

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Advices

TheLittleEmperor - October 7, 2025, 2:45 pm

Hackers of the forum, from your experience, is it better to work alone or to have allies in projects and operations?

Mech - October 7, 2025, 7:02 pm

Depends on how dependable and trustworthy the people you are working with are.
Depends on the job and how capable you are at doing what needs to be done.

There's a lot of different factors that go into deciding whether or not to work alone.

aj33b9009 - October 8, 2025, 9:23 am

I'm the best ally in the project... because each one might have a unique idea.

RangoWorld - October 9, 2025, 5:30 am

(Oct 7, 2025 02:45 PM)TheLittleEmperor Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hackers of the forum, from your experience, is it better to work alone or to have allies in projects and operations?

Both. There are things you learn as a team and other times where you achieve more on a task as a solo player.

Yanix - October 9, 2025, 5:34 am

Going solo gives you freedom and privacy, but you can't do everything yourself. Allies can make a huge difference in efficiency and creativity.

Jamika - October 9, 2025, 9:25 pm

(Oct 7, 2025 02:45 PM)TheLittleEmperor Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hackers of the forum, from your experience, is it better to work alone or to have allies in projects and operations?

Anything would be better in groups , but though i never heard that hackers work together except in famous hackers

• Enlil Wolf • - October 11, 2025, 2:19 am

Depends on the project you are doing. Rarely would you come across something that can be done and accomplished solo. So, having a reliable team or alliance of people that are trustworthy and in the same wavelength of what you are searching for is quite helpful.

sharn - October 11, 2025, 5:04 am

Working alone gives full control and less risk of leaks.
But big projects need reliable allies to succeed.