Thread: Whats the weirdest dream youve ever had?

Yanix - October 5, 2025, 3:37 am

This just popped into my head today—I remembered one of those totally bizarre dreams that made me wake up confused. I once dreamed that one of my nephews was sitting on a wall, then suddenly a kid fell down into a deep place. We were all so worried and I shouted as I saw that child falling, but I couldn't do anything since I was stuck across from that place. Until now I am puzzled what was this dream all about?

Dreams can get so random, scary, or just plain weird sometimes. What's the weirdest dream you've ever had?

I always dream of myself in exam and can't answer, or i lose the location of my car and never manage to find it Honestly, those dreams are so relatable. They make us panic but it's all imaginary, yet still, it feels so real when you're in them! ?

After watching Bojack Horseman, I fell asleep. Then in my dream, I was using cocaine and driving my car into the sea.

That sounds really intense. Dreams can be so strange after watching shows like that. At least it wasn't real!?

For many years, I have been having the same nightmare over and over again. In short, I watch a loved one die and I cannot prevent it. I have had this dream so many times that I have become accustomed to it, but my body still shivers every time I wake up from it ?

Oh brother, I can't imagine how stressful that must be. Even if it's a dream, the emotions stay with you. I hope it stops happening eventually.

Don't worry, after a while it stops affecting you. For me, sleep paralysis is definitely a worse experience ?

That must be scary to deal with. Sleep paralysis is no joke.

I have had so many weird dreams, it is hard to say which one was the weirdest. The funny thing is, as soon as I woke up, I completely forgot about the dream, except that it was weird...

Haha, Oh yeah my brother I can relate! Dreams can be so bizarre, yet fade from memory immediately. Only the weird feeling sticks. ?

I remember one I had as a child. Where this matrix was chasing me and slicing everything into smalls bits and pieces. I remember I was terrified of it for months.

That sounds like a really scary dream to have as a kid. It's wild how some nightmares just stick with us for years. The "matrix" slicing everything sounds intense! No wonder it left such a strong impression.

Now that I look back. I think it was associated with the Matrix movie and the Resident Evil movie.

For a child all these things can together overwhelm.

Both movies deal with pretty complex and dark ideas. It's easy for a child's mind to merge them into one big, scary memory. Still, they're iconic films to remember.

When I was a kid I saw a dream about a monster climbing through my window, ripping the curtains off and leaving muddy footsteps.

I open my eyes and I see the window open, curtains missing and muddy footsteps.

Turned out my mother took the curtains to clean them and my father was fixing something on the balcony and brought some dirt inside.

The first few seconds after I woke up are still sharp in my mind - even though 20 years passed

I can't actually remember. But there's this one where I keep falling in space and things around me keep expanding..

Kinda vaguely remember it.

I don't think it's imaginary. I feel that the spirit world makes contact thru our thoughts and mind. It could be a spirit warning you about something or someone maybe kid falling off meaning a kid you might know it could be currently or kid in your past that fell off.

Normally when we get dreams like this we have no clue what it is and what it means. We brush it off as it's just our imagination.

However, the thing is that it could be weeks or months later and you might get word of an old friend you knew back in your younger years that might have died of an overdose on drugs or committed suicide. Only when stuff like this happens we look back and go oh so that is what that dream is about. Some would do this other's would just ignore it thinking naw.. it was just lucid dream.

I have had dreams where I was like you that thinking that dream was cool and I have crazy imagination.

I had a dream where I am on the plane sitting by the window. I am looking down and see city lights and this is at night. I can see the grey blue clouds passing by. It was very detailed to the point I didn't know it was dream. So, we kept flying then I hear a ding and the pilot comes on saying next stop in 5 minutes. The stewardess walks up to my isle and goes sir your stop is next. I go what? I looked at her confused and she gives this psychotic look and goes your stop is next. She tells me to get up and walk to the isle. I refused so her and another staff comes over to me grabs me. The ding sound happens again and the pilot goes we are at our next stop. So, the stewardess takes me to the exit door. They open the door and I look down and I can see the city I am currently in and the grey blue clouds because this is at night. They shove me off the plane. I free fall. I look down and see the lights getting bigger and brighter and start to see buildings and they get bigger and bigger. I then see right below me my house from top view. I get closer and closer. I then see the roof of my house. I then go thru it and as I do this I can feel my body jerk as if I hit the top of my roof and made a hole in it. I go thru the 2nd story floors and then I land gently onto my bed. I can feel my body move as if I just fell onto my bed. I wake up and my whole body is all wet in sweat. I had to change my clothes because it was drench in my sweat. I then drank some Gatorade and took a Tylenol. I then went back to sleep and thought what a dream.

I then had other dreams of me ghost hunting with youtubers. However, I was the ghost scaring them. I thought it was just a dream but then in real life I have seen videos not out yet but when it got live it was exactly like my dream. I then seen a video where I can see myself in the video as a see thru person walking around.

I can see myself as a ghost on the video below:

[Video: <https://youtu.be/3JpcR5VK72s?si=UHQEOFIE4r5u25Bg>]

I remember spooking the police and fire department. That was in my dreams too.

look at 1:16:25

it's towards the end. That his wife sees in the window someone walking in the light in the main entrance room.

If you slow it down you can see a person that is grey and see thru. The face is me. I can tell it's me because I have a white tee-shirt and blue scrub pants which is what I use to sleep at night.

I remember this in my dream that in the moment everything was so birght and I didn't follow omar because there were scary things on that side of things but for me where they were at was bright as day but any light in rooms makes the room way bright that you cannot see anything. It's like as if you have dilated eyes.

That's when I knew dreams aren't imaginary meaning it's a communication form from the spiritual world.

Think of it that if you cannot talk to someone. I you could make a video to communicate thru imaginary and music and sounds.

You can communicate to people that don't speak your language. That communication is universal form.

A giant pizza chasing you sounds both scary and delicious! ? Waking up hungry totally makes sense after that. Your subconscious clearly has great taste! ?

I don't know if it was a dream, but once when I was really high on weed I like passed out and I could see my life as like a grid, and I could see how every second of every day we are always making choices to do something or not to do something and as I made choices I would move to the appropriate grid cell. IDK that is the only way I can explain it. It was a trip. Then I woke up and puked all over lol.
