Thread: Did social media radicalize you?

Lowkey - October 4, 2025, 11:52 am

Have you allowed social media to influence the way that you think be it political or otherwise and if not, why do you think you are the only person immune to the content?

Deany - October 4, 2025, 2:23 pm

No I fucking hate social media

What!!! But it's so awesome!!

Jamika - October 5, 2025, 12:49 am

I don't think so , i enjoy social media alot , by most of its platforms

sharn - October 5, 2025, 1:36 am

I think everyone is influenced a little, me included, so I just try to stay aware of it.

Lowkey - October 5, 2025, 9:01 am

Alright I'm going to open another tiktok account.

I try to ensure that social media has as little influence as possible on my decision-making in every area of my life. I believe this is a healthy approach, and I am increasingly aware of how strongly the media can influence our way of thinking.

Do you know or understand the science of why it affects you regardless of how much screentime you give it?

I think that knowledge of these mechanisms has had a significant impact on the content I consume, but not necessarily on the amount of time I spend in front of the screen. Unfortunately, the second thing is difficult for me ?

The issue is weather or not it affects you the way you think it does regardless of screentime (was what I was trying to get at here)

No, it has irritated me watching others become radicalized.

Oh_Well - October 5, 2025, 11:26 pm

Yes, especially during election time I can see it changing me and making me think in ways I don't want to.

I'm trying to control it but sometimes it just gets under your skin

If you live on twitter you'd think every day is the final day.

Nukes are coming, UFO's, etc. etc.

People that actively use twitter need to get a job.

I have experienced that if you stay away from social media for some days. You will see yourself less impulsive and radical in your opinions.

It's like an active curse.

More level-headed, not mad at everything including your situation whatever it may be...

I think by me being in prison and not having access to the same things most humans have access to for the past ten years it has made me very nonchalant or relaxed when it comes to things... Like I have access to a cell phone 24/7 but I don't check Instagram, Facebook etc.. I check up on news but I have a very strong feeling of, does it matter? When it comes to things these days

JoshAllen - October 10, 2025, 5:52 am

Not really. I go online to relax.

There's a lot of stuff wrong in the world, and you shouldn't block it out, but you shouldn't let it kill your happiness.

Start studying water.

Specifically how it pertains to the human body and how water responds to frequencies and how that correlates to intertwining with manifesting and crafting your own reality around yourself.
