 am

I would probably go into the past because the future holds too many risks for me, what if we have evolved so much or so fast that everyone is superior, something went very wrong that killed everything, of course there are many positive sides and good outcomes, just I 100% know how everything was back then, I know what i will get myself into when i go into the past and can therefore change stuff to my liking, of course this comes with risk aswell especially not knowing where i will land, but I hope that it would all go out well :)

Yanix - January 11, 2026, 7:46 am

(Jan 11, 2026 08:40 AM)HerrWinston Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would probably go into the past because the future holds too many risks for me, what if we have evolved so much or so fast that everyone is superior, something went very wrong that killed everything, of course there are many positive sides and good outcomes, just I 100% know how everything was back then, I know what i will get myself into when i go into the past and can therefore change stuff to my liking, of course this comes with risk aswell especially not knowing where i will land, but I hope that it would all go out well :)

I get that completely brother, going to the past feels safer because at least you know what to expect and can make smarter choices. The future is full of unknowns and that uncertainty can be terrifying. I guess, either way it's a risk, but your reasoning actually makes a lot of sense.

Wells - January 11, 2026, 6:02 pm

I'm not really sure about this, but I think I would prefer to live 100 years from now. There will undoubtedly be enormous advancements in healthcare and technology, which will make serious issues like cancer less dramatic. However, I'm not too keen on leaving my family in the past, so they would have to join me in the future. Future here I come. :)

Yanix - January 11, 2026, 6:20 pm

(Jan 11, 2026 07:02 PM)Wells Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm not really sure about this, but I think I would prefer to live 100 years from now. There will undoubtedly be enormous advancements in healthcare and technology, which will make serious issues like cancer less dramatic. However, I'm not too keen on leaving my family in the past, so they would have to join me in the future. Future here I come. :)

Honestly, that really makes sense, the future will probably bring amazing advances in medicine and technology. But I feel you on not wanting to leave family behind, because what's the point of a great future without the people you love. If there were a way to bring everyone along, I'd be packed already too. ?