Another bed non-maker. It's sickening.

Of course I made the bed, I always do it in the morning, otherwise my dog would drag the sheets across the floor ?

Classic pupper status. What breed do you have?

He's a mixed breed, one of the most ordinary ones (I don't remember the exact breeds). Despite everything, he's the most beloved dog in the world ?

Wonderful to hear. Always love an owner who loves their pets.

They are our "silent brothers" and most loyal companions ?

There is an interesting saying that "When you die in a room with a cat, you become food for it. When you die in the same room but with a dog, you become the cause of great sorrow and death for that animal".

It's a very harsh saying, but it fully reflects the love these animals give us.

I actually did, but it was like an hour ago when I was changing the sheets.

Yanix - October 5, 2025, 7:44 pm

Same here, I didn't make my bed. My wife always keeps it tidy, thankfully. Makes life easier!

Anton Chigurh - October 5, 2025, 7:54 pm

I don't always, but when I do, it feels like a small, easy win that sets up the day.

Charlie Sheen - October 5, 2025, 10:05 pm

My wife makes the bed, she's very annoying about it. I was sick in bed until 7pm the other day. I got up to take a shower, came out of the shower and she made the bed already.

B3A - October 7, 2025, 1:07 am

It's a form of discipline and can help you discipline yourself in other matters starting small, but I actually never made it

I'm too heterosexual to have a wife, so either my lovers or my cleaners make it for me.

Another day and I just made the bed at 9PM after changing the sheets.

RangoWorld - October 9, 2025, 1:34 am

I did! I always do. First thing I wake up to do.

Lowkey - October 10, 2025, 2:09 am

Lots of bed makers in this chat right now.

The Pact - November 21, 2025, 7:06 am

My cleaner made it for me three days ago and it's still nice and I haven't kicked everything off in my sleep yet.

junooo - November 21, 2025, 2:03 pm

I fucking hate making my bed. I'm a lazy piece of shit.

But I don't get it anyway. Why would I have to make my bed... if I'm going to mess it up that evening anyway?

I also don't tuck the blanket under the mattress at the footend. So I don't think it matters anyway.

The signature is a great signature.

RangoWorld - November 21, 2025, 11:56 pm

There's just a blanket on my bed. It's easier to do that. I keep the sheets pinned so they don't move. Lol.

Making my bed is legit one of the only things in my life that I do with any consistency whatsoever.

Is there any reason why? Making my bed seems so pointless.

Terry A. Davis - November 23, 2025, 12:53 am

I try to, often fail, but certainly try.

Just remember, if you think you've got it tough, somewhere out there a T-Rex is making its bed.

?ystem - November 23, 2025, 7:18 pm

I used to for most of my life, but as of the last couple of years, I've found myself falling asleep faster if I get back into bed the way I left it.

FriedChicken666 - November 26, 2025, 8:02 pm

Its actually a good thing to let your bed breathe in the morning.
