I know that JJ McCarthy only got to play in 3 games before his injury but with the team trending better with Carson Wentz. Should the bother going back to JJ McCarthy?

McCarthy had an impressive first game of the season against the Bears but since then it has been downhill. I think they should roll the dice with Wentz and let McCarthy get healthy and another year under his belt to learn the playbook.

I think JJ will do just fine, he looked very nervous both of his games he played. Noticed in the second half on his first game, he went off. He needs to play more to be comfortable more. Wentz is great but he's a QB2 for a reason. Give JJ a chance, let him be more comfortable in the pocket, and should know better to pass more to Jefferson/Addison Can't wait to see who the Vikings start at QB this season!
