

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Bitcoin rally to \$125K fueled by US gov't shutdown, macro factors: Analysts

Stanley - October 6, 2025, 9:20 am

Bitcoin rally to $125K fueled by US gov't shutdown, macro factors: Analysts

Onchain dynamics point to a renewed accumulation phase that may see Bitcoin's price surpass $150,000 before the end of 2025, market analysts told Cointelegraph.

https://cointelegraph.com/news/bitcoin-125k-rise-us-gov-t-shutdown-macro-factors-analysts?utm_source=rss_feed&utm_medium=rss&utm_campaign=rss_partner_inbound

DAL-SHA - October 6, 2025, 9:49 am

Sounds like hopeful stuff !! a $125K bitcoin sounds far , but relying on a U.S. gov shutdown for that to happen? Toooo shaky for real faith.

Vectura - October 6, 2025, 10:09 am

That's a pretty bold call, but it lines up with what a lot of on-chain data has been hinting at lately. If accumulation continues and macro uncertainty (like the U.S. government shutdown) keeps pushing investors toward hard assets, Bitcoin could easily see another parabolic phase. The $125K–$150K range feels ambitious but not impossible given the post-halving cycle timing. It'll be interesting to see whether institutional inflows keep pace with retail re-entry this quarter.

leste - October 6, 2025, 11:00 am

If history rhymes, accumulation during chaos has always rewarded patient Bitcoin holders.

Aeowulf - October 6, 2025, 2:35 pm

So basically, we should sell off before the government opens again, and buy it all back at the bottom?

Fish - October 7, 2025, 1:48 am

$125k and beyond. I believe there's no limit to BTC