Thread: BNB Overtakes XRP

Yanix - October 7, 2025, 5:15 am

I just noticed that BNB has overtaken XRP and it honestly surprised me. It's been climbing steadily while XRP seems to be moving kind of slow lately. I've always kept an eye on both, but seeing BNB take the lead again makes me wonder if it's finally showing stronger long-term momentum.

Do you think this will continue, or is it temporary? I'm interested in hearing what everyone here believes about where XRP and BNB are going next.

Yes!

I have the hypothesis that as we grow into a more crypto aware world (beyond the geeks), there would be many first timers who would join up binance or its owned products. When they do so, to avoid big fee, most of the txns would be in BNB, many would hold BNB giving it an advantage over other coins like XRP.

Bro is talking about strong longterm momentum, when bnb came from bottom 200$ to peak at 1,2k$

I'm actually kind of glad BNB took the spot. I think OKX, CRO, and KCS will have some momentum just because exchanges offer low fees to trade with their token.

Most I had at 1 time was 1,6 BNB..my 1st $1000....

Braco22 - October 7, 2025, 2:52 pm

Both sh*tcoins competing... Centralized, utter sh*t of "projects".

Wild, went from 1K to 1300

Omniscient - October 7, 2025, 3:19 pm

Huge spike, I was looking at that a couple days ago. $1300 for BNB is beast.

XRP is garbage and shouldn't even be top 20. Personally I don't love BNB either, not sure where this high valuation is coming from.

Aster and fomo for "utility" promise.

Either way im here for it

Seems like it's far from over — just waiting for another wild run to kick off any moment.

I believe bnb will give good returns in long run and I am of fan of binance exchange.

I haven't kept up with XRP news this year, but I was following the SEC suit for a while. They held strong for the rest of the market to have precedent if/when the SEC attempts to strike again.

Do you feel that they deserve some attention due to their ability to survive through it all?

Between their past work against the SEC & Trump's previous statements on US-based cryptos, I felt that XRP was a buy.

I haven't done TA on XRP since it was below $1, but I made a good amount of money on it. I'll try to research more soon.

XRP is losing every single battle at this point. They thought they were going to replace SWIFT, and SWIFT turned around and partnered with an ETH L2(Linea), and they are using ChainLink. XRP has been over hyped and doomed for 7+ years. How the fuck do you thing XRP would just come in and take over a market like SWIFT. They have so much money and politicians in their pocket.

BNB is only pumping due to market manipulation. They are burning tokens like a memecoin and Binance is selling off all their other assets to pump their own BNB.

Accurate.

XRP is a loser, I don't care what the XRP army does. Most of the hype is paid partnerships with media. BNB totally being manipulated.

I mentioned above that I gave XRP credit for their fight against the SEC.

I think that's the most likely reason there are still so many supporters. I still remember that fight, and it was years of hope, mixed with worries the SEC would win and use the ruling against others.

There could be investors in XRP who are living off of that "fight".

i need to research more, and I don't want to diss or love XRP too much without researching more. I would assume that if there are others like me, the battle against the SEC was justification to ignore red flags or stagnant markets in the past.

Not saying that is deserved by XRP, but it might be a reason for it lasting this long.

XRP did do a lot for the cryptocurrency movement as a whole, but it was all paid for by the XRP community. The inflation rate of XRP was extremely high, and it ALL went to Ripple. Kinda scummy but what do you do..

I also believe that XRP was the biggest SEC lawsuit due to them trying to replace SWIFT, as well as being kinda poor. I believe that SWIFT has extremely deep roots in the SEC and many other political entities.

I recommend you research "ETH Gate". ETH has been chosen since the early days because its a tool not a competitor.

Yeah, the swift system is pretty engrained in a number of systems.

However, there are flaws... that I don't think XRP can solve. For example, XRP won't help at all with stop payments, which is something SWIFT can fail to support if not notified in time.

I'm a huge believer in utility > price

Bankers will go internal like they did with Zelle. They are not gonna use an outside company like Ripple. Hell, come to think on it, so easy to just make a Zelle token stablecoin for them and integrate it. Zero need for Ripple in reality.

Yeah, I do not want Ripple to take over banking at all.

Zelle works great, and agreed for sure.

I am not ruling out XRP, but by no means am I suggesting that it is a replacement for these other systems.

It's a nice option, but I view it as an alt coin still. I made great profits, but it's an alt coin, not a main competitor.

I love alt coins though, I view them as much better than meme coins, but they aren't replacements for traditional banking, BTC, ETH, etc. Not in coin value, not in utility, and not in market adoption.
